RICH RESOURCES OF U. S. PARADED AT STOCK SHOW

Crowds Thrilled by Lavish Spectacle.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

The glory of Chicago's great annual festival, the International Live Stock exposition, is that it has something for everybody.

Daily it is drawing thousands to the new exhibition halls in the Union stockyards.

Veteran experts in agriculture cross the ocean to see it.

Women who would reduce linger with absorbed interest over dioramas and diagrams which show in appetizing detail how that ordeal can cheerfully be faced.

A Vast, Animated Scene.

The whole scene is vast, animated and varied.

'Tis a gay scene, enlivened by band concerts and wonderful feats of horsemanship, and dignified by noble pageantry.

Human interest and horse sense are vividly demonstrated by humans who talk to horses as if the horses were humans and by horses which understand human speech that is not mere signals but intimate, friendly conversation.

It is also a circus.

The supreme court is sitting hourly day and night and a staf of ten telegraphers at work close to the arena is sending to all parts of the United States and Canada, to England, to Scotland, and to Belgium the news of the supreme court's awards.

Prince of Wales an Exhibitor.

Among the stockmen eagerly awaiting the news is the heir apparent to the English throne, who for ten years has been a contender in Chicagoland's history making tournament and who this year sends from his Alberta ranch five shorthorns.

"Are they pretty good specimens?" I cautiously asked Prof. John T. Caine, one of the exposition's technical advisers and formerly a member of the faculty of the Utah Agricultural college.

"They certainly are," said he.

It is a symphony.

Above the click of telegraph instruments and the sway of band music resounds the deep diapason of lowing cattle on their way from the pens to face the keen scrutiny of the supreme court. Then querulous baaing of sheep when their turn comes. And clanking of huge draft horses.

1,300 Boys and Girls Parade.

Now processions of humans—1,300 boys and girls of the nation-wide 4-H club, the four letters standing for Head, Heart, Hands and Health. They represent nearly a million of the choicest young people of our country, young people, all under 20 years of age, who have done significant things in American agriculture.

They are a heartening sight. You do not despair of the future of a nation that can produce such human stock. They sing and cheer as they march around the arena. Silver cups and substantial collegiate scholarships are bestowed upon them. They richly deserve them. They can do anything from raising prize cattle and grain to rehabilitating a dreary attic bedroom in a farmhouse and making it a model of quiet, cozy decoration and furniture.

Magnates Beam on Marchers.

The magnates of the yards and of the exposition—Arthur Leonard, Henry Marshall, Alvin Sanders, B. H. Heide, O. T. Henkle, and Thomas Wilson—beam down upon them from the boxes and flags are dipped in their honor.

Look yonder! Cattle that move like

Arrest of Nelson's Widow a Mystery

SECRECY VEILS U. S. ACTIVITIES IN SLAYING CASE

The position of Mrs. Helen Nelson, widow of the slain "Baby Face" Nelson, in the government hunt for Dillinger gangsters was something of a mystery last night.

Department of justice officials admitted that she was in custody, but they would not tell where she was held or discuss the circumstances of her capture. All they would disclose was that she was arrested secretly at 10 o'clock on Thanksgiving night.

This was two days after Nelson killed two government men and was himself fatally wounded in a machine gun battle at Barrington. The federal men killed were Inspector Samuel P. Cowley and Special Agent Herman E. Hollis of the department of justice. Nelson's body was found the next day, last Wednesday, in Niles Center.

May Face Murder Charge.

In Washington last night Attorney General Homer S. Cummings intimated that Mrs. Nelson might be charged with complicity in murder. Mr. Cummings said she was with her husband and a second gunman in the Barrington battle, although Inspector H. H. Clegg in Chicago declined to commit himself on this.

Another element of mystery was the disclosure that Melvin Purvis, Chicago head of the federal division of investigation, had departed on a secret mission.

Meanwhile a report gained currency in Chicago that Mrs. Nelson had been the source of information on which Inspector Cowley and Agent Hollis were acting when they came upon Nelson and his companions, pursued them into Barrington, and fought the machine gun battle.

The rumor could not be verified, but it indicated that a wife's jealousy had played a part in the affair. Mrs. Nelson was reported to have become embittered against her husband because he had taken up with other women, probably while she was in federal custody last spring.

Report Another Woman Involved.

According to the story, her information as to Nelson's whereabouts was not given directly to federal agents, but was passed along through a close woman friend. This woman is said to have known where Mrs. Nelson could be found and, if the story is correct, her arrest by the government was chiefly to protect her against vengeance by gangster friends of Nelson.

The screen of secrecy thrown up by the government veiled not only the case of Nelson's widow but that of the second gunman in the Barrington battle. This man is reported to have been John Hamilton or Alvin Karpis, both Dillinger gangsters, but his identity has not been established. Inspector Clegg would not say yesterday whether Mrs. Nelson had disclosed his name.

Liable Under New U. S. Law.

Last June congress passed a law making it a federal crime to kill an employé of the United States government. If Mrs. Nelson is tried on the charge of complicity in murder it will be under this statute and probably in the federal court here, it was said.

Such action will not be necessary to send her to a federal prison, however. Last April she and two other gang women were arrested at the Little Bohemia resort in northern Wisconsin when the men of the Dillinger gang broke out of a federal trap there.

Mrs. Nelson was granted probation by Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone in Madison on a charge of harboring the gangsters. She disappeared and in June she was ordered arrested as a probation violator, so that she is subject to punishment for this.

Other Charges Considered.

Attorney General Cummings said he also is considering prosecuting her for theft of government property (Nelson and his companions fled from Barrington in the car of the slain government men) and for aiding a fugitive to cross state lines.

Mrs. Nelson, who is 21 years old, has two children. One, Arlene, 4 years old, lives at 5516 South Marshfield avenue with her paternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Gillis—Nelson's real name was Lester M. Gillis. The other child, Robert, 5 years old, is with one of Nelson's sisters, Mrs. Leona MacMahon, in Bremerton, Wash.

FIRE SWEEPS SETS, DESTROYS MACHINE SHOPS OF FILM STUDIO

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 5 [Wednesday]—[Special.]—Sweeping through 40 acres of outdoor sets at the Warner Brothers-First National studios in Burbank, fire near midnight threatened the sound stages and destroyed machine shops of the big film studio.

Fifteen persons were injured, two of them seriously. Rudolph Hoop, an actor, suffered a broken leg when a burning false front collapsed on him. Nick Potskoff, a workman, suffered a broken right leg, burns, and bruises.

Fire departments of the studio, Burbank, and Hollywood fought an hour's losing battle against the flames before calling for apparatus from downtown Los Angeles. The fire was under control by 2 a. m. Its origin was undetermined. The loss was estimated at $300,000.

FARMER BEN GETS CROONER'S VOICES OUT OF HIS WELL

EDMONTON, Alta., Dec. 4.—(AP)—From Farmer Ben Robert's well in the Red Water section came the voices of crooners, the music of dance orchestras, beauty talks, and fashion gossip.

Robert went to his well one recent frosty day to draw his morning pail of water. Instead he drew the strains of an orchestra, its tones pure and clear.

Why the well picks up radio broadcasts from stations near and far has not been satisfactorily explained, but Robert has his ground wire to the well cribbing.

Arrests Twins to Be Sure He Has the Right Man

Pana, Ill., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—It was necessary last night for Sherif R. O. Watson of Shelby county to arrest Wayne and Bud Lawson, 23, twins, so he could be sure he had the right man who was charged with extensive chicken thefts. Glenn Barton, 38, also was arrested on the same charge. Bud was released. Wayne and Barton were lodged in jail.

Jail Chicago Widow for Big Night in Paris

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Marguerite Chadwick, a merry widow from Chicago, is in jail charged with carrying—and using—concealed weapons; a Russian musician is in a hospital recovering from bullet wounds; a policeman is under arrest, and another one is at home nursing a bump on his head—all because in this rather drab Paris the woman was trying to forget those good times of her Chicago days.

Before being led off to Petite Roquette prison tonight to join Marjory Switz, American girl held as a spy; Arlette Stavisky, and other famous enemies of the third republic, Mrs. Chadwick, a ravishing 26 year old brunette who says she formerly lived at the Hotel Webster in Chicago, explained the whole complicated affair to the puzzled police officials.

Tells of Prominent Friends.

Mrs. Chadwick in her efforts to impress the police officials talked freely of her life in Chicago, of the prominent persons she knew there. Among others whom she mentioned was H. Wallace Caldwell of Oak Park, who was elected county commissioner at the last election and who once served as president of the Chicago board of education.

"I have been very much upset thinking about my life in Chicago ever since I got here," she said, "so I have been going out a lot to forget."

Marguerite did most of her heavy forgetting at a fashionable night club, the Boeuf sur le Toit, where she struck up a friendship with the leader of the orchestra, Andre Ekehjan, and Jerry Mango, who plays in the orchestra and who hails from Urbana, Ill.

Last night she was trying so hard to forget gay Chicago that she also forgot a jewel earring somewhere as she was leaving the establishment.

Aided by Ekehjan, she started hunting for it in front of the club. Two gendarmes, stationed near by, joined in the hunt.

And Then Something Happens.

What happened then is not very clear. There was an argument—between Marguerite and Ekehjan, according to some versions, and between her and the policemen, according to others.

Anyway, Mrs. Chadwick got in the last word, although she does not talk French. Her last word was a .45 caliber "gat" which she brought out of a jeweled handbag and down on the skull of one of the policemen.

The other policeman, Officer Gonnet, drew his revolver and fired. Maurice Giegas, another musician, fell with a bullet through his shoulder. Marguerite was disarmed and arrested, charged with attempting to murder Giegas, who, the police concluded, was her lover—it is not ladylike in France to use a gun except on your boy friend.

This morning an examination showed that Marguerite's gun was not loaded and that Giegas' wound was caused by a bullet of the caliber used by the police, so Officer Gonnet was charged with criminal carelessness, and Marguerite was released. Later she was rearrested on a double charge of carrying a prohibited weapon and using violence against an officer of the law.

VAGUELY RECALLS HER.

H. Wallace Caldwell, newly elected county commissioner, said last night that he "vaguely remembered" knowing a woman named Chadwick, but did not know if it was the one who so upset the dignity of the Paris police. He added that he had had only a very casual acquaintance with Mrs. Chadwick.

At the Webster hotel, 2150 Lincoln Park West, hotel employés reported that Mrs. Chadwick was a guest there for more than a year, leaving late in August. She lived quietly, was reserved, and apparently had few visitors or friends, they said.

PEBBLES IN TIN CANS ROUT STARLINGS FROM WASHINGTON TREES

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The capital's annual war on the pestiferous starlings opened tonight with a noisy din of pebbles rattling in tin cans.

Fifty men stood beneath tall trees on some of Washington's busiest streets and hoisted long poles into bare branches. Tin cans tacked onto the poles were shaken vigorously, every shake disturbing the birds gathered for their nightly repose.

The starlings flew away, but they came back again. It is hard—as the capital has learned—to rout them out for good. However, the fifty men, all relief workers, were being paid 40 cents an hour, and they were prepared to stay all night if necessary.

The idea behind the can rattling is that if the birds can't sleep for noise they will fly away and stay away. The experiment thus far has caused them to move from one place where they are not wanted to another where their absence is in turn vigorously sought for.

Mother Files Dramatic Plea to Win Gloria

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt today received a further setback in her efforts to obtain custody of her 10 year old daughter, Gloria, from Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the child's aunt.

By unanimous decision the Appellate division of the state Supreme court denied a writ of peremptory mandamus through which she attempted to amend the custody decision of Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew.

The court admitted Mrs. Vanderbilt has the right to appeal from Justice Carew's decision, but declined to order the justice to make his terms of custody more specific or to definitly grant an appeal.

Under his decision Mrs. Whitney received principal custody of the child.

Mother Files Petition.

In her petition Mrs. Vanderbilt pointed out that the hearings before Justice Carew had continued nearly seven weeks, that many witnesses had been heard, and that 4,000 pages of testimony were taken.

"On Nov. 15," Mrs. Vanderbilt's petition said, "counsel only were present at a session held in the court's chambers. The court stated that it had decided that it would not permit the infant to live the life it had lived between the time its father died until June, 1932, at which time the child went to Mrs. Whitney.

Cites Religious Phase.

"The court stated at that time that the child's nurse, Emma Sullivan Keislich, should be discharged. I was charged with the responsibility of bringing the child up in the Catholic faith.

"The official's stenographer refuses to furnish my counsel with a copy of the minutes of that session.

"In the interim between the submission of the orders by my counsel and Mr. Smyth [Herbert C. Smyth, council for Mrs. Whitney], and the actual signing of the 'final order,' the court below made radical changes.

"Apparently no one is more surprised at these changes than Mr. Smyth, for in an article printed in the Sun Nov. 22, he is quoted as saying:

"'I was surprised to perceive on reading Justice Carew's order that its finding of unfitness was far more drastic than in the one I had prepared.'

"The court has refused to make a final disposition of the custody of my child—and has left the proceedings suspended in midair. The court has adjudged my child a ward of the Supreme court of the state of New York, which would seem to indicate that the court retains supervision over my child, may regulate its life every minute of the day, and may change the decree in regard to custody, religion, and residence.

"My reputation has been destroyed by the decision of the court below and every person who was mentioned in this proceeding has been attacked and branded.

"Having been wrecked and destroyed and having been deprived of my most cherished possession, my child, I now find myself in a serious predicament—that there is a grave question as to whether I have the right even to appeal to this court from the decision of the court below."

GET NO TRACE OF ULM, FORCED TO LAND ON OCEAN

Naval Planes and Ships Take Up Hunt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, T. H., Dec. 4.—Two dozen United States navy boats and as many more vessels of the native fishing fleet carried into the night the search for Flight Commander Charles T. P. Ulm and two companions who made a forced descent on the sea this morning. The English built monoplane Star of Australia was out of gas and the flyers did not know their position.

Through the daylight hours 18 navy seaplanes and two army amphibians followed courses angling fanwise from Honolulu to an arc 250 miles out. The navy aviators scanned the sea, but were returning to their bases tonight with nothing to report.

The Dollar liner President Coolidge, which was nearest Ulm and last to hear from him, steamed to an area about 200 miles from Honolulu, calculated as the probable place of his descent, and found no trace of the flyers. The Matson freighter Maliko, 275 miles from Honolulu, held its position to wait for a possible rescue, but had no call.

Few Reports at Night.

Ulm, with Co-Pilot George M. Littlejohn and Navigator-Radio Operator John Leon Skilling, took off from San Francisco at 3:41 Pacific time [1:41 p. m. Chicago time] yesterday on the 2,408 mile first leg of a projected flight from California to Australia, charting a course for a commercial air line.

They flew smoothly and sent few reports during last night. In the early morning hours they were in contact with the President Coolidge, which had stayed brilliantly lighted all night and had a searchlight beam directed straight up. Shortly before dawn Ulm reported he was running into rain squalls, later that his gas was running low, then that he had lost direction.

Frantically at 9:08 a. m. [1:38 p. m. Chicago time] Ulm sent a message: "Going down into sea now. Plane will float couple of days."

He continued with a stream of S O S signals which were so weak only the President Coolidge received them. Later he messaged:

"We are turning into the wind. Come pick us up," and later, "On water now. S O S."

Messages Cease.

At 9:30 a. m. the messages ceased and searchers groped blindly for the position Ulm was unable to give them. Army and navy men believed Ulm was incorrect when he once reported he was to the southeast. The navy base at Pearl harbor sent out seaplanes in six groups of three. The army base at Wheeler field sent out the only two amphibians it had available.

The coast guard cutter Itasca had already put to sea when Ulm's last distress signals were heard here. At intervals the Itasca was followed by the coast guard boats Tiger [from Hilo] and Mizpah, 18 submarines, and the mine layers Beaver, Widgeon, and Sea Gull. The native fishing boats in the search area and those going out joined the search.

The plane has no pontoons, but with 605 gallon gas tanks empty may float for some time, perhaps days, on a calm sea. The men have no life raft, but have a water distiller and some sandwiches.

Weather Becomes Clear.

As the search for Ulm began the weather had cleared here and it was thought the calm sea may extend as far as his position.

Ulm's radio transmitter operated from a wind-driven generator, and his signal was heard both here and at San Francisco while he was in the air. The surface wind is sufficient only for a weak signal.

The plane flew smoothly as Ulm left San Francisco and passed the liner Lurline 500 miles out. At 1,000 out he wirelessed "everything O. K." At an estimated 1,360 miles out he was in touch with the President Coolidge and at 4 a. m. Honolulu time [8:30 a. m. Chicago time] the Coolidge estimated Ulm was 500 miles from Honolulu.

Begs for Beacon Signal.

Ulm's distress soon became evident. He pleaded for the radio directional beacon. Honolulu stations tried to tell him this had been in continuous operation at Makapuu point near Honolulu since midnight. It was then first learned Ulm was completely off direction.

He added that he was flying at 12,000 feet and the weather was not very good. Also it was evident that at times [illegible] not listening or was too busy to listen to the messages from Honolulu and San Francisco wireless stations.

"We have very little gasoline left," said Ulm's next message. "We need the beacon urgently. We do not want to have to give the S O S. Please shake them on the beacon."

Shortly after 8 a. m. [12:30 p. m. Chicago time] Ulm sent out a general emergency call and three navy planes dashed to the search. At 8:15 a. m. Ulm estimated he had enough gas for 45 minutes' flying.

"I do not know if I am south or north of the islands," Ulm reported. "I must get the beacon soon."

At 8:30 a. m. [1 p. m. Chicago time] Ulm asked the army and navy bases here to stand by.

"Will land in the sea," he continued. At 8:55 a. m., after a battle of nearly two hours, he sent an S O S. At the same time he said he was south of Honolulu, but was heading back toward his plotted course.

By the time Ulm sent his "landing on sea" message the navy air base was sending out planes in groups of three and surface boats were soon on their way.

SEERESS 'SLEEPS' ON $290; NURSE WAKES TOO LATE

Miss Gertrude Tice, 35 years old, a nursemaid in the home of R. S. Rush, 1160 North Sheridan road, Lake Forest, was disconsolate last night about the future and bitter about the past.

For somewhere an "Indian" woman was "sleeping" on Miss Tice's $290.50. This was meant to bring Miss Tice good fortune in a love affair and $50 interest. Last night Miss Tice was doubtful of the efficacy of the fortune teller's method, and Police Chief Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest was frankly skeptical.

On Tuesday the dark skinned woman appeared at the Rush home and persuaded Miss Tice to invest 50 cents in a palm reading. But, as the "Indian" explained, if the spirits were to perform in suitable manner some "important" money must be laid on the line. Of course, the "Indian" added, all would be returned after she had "slept" on it sufficiently.

So Miss Tice gave. Tuesday it was $5 in addition to the 50 cents. Wednesday, $20, as the future of her romance brightened. Friday, $70, it being pay day, and Saturday Miss Tice parted with $195, drawn from a bank for the "Indian" to "sleep on." As she told Chief Tiffany last night it appears as if the Indian has a case of sleeping sickness and can't get off the money, for she has not returned.

POLICE CAPTAIN CHANGES TUNE; NOW IT'S SHRILL

When Supervising Captain John Prendergast of the Third police division first learned of the burglary of $3,000 worth of cloth and clothing from Abraham Woodman's tailor shop at 7807 South Racine avenue, he was inclined to treat it as a routine report.

Even on Monday, when he learned that the overcoats of twelve policemen were included in the loot, Capt. Prendergast was inclined to take a philosophical attitude toward the theft. "As policemen we can't take burglaries too much to heart," he said with flawless logic. "It might even spoil our good natures."

Yesterday, however, Capt. Prendergast was a changed man. "You get that burglar, and get him good and fast," was his unofficial order to the men of his command. "The son of a gun's got my pants."

Find Machete-Slashed Body of American; Cuban Seized

SANTIAGO, Cuba, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The machete-slashed body of an American identified as James McNenny, formerly of Jersey City, N. J., was found today near the town of Velasco. Soon after the discovery a Cuban named Baldomero Sera Lopez surrendered to military authorities near Holguin. They said he admitted he had killed McNenny, who was his brother-in-law, because of misconduct with his [Sera's] wife.

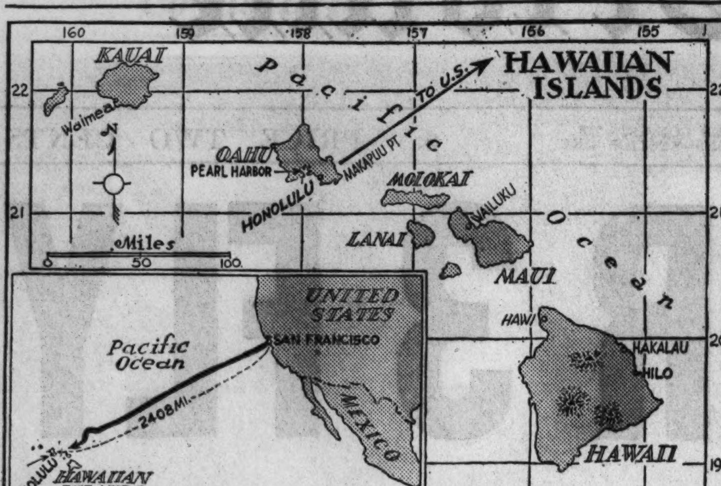
SEARCH GOES ON FOR ULM'S PLANE



Searchers for the flyer Charles Ulm and two companions are combing an area off Oahu and Molokai Islands in the direction of the United States as shown in the map. The flyers were forced to descend on the sea. The inset shows the Hawaiian Islands in relation to the United States and the black arrow the approximate area where Ulm lost direction and ran out of gas.

SHIP CAPTAIN TAKEN AS PLOTTER IN FAKE WAR DAMAGE CLAIM

Manchester, N. H., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Capt. Freeman Hatfield, 73, a modest retired seafaring man who has been raising chickens quietly on a small farm in nearby Candia, was held in jail tonight without bail on charges of defrauding the Canadian government of $71,276.72.

The aged skipper was arrested on his farm today by a royal Canadian mounted policeman who had spent two years trailing him. Capt. Hatfield is charged with conspiring to defraud the Canadian government by falsely obtaining reparations for a sailing vessel supposedly torpedoed by a German submarine during the war.

The vessel was the three master Gypsum Queen of which Capt. Hatfield was the owner. She sank at a disputed distance off the Irish coast in July, 1915.

MENDIETA ALTERS PLANS; WILL STAY AS CUBAN CHIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Dec. 4.—President Carlos Mendieta tonight announced he will remain provisional president of Cuba until a constitutional president has been elected. He had previously declared he would resign at the end of 1934.

The election of delegates to the constitutional convention, which will set the date for the presidential vote, was today postponed from March 5 to May 20.

Machado Sailing for Germany.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The foreign office today was surprised to learn that Gerardo Machado, exiled former president of Cuba; his erstwhile secretary of agriculture, Eugenio Molinet, and five other Cubans are aboard the German liner Frida Horn, due at Hamburg Dec. 10. Unofficial quarters expressed the opinion that Cuba would apply for the ousted president's extradition should he remain in Germany.

SHOOTS OWN LEG IN CAFE AS FOE CRINGES BY GIRL

William T. Collins, 45 years old, 5526 South Ada street, general organizer for the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers' Workmen of North America, was taken to the Bridewell hospital last night suffering from a shotgun wound in his left leg. Witnesses told police he shot himself accidentally while he and a companion who escaped attempted to shoot an unidentified man in the Horn Palace tavern at 4189 South Halsted street.

The headquarters of Collins' union is on the second floor just above the tavern. Collins and his companion, after drinking at the bar, strode to the rear and into a connecting dining room, where fifteen persons were eating. As they entered a lone diner leaped to his feet, seized Miss Bernice Shaw, 944 Montrose avenue, a waitress, cowered behind her, and shouted: "For God's sake, protect me. They've come to get me!"

As Collins struggled to draw a sawed off shotgun from beneath his coat, witnesses said, the weapon was discharged. According to bystanders, Collins and his companion fled, discarding two sawed off shotguns as they left. Shortly afterward Collins appeared for treatment at the Evangelical hospital and was arrested.

Two women and two men were questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty following the affair. They are Miss Marie Schram, 6829 South Carpenter street; Thomas Devero, 37 years old, 2578 West 59th street, business agent for the Live Stock Handlers' union; Walter Hageman, 42 years old, of 828 Wilson avenue, a clerk in the union office, and Miss Shaw. The women were allowed to go, but Devero and Hageman were held. Devero told officers that he had met Collins outside the tavern after the shooting and helped him to the hospital.

ARTHRITIS BEING CURED BY FEVER MADE BY RAYS

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 4.—(AP)—"Artificial fever" is being used successfully as a weapon to combat arthritis.

Dr. Howard P. Daub, roentgenologist of the Henry Ford hospital, Detroit, here for the convention of the Radiological Society of North America, explained that modern radiologists are working on the theory that fever is another of nature's methods of killing disease.

"While treatment of arthritis with 'artificial fever' is comparatively new," Dr. Daub said, "some types of arthritis, such as those from social diseases, are curable through use of 'artificial fever.' Reports show that all cases have been cured."

The "fever" is induced by placing plates on either side and sending current through the body.

HOOVER'S AID TO ARMS MAKERS IS TOLD AT INQUIRY

Manufacturers' Attack on 1925 Pact Bared.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—A successful concerted effort by gunmakers the world over, with the active assistance of American officials, to modify the 1925 Geneva convention for the control of international arms shipments was revealed today before the senate munitions committee.

Evidence was presented that Herbert Hoover, then secretary of commerce, interested himself to the extent of assembling American arms makers to receive their views.

At about the same time, in 1925, the man who became President was said to have arranged a meeting between the gunmakers and a group of state department officials and several of the delegates to the Geneva arms conference of that year.

Also Had Tilson's Aid.

The gunmakers had, too, the active help of John Q. Tilson, then a representative from Connecticut and the majority leader in the house. It was testified that he aided the munitions men to meet state department officials and wrote them that he had pleaded their case with the late Senator Burton of Ohio, chairman of the American delegation to the Geneva conference.

In addition, Tilson served as a technical adviser to the delegation. The arms manufacturers were so appreciative of his efforts on their behalf, in fact, that an official of the Winchester Arms company broached the idea that he become secretary of war in case Secretary Weeks should not recover from an illness then afflicting him.

An official of the du Pont company spoke appreciatively, too, of Mr. Hoover's work. A letter of his placed in the record said that by his efforts "the Geneva conference was prevented from adopting international agreements which would have been burdensome to American manufacturers."

Nye Charges Hindrance.

Chairman Nye, summing up the day's disclosures, said they presented "emphatic proof that, irrespective of the desire of the state department to accomplish something worth while, it was seriously hampered by the war department and the commerce department, which was at the beck and call of the munitions industry."

The meeting with Hoover and with some of the delegates was described in a memorandum drawn up by Maj. Aiken Simons, a du Pont official.

The memorandum quoted Hoover as telling the manufacturers that "due to the representations made by the war department, the navy department and the manufacturers' committee, the United States delegates would make reservations on the proposed draft which would render it harmless to American interests."

Principally the day saw three witnesses. Chairman Nye had grouped in front of him Irenee du Pont, Beebe, and M. S. Stone of the Colt Patent Firearms company.

Envoy Bingham Coming Home for Yule Holiday

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Ambassador Robert W. Bingham of the United States will celebrate Christmas in his home town of Louisville, Ky. Mixing business with his holidays, he will sail on Dec. 14 for New York, spend Dec. 22 and 23 in Washington, D. C., and arrive in Louisville Christmas eve. He plans to go shooting near Albany, Ga., in January.

UNCOVER ESCAPE PLOT; THREE JAIL GUARDS OUSTED

Three guards at the county jail were discharged yesterday and six prisoners were in solitary confinement last night after an escape plot had been uncovered by officials. A confession by one of the men serving a short sentence is said to have involved the others.

Three fragments of saw blades were found last night on a ledge in the bull pen adjoining tier F-1 of the jail, where the six prisoners were confined. Search for the tools was made after a panel was discovered sawed out of a washroom wall on the tier floor.

The discovery was made during a tour of inspection by Sherif John Toman, Warden Frank G. Sain, and Edward Denemark, superintendent of the Bridewell. Sherif Toman immediately ordered the discharge of Guards Harry Kiel, Thomas Sutton, and Michael Bellow.

"These guards could not have been on the job," the sherif said, "or that panel, large enough to allow a man to pass through, could not have been sawed."

A number of barred doors would have confronted the prisoners had they succeeded in breaking through the washroom.

Hair Gets Caught in Wringer; Woman Killed

Manitowoc, Wis., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. George Leonard, 49, mother of six children, today was killed in her home in the hamlet of Rockville, near Kiel, when her hair caught in the wringer attached to the electric washer, breaking her neck. Her body, slumped over the tub, was found by one of the younger children, Roy, 6, when he came home from school. The washer was still running. Dr. Gerald Rau, Two Rivers, coroner, said there would be no inquest.

JAPAN PRESSES FOR A 'REFORM' OF NAVAL TREATY

Conversations Hinge on "Equality of Security."

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The three power naval conversations are still in existence and are likely to continue. The Japanese delegates, while they still insist upon what they call a common upper level of naval strength and have shown no signs of departing from this, at least as a formula, again are displaying an almost frantic desire to continue the conversations. They seem genuinely trying to reach some accommodation which will permit either a renewal of the Washington treaty of 1922 or a substitution for it of something which will have the same effect in guaranteeing equality of security and peace in the Pacific.

This is the situation as gathered from official spokesmen after a meeting of the American and British delegations today. The delegates discussed what would be done if the Japanese carry out their declared intention of denouncing the Washington treaty within a week or two and what will happen if the conversations break down completely.

Americans Grow Impatient.

It is said that the Americans are getting impatient at the long dragging out of the talks, but the British hold out high hopes of still being able to reach some acceptable agreement and have asked for more time. The Americans, therefore, have declared their willingness to stay as long as necessary if there is any hope of getting anything out of it.

Even the denunciation of the Washington treaty by Japan is not taken too tragically. Denunciation simply means a two years' notice of intention to terminate in this case, and a lot may be done to change the minds of the Japanese or to secure a new treaty in two years.

Also, except technically, there is very little difference between denouncing the old treaty to frame an entirely new one and amending an old treaty without denunciation. Every one agrees that there must be some amendment, although the word "adjustment" seems to be preferred.

U. S. Backs Old Basis.

Even the Americans, who have been as hard boiled as the Japanese in maintaining their point of view, only hold that the "basis" of the Washington treaty must not be changed.

This obviously does not exclude a change in details which will not disturb the basis. That basis is equality of security, which is a far different thing from global equality of tonnage, as claimed by the Japanese. Such global equality would spell immense superiority for the Japanese in the Pacific.

It seems to be between these two conceptions that the possibility of an accommodation may arise. If equality of security can be obtained in some way without offending Japanese susceptibilities, there is reason to believe the United States will agree, but the Americans must be satisfied that it is real equality of security and not superiority.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

MARTIN INSULL'S TRIAL BEGINS; 4 JURORS SWORN

Expect 12 by Tomorrow; Tenseness Is Lacking.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

The long delayed state trial of Martin Insull on the charge of having embezzled $344,720 in 1931 from the Middle West Utilities company was begun yesterday before Judge Cornelius J. Harrington in the Criminal court building. Martin Insull was president of the Middle West company until the collapse of Samuel Insull's utilities empire.

Samuel Insull, Martin's brother, who was recently acquitted with 16 associates in the federal court, journeyed out on a street car to this far corner of the city to see the process of jury selection. He chatted with Martin and his attorneys during recess. Martin did not appear in court during the federal trial and Samuel Insull stated there that he had no knowledge of his brother's financial affairs.

Swear In Four Jurymen.

Four jurors were sworn yesterday afternoon and the indications were the jury would be completed today or tomorrow. Five peremptory challenges were used by the state and four by the defense yesterday. They have ten challenges on each side. The four men sworn in are:

EARL H. MORIN, 40 years old, 8235 Indiana avenue, clerk for Illinois Central railroad.

JOHN SHUBECK, 46 years old, 2727 North Monticello avenue, assistant superintendent Prudential Life Insurance company.

The state tendered a second panel late in the afternoon, but two of these were dismissed by the defense. The two tentatively accepted by both sides, but who may be rejected at any time before the entire panel of four is accepted and sworn, are:

RAY HARDING, 40 years old, 5226 Cuyler avenue, foreman for Borden Farm Products Company of Illinois.

The setting for this trial, the second effort on the part of the people to punish some one for the immense losses sustained in stocks of the far flung Insull companies, is in a quiet courtroom, sound proofed, with good lighting and attractive decorations. A youngish black robed judge sits on the bench. The lawyers talk in low tones, and the groups are small in comparison with the great huddle of lawyers and defendants in the federal trial.

The Persons of the Drama.

Here two assistant state's attorneys sit for the people. They are John O'Hora, who questions the veniremen, a gray haired veteran, and Earle C. Hurley, black haired and more youthful. In the Ernest Stevens embezzlement trial, involving similar issues, however, these two men succeeded in getting from the jury a verdict of guilty, which subsequently was overturned by the Supreme court. They are alone at the prosecution side of the table.

For the defense there are the able and adroit John Northup, former assistant state's attorney, and Ely M. Aaron. Mr. Northup's partner, Grenville Beardsley, sits at the table with him, and behind them, advising on the men in the box, is Edward Evans, veteran jury investigator.

The trial opened without the tenseness which characterized that of the elder Insull. Few spectators were in the courtroom. There was no wrangling among the lawyers. Everything proceeded quietly and easily.

Sixty Witnesses for State.

The state is expected to take about ten days in presenting its case. Nearly 60 witnesses have been named, the list including Washington Flexner, Paul H. Davis, John F. O'Keefe [a defendant in the mail fraud case]; Charles A. McCullough, former receiver for Middle West; Sam Howard, first receiver for Middle West; Daniel Green, present receiver and head of Middle West, and P. J. McEnroe.

One of the chief efforts of the defense, it was indicated yesterday in questions to the jurors, will be to break down any prejudice against the defendant that might arise because of his flight to Canada.

"Guilt is usually inferred when a man runs away," said one of the prospective jurors in answer to a question from Mr. Northup. This man was later excused. Many of the men called to the box had relatives or friends who had lost money in Insull stocks. These were all weeded out.

CANADIANS REFUSE ANY MODIFICATION OF SEAWAY TREATY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Dec. 4.—Canada is standing pat on the St. Lawrence seaway treaty as it stands with its provisions as to control of water diversion at Chicago and the employment of Canadian labor and materials on the Canadian section, despite the fact that under the treaty the United States would provide the larger amount of money.

That Canada has not consented to any modification of the provisions which proved objectionable to United States lawmakers is stated here on undoubted authority from cabinet circles. With the statement, furthermore, comes declaration that the dominion will not consent to any major modification.

The view of the Canadian government is represented as being that the equity of labor arrangement was agreed upon at the time of treaty negotiation and that no factor since has arisen to alter the merits of that agreement. The same view is applicable to the Chicago diversion clause, which is really one of the most important clauses to the compact in Canadian government eyes.

Train Speeding Through Tunnel Kills 5 Laborers

FLORENCE, Italy, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A railroad train rushing through a tunnel near the town of Migliarina today surprised 12 laborers, killing five of them. One of those who escaped flattened himself between the tracks.

For Settlements

Christmas dolls will be in the stockings of many children served by the settlements of the city, thanks to Northwestern university's co-eds. Women students on the Evanston campus have been spending their spare time dressing dolls to be distributed among the settlement children. Yesterday the first of the dolls were assembled in the Y. W. C. A. in University hall.

IDLE FOUR YEARS, MAN, 63, PLUNGES TO DEATH IN LOOP

Arthur D. Whipple, 63 years old, 7320 Phillips avenue, a merchandise manager for the Corticelli Silk company, 371 West Adams street, until it suspended business four years ago, plunged to his death from an eleventh floor window of the National Life Insurance building, 29 South La Salle street, yesterday afternoon.

His body struck in a courtway about 100 feet east of La Salle street. On the eleventh floor the police found an open window in a hallway and Whipple's hat and overcoat near by. A note in the coat identified him and directed the police to take the body to the Donnellan undertaking rooms, 77th street and Jeffery avenue.

Mrs. Nina Whipple, his widow, said he had been despondent because of failing health and inability to find employment.

"We are situated financially so that my husband did not have to work, but he wanted to do something to keep himself occupied," she said. Eye trouble prevented him from playing golf, reading and finding employment, she added.

New Buenos Aires Subway Found Unsafe; Closed

BUENOS AIRES, Brazil, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Buenos Aires' new subway was closed today, less than two months after its formal opening amid pomp and ceremony. The municipality issued an order barring its operation until certain safety devices, recently prescribed by the public works department, are installed. A series of derailments led to the order. The new subway is the city's third.

GIVES REPORTER SHE "WRONGED" A SCOOP BY HANGING HERSELF

Manchester, Conn., Dec. 4.—Mrs. Alice Blake, 26, kept her promise to Robert Carney, a reporter whom she felt she had wronged, by hanging herself in her police cell so that he could have a scoop.

When he got the word of her intention he went to the police station. He helped cut down her lifeless body. He wrote the story.

The local newspaper on which he is employed published several months ago a story accusing her of a criminal act. She accused Carney falsely of writing it, but promised to make restitution for misjudging him by giving him an exclusive on the next spectacular act in which she figured.

SCHOOL GIRL, 14, TELLS OF RAPE BY 12; QUIZ FOUR

The Shakespeare avenue police were holding four young men last night while they investigated the story of a 14 year old Carl Schurz High school girl who reported that she had been held a prisoner for forty-eight hours in a west side apartment by a dozen youths who raped her.

The student told the police that she met a young girl in a restaurant near the school last Thursday who invited her to a party the next day in a building on West Adams street. She said that when she went to the place two men forced her to undress. She was kept a prisoner until Sunday night, during which time a number of men visited the apartment and attacked her, she told the police.

Those held by the police are Roy Costa, 23 years old, 1210 McAlister place, a barber; his brother Joseph, 22; Christ Dattalo, 22, of 611 Lytle street, and Samuel Castagnino, 26, of 1307 Adams street. According to police the girl identified Roy Costa, Dattalo, and Castagnino, who have been arrested before as robbery suspects.

ROOSEVELT GOES TO THE FORE AS A MULE TRADER

Out-Harums David in a Farm Dicker.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Franklin D. Roosevelt, squire of Meriwether county, turned appraising eyes over two pair of mules on his 1,742 acre experimental farm over the hill from the Little White House this afternoon. His face lighted with the fever of barter as he went over the points of the animals.

Beside him stood Gene Black, the big horse and mule man from Thomaston, Ga. With equally speculative eyes he went over the outlines of a third pair of mules, a sorry looking duo.

Forming a ring about the protagonists in the reënactment of a pioneer scene were members of the "swimming pool cabinet" and newspaper men. Words of encouragement and quips poured from the sidelines.

How Blessed Are the Meek.

With all the guile of a David Harum Farmer Roosevelt emphasized the virtues of his team, chiefly the docility of the mournful duo. He then swept into a skillful portrayal of the defects of Black's brutes.

Black held his own for a time, but weakened under superior dickering ability. With a dubious frown he at length agreed to exchange one of his pair for that of the President, taking a few dollars to boot.

Squire Roosevelt accepted with broad grins congratulatiions on swinging another New Deal. The one which pleased him most came from Otis Moore, manager of the farm.

"My grandpappy rode them mules when he was a young 'un," Moore said as Dealer Black began a slow journey back to his stables with his acquisitions.

Congratulate the Mules.

Other swimming pool cabinet members roared approval. Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and Postmaster General James A. Farley congratulated the animals.

Before leaving his farm President Roosevelt announced he had changed his mind about selling forty head of Hereford beef cattle. He declared he would wait for a better price than the present market offers.

Last Friday the President confessed he was in the plight familiar to many farmers. He said he believed he would be forced to sell 40 cattle and complained the price—2½ cents a pound on the hoof—was "terrible."

2 "HYPNOTIZED" INTO MARRYING, THEY TELL JUDGE

Both principals were "hypnotized" into marrying each other, they testified yesterday at the hearing of the separate maintenance suit of Mrs. Margot Jensen Paulsboe, 50 years old, 3223 Diversey avenue, against Aimar Paulsboe, 46 years old, a former actor. Mrs. Paulsboe asked Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort to award her a judgment for $3,000 which she says her husband owes her.

Paulsboe blinked when his wife's lawyer, Norman Becker, showed him their marriage certificate. "If you say that's legal, your honor," Paulsboe said, "I guess we're married. I must have been hypnotized by that woman's money at the time."

"He hypnotized me by his actor's ways," Mrs. Paulsboe said when her turn came.

2,500,000 NEW HOUSES BUILT SINCE 1918 IN ENGLAND AND WALES

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Progress made in the United Kingdom's rehousing schemes was shown in a report from the ministry of health tonight, which stated that between the armistice and September of this year, nearly 2,500,000 new houses have been provided in England and Wales. About one-third of these were provided by local authorities and two-thirds by private enterprise.

Progressive expansion in private enterprise in house building without state assistance was shown to have been coincident with the development of the state's own slum clearance projects.

During the year ending in September more than 250,000 houses were privately built, 53 per cent more than in the previous 12 months and nearly double the total in either of the years immediately preceding 1933.

French Reject Plan to Tax Aliens to Balance Budget

PARIS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—France's budget of $3,140,000,000 for next year may be out of whack but the chamber of deputies today decided not to ask foreigners to help balance it. A proposed tax of 10 per cent on the salaries of foreigners employed in France, and an amendment providing an assessment of from 1 to 5 per cent, both were eliminated before the admittedly unbalanced budget was passed.

TWO BURGLARS SENT TO CELLS.

Samuel Bilow, 21 years old, 1209 Turner avenue, and Hyman Genson, 19, of 3313 Grenshaw road, were sentenced to a year in the Bridewell by Municipal Judge Lambert K. Hayes yesterday. They were charged with burglary.

RETURN PIQUETT OFFICE MATE TO JAIL FOR FRAUD

Harvey Castersen, 40 years old, who was freed on probation after serving thirty days of a six months' sentence for filing a false claim for a soldier's bonus, was ordered to the county jail in Milan, Mich., yesterday by Judge James H. Wilkerson to serve the remaining five months for violation of probation.

Assistant United States Attorney A. Bradley Eben told the court that Castersen organized the "New Deal Mortgage Service" immediately after he was granted probation. In this venture he shared offices at 228 North La Salle street with Attorney Louis Piquett, who is awaiting trial on a charge of harboring John Dillinger.

Mrs. Emma Arnesen of the Ontario hotel charged that Castersen sold some defaulted bonds for her, but failed to give her the proceeds of the sale.

MOTOR LICENSES SELL AT COUNTER HERE TOMORROW

The sale of 1935 Illinois automobile license plates "over the counter" will start tomorrow at 120 South Ashland avenue in the Chicago offices of Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes. Any applicant residing in Cook county may obtain his plates at this office.

The first batch of the new plates, some 70,000, arrived by mail yesterday. For the most part they were in the low numbers, reissued to persons requesting the same numbers as this year. The department rushed the plates out to facilitate handling of more than 1,500,000 applications, Mr. Hughes explained, though normally distribution does not begin until the first of the year.

COL. ROOSEVELT FOR NEW HANDS AT HELM OF G. O. P.

Constructive-Liberal His Goal for Party.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The Republican party will return to power as a force of "constructive liberalism," Col. Theodore Roosevelt told the National Republican club here tonight. The eldest son of the late President Theodore Roosevelt declared his party "must put new faces in the picture." Party leaders must turn toward the future or resign their posts of command.

The call to victory on which he concluded his arguments was "shock troops must be young troops." His call was issued to the young men and women of the party. His speech was chiefly an analysis of the election in November.

Finds G. O. P. Still Strong.

He argued, with detailed comparisons of votes, that the Republican party, having polled 13,500,000 ballots, was by no means dead. Its defeat, he declared, had been suffered in places where the party organization and candidates had been regarded as out of touch with the woman and woman who lead the common life.

Col. Roosevelt visioned three paths for the Republican party. One was to continue in the ultra-conservative path, pointing with pride to the past, opposing change. Another was to assume radical agrarianism, which he declared unsound. The third was to adopt constructive liberalism. In the latter past, he declared, lay success.

Recalls Large Vote Cast.

"The national committee," Col. Roosevelt said, "has properly drawn the attention of the country to the fact that 13,500,000 people voted the Republican ticket in the elections this autumn. As a matter of fact, the Republicans polled a larger percentage of the vote than they did in 1932. Specifically, whereas in 1932 the Republicans polled only 42 per cent of the vote, this year in 1934 they polled 45 per cent of the vote, representing a gain of 3 per cent.

"Our mission now is to rebuild ourselves nationally and to do so we must work from the grass roots up.

State Elections as Tests.

"Let us take first the gubernatorial elections in the larger states that have been normally considered as Republican, and which the party must gain if it is to return to power nationally. These are New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Iowa, Kansas, and the New England states, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut.

"All of these states, with the exception of Pennsylvania and Kansas, had Democratic governors before the election. In the election the Republicans lost the governorship in Pennsylvania to the Democrats, reëlected the governor in Kansas and elected governors in both New Jersey and Michigan.

"In all of the states where the Republicans lost the governorship the candidates were connected in the minds of the people with the old Republican machine, i. e., with ultraconservatism and what is generally called reaction.

Cites Republican Victors.

"So much for the gubernatorial situation. We now come to the question of the senators. In Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and Maine there were elections. Before the elections there were Republicans in the United States senate representing all of these states but Massachusetts and New York. At the elections this autumn all these Republicans were defeated except Senator Vandenberg in Michigan and Senator Hale in Maine. Senator Vandenberg is credited in the people's minds as a liberal and the Michigan Republican machine has been revamped, bringing young men and new faces to the front all over the state.

"In Senator Hale's case he won by only 1,700 votes out of some 277,000 that were cast. Senator Hale is accepted by the people as strongly conservative, but in Maine the name Hale has a traditional significance of great value and he has a considerable personal following."

Col. Roosevelt discussed Republican gains and losses by percentages to show gains for liberal and constructive G. O. P. groups and losses for ultraconservatives. He added:

Offers Party Alternatives.

"We believe it vital that the present national administration should be defeated," Col. Roosevelt added. "We will never defeat them if we refuse to face facts and fight one another bitterly for fragments of a disintegrating machine. That means that each of us should be willing either to assume the burden or to step out, as circumstances direct, regardless of individual convenience or ambition.

"There would seem to lie before our party three choices: [1] to go ultraconservative, which I believe would spell disaster to the country and death to the party; [2] to go to the extreme type of agrarian radicalism, which I believe is unsound economically and would ultimately bring ruin on the country, and [3] to reorganize long modern and progressive lines, building ourselves up as constructive liberals—liberal in that we would search for solutions to every problem with an open mind, recognizing the failures in our present social structure and striving to correct them; constructive to the extent that we would abandon no sound policies and that we would demand to see where the end would be before we embarked on untried schemes."

Fears Brief Success.

For the first course, if success came, "the ultra-conservatives' term of office would be brief and the pendulum would swing left again with increased violence to extreme radicalism," Col. Roosevelt said.

Col. Roosevelt opposed the second as injurious to the people.

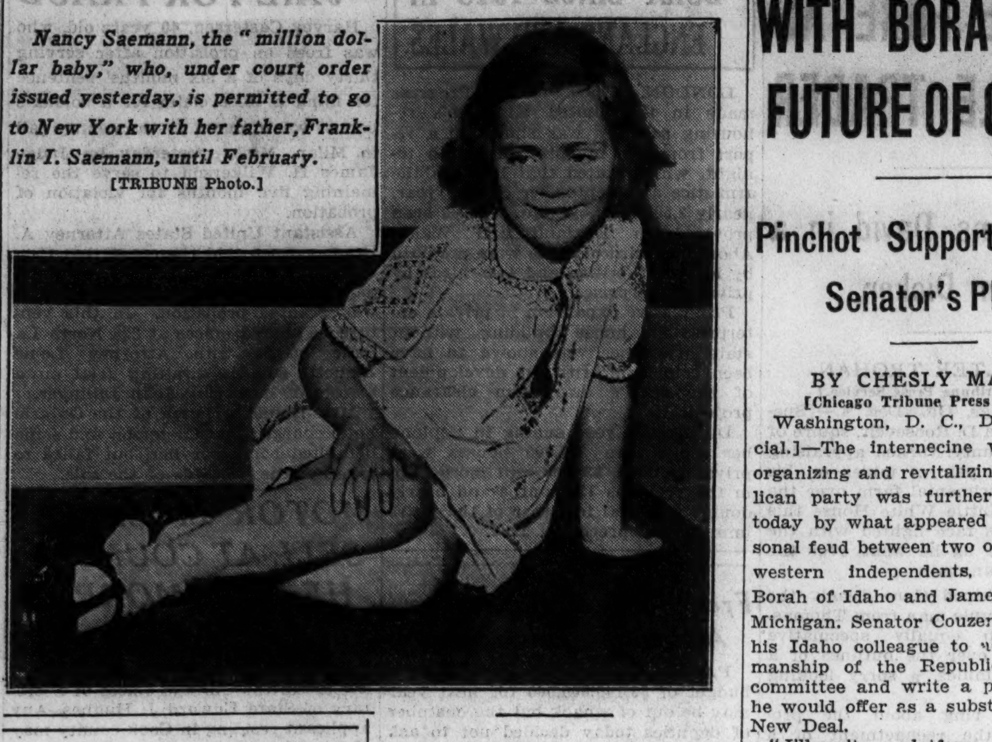
"The third alternative," he said, "and the goal toward which I believe we should turn our eyes, is to remodel our own party and build up as its core a group of liberals—but constructive liberals.

"We must bring into the picture new faces, personalities in which the people have confidence. This is no slur on the men who have carried the battle and the burden, for there arrives in the lives of most public figures a time when the scars they carry disable them for further service in the front lines. Shock troops must be young troops."

Minister Named Speaker of New Jersey Assembly

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Rev. Dr. Lester H. Clee, a beginner in politics, an advocate of temperance, and an opponent of gambling, today was selected by his Republican colleagues as speaker of the 1935 New Jersey assembly. Dr. Clee, 46 years old and pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Newark, is the first minister to be named speaker of the lower house and is believed to be the first "freshman" to hold that post.

Father Keeps "Million Dollar Baby"



Nancy Saemann, the "million dollar baby," who, under court order issued yesterday, is permitted to go to New York with her father, Franklin I. Saemann, until February.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Father Is Victor

Nancy Fahrney Saemann, 5 year old heiress to the fortune of the late Peter Fahrney, Oak Park millionaire, may go with her father, Franklin I. Saemann, to live in New York. Court permission was given yesterday for the second time by Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude, who was hearing Saemann's plea that the court vacate a recent stay of the original order entered on Nov. 21.

Judge Trude ruled in Saemann's favor after questioning the child, brought to court by her aunt, Miss Charlotte Saemann, 642 Forest avenue, Oak Park, with whom the "million dollar baby" has been living since her father divorced her mother, the former Myrtle Fahrney. Before issuing the order Judge Trude was closeted for 45 minutes with opposing lawyers. Afterward he denied the hearing was a "Gloria Vanderbilt session." He ruled that either Saemann or his attorney, Frank E. Cantwell, must produce Nancy in court on Feb. 8.

Nancy apparently was unperturbed by her court appearance. She visited willingly with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Fahrney of Oak Park, but told Judge Trude she "liked Aunt Charlotte best."

Turkish Dictator to Give Women Greater Vote Rights

ISTANBUL, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The right to vote in national elections and to serve in the national assembly would be extended to Turkish women under a bill being drafted by the council of the People's party as a part of Dictator Kemal Pasha's modernization program. The bill provides that women over 30 may vote. They are now enfranchised only for local elections.

Pinchot Supports Idaho Senator's Plan.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The internecine war over reorganizing and revitalizing the Republican party was further complicated today by what appeared to be a personal feud between two of the leading western independents, William E. Borah of Idaho and James Couzens of Michigan. Senator Couzens challenged his Idaho colleague to assume chairmanship of the Republican national committee and write a platform that he would offer as a substitute for the New Deal.

"I'll write a platform and the first plank in it will call for taxation of tax exempt securities," Senator Borah retorted. This was somewhat personal, since it is well known that Mr. Couzens, despite his speeches in the senate inveighing against the concentration of wealth, is worth 30 to 40 million dollars and has most of it invested in tax exempt bonds.

Pinchot Visits Borah.

Aside from the Couzens outburst, the movement headed by Senator Borah to throw off the leadership of the eastern Old Guard and liberalize the party seemed to be gaining momentum. Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, an insurgent Republican since the Bull Moose days, conferred with Borah and came out of his office lauding the progressive movement. Pledging his full support, Pinchot declared:

"I am convinced that Senator Borah is absolutely right in his demand that the Republican party should unite behind a thoroughly progressive platform. I didn't discuss the question of personnel with him, but it is perfectly obvious that the leadership of the revitalized Republican party must be for men rather than for money.

"I believe the Republican party has every prospect of coming back, under the proper leadership and issues, and that this can be done by 1936."

Borah Plans Reply.

Senator Borah, who has demanded the resignation of Henry P. Fletcher as chairman of the party's national committee, is scheduled to speak before a gathering of young Republicans in New York on Dec. 13, and he said today he would make this an occasion for a considered reply to Fletcher.

Refusing to resign, Mr. Fletcher had told Senator Borah the proper place to present "a new declaration of principles" was in the halls of congress, in the form of legislation presented by the Republican minority.

Borah declined to make any comment on Fletcher's suggestion that he make his demand for a reorganization specific, but indicated that he would expound his proposals fully in New York. He said he received a delegation of young Republicans today asking him to speak in Germantown, Pa., on Dec. 13 but had to decline because of the New York engagement.

Couzens' statement also accused Senator Borah of clamoring for reorganization and picking fault with the New Deal without offering a substitute, and even compared him to David A. Reed, defeated conservative Republican senator from Pennsylvania.

"I suggest," said Couzens, "that those who are supporting Mr. Borah's proposal that Mr. Fletcher resign offer him the chairmanship of the Republican national committee. I am just as anxious as Mr. Roosevelt is to have the country recover, but I do not intend to assume a destructive attitude, whether I be a Borah Republican or a Fletcher Republican, or neither.

"Certain prominent Republican senators have been carrying on devastating campaigns, or at least they have endeavored to make them devastating, against certain agencies of the New Deal. Borah did it in Idaho and Senator Reed did it in Pennsylvania, and I can't see much difference between the two.

"Although these campaigns were made by two outstanding senators whom the public regards as representing different factions in the Republican party, neither one was successful because they offered no substitutes for the programs they criticized."

Couzens assailed talk of drafting a platform at this time, saying nothing could be done until the administration made known its legislative program during the next few months. The idea of forming an opposition party without knowing what it is to oppose is preposterous, Couzens said.

Another western insurgent, Charles L. McNary of Oregon, minority leader of the senate arrived on the scene today and was expected to play a leading rôle in the fight to reorganize the party along more liberal lines, particularly in the legislative phase of the program. McNary said he wanted to "smell things out" before disclosing his plans, but his views were freely expressed when he caught a train in Portland.

Against Spreading Alarms.

He attacked the Bankhead cotton reduction act and price fixing in general, but said the time had come for the Republican party "to quit spreading alarms and extolling the sanctity of the constitution and get down to the level of human sympathies."

MORRO CASTLE LINE OFFICIAL PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO CHARGES

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Henry E. Cabaud, executive vice president of the Cuba Mail Steamship company, which operated the ill-fated Morro Castle, was arraigned today before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe on three indictments charging willful negligence in connection with the disaster. He pleaded not guilty. After furnishing bail of $2,500 he was paroled in the custody of his attorney.

Mr. Cabaud was indicted yesterday along with acting Capt. William F. Warms and Chief Engineer Eben Starr Abbott after a grand jury investigation which lasted three months. The fire cost the lives of 124 persons.

Although he was named in three indictments, the line which Cabaud represents was named in a fourth and he also entered a plea of not guilty to this indictments as an officer of that line. Two of the other indictments named him alone while the third named him and the line.

The Cuba Mail Steamship company is a subsidiary of the Ward line.

CONFISCATE 300 SLOT DEVICES IN MONTHS' DRIVE

The police drive against slot machines and other gambling devices has resulted in the confiscation of between 300 and 400 slot machines and as many punch boards during the last month, it was announced by the City Custodian William Dubach yesterday.

Capt. Martin Mullin, in charge of the gambling squad, has turned over to the custodian more than 200 of the machines which were seized in raids made by his squads. According to Capt. Mullin nearly all the machines were taken in cigar and candy stores and taverns.

"My squads were given special instructions to canvass all candy and cigar stores in the vicinity of schools to insure that no machines were exhibited to tempt school children to lose their lunch money," Capt. Mullin said.

JURY CONVICTS CONTRACTOR ON FORGERY CHARGE

Nick D'Andrea, 42 years old, general contractor of Chicago Heights, was convicted of forgery yesterday by a jury in the court of Judge Grover C. Niemeyer. D'Andrea faces a sentence of one to fourteen years in the penitentiary if his motion for a new trial is overruled on Dec. 27.

D'Andrea forged a $50,000 certified check to cover a bid on the west side intercepting sewer, a PWA sanitary district project, according to Assistant State's Attorney Thomas Dodd Healy. Evidence showed that D'Andrea obtained a $5,000 certified check from the Citizens National Bank of Chicago Heights on March 28.

The state held that he then had a duplicate stamp made of the bank's certification on the back of the check and made a new check for $50,000. Using his newly made stamp, D'Andrea forged the name of the bank cashier on the new check and turned it in to cover his bid, the state charged. The asserted forgery was discovered after D'Andrea's bid of $411,700 had been found to be low. The bids were thrown out and new bids taken.

SABATH TO ORDER TITLE COMPANY'S BOOKS EXAMINED

Realty Bond Hearings Are Resumed Here.

Investigation of the records of the Chicago Title and Trust company will be ordered by the congressional committee which is examining real estate bondholders' reorganizations, according to Representative A. J. Sabath, chairman of the committee. The hearings reopened yesterday in room 757 of the United States courthouse.

The investigation of the trust company was recommended by Charles W. Freedman, a certified public accountant, who testified that at the committee's request he had examined the records of the reorganization of the American Bond and Mortgage company of 169 properties on which it had issued bonds. The Chicago Title and Trust company acted as receiver, trustee, or escrowee in many of these properties.

Scope of Accountant's Report.

Freedman's report dealt with the workings of the protective committee for holders of first mortgage bonds, totaling $111,000,000, issued by the American Bond and Mortgage company, now in receivership. This committee was organized in October, 1929, and its members were Craig Hazelwood, Dayton Keith, and Joseph E. Otis, Chicago bankers; Frederick C. Curry, Wallace T. Perkins, and James Robertson, New York bankers; Frank W. Blair of Detroit, and W. K. Halleth and Walter J. Sugden of Boston. Chicago counsel for the committee was the law firm of Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautman, Levinson & Morse.

With the exception of Sugden, Freedman said, none of the committee members had personal investments in the properties.

"Yet this self-appointed committee virtually decided who should be counsel," Freedman read from the report, "who should be depository for the bonds, also what fees should be charged by the committee, and what control it should exercise after reorganization of the properties."

In the reorganization of 71 of the 169 properties the committee directly handled $10,306,000 for the bondholders. Of this amount the committee members took $734,443, lawyers received $540,140, and the depositories received $320,645, a total of $1,595,228, or more than 15 per cent of all the money handled.

Recalcitrants Get Only 15 Cents.

On this basis the committee, attorneys, and depositories would receive $2,352,000 more in reorganizing the 98 remaining properties.

In addition to recommending the investigation of the Chicago Title and Trust company, Freedman suggested examinations of the books of banks and "five or six firms of attorneys" with reference to their affiliations with the trust company and "apparent exorbitant fees."

Freedman and his partner, W. P. Ackerman, recounted in detail the reorganization of the Engineering building, now the Wacker-Wells building. The American Bond and Mortgage company issued $3,750,000 first mortgage bonds on this building. There was a default in interest and principal payment, and the Chicago Title and Trust company became receiver in June, 1930. The bondholders who did not deposit their bonds with the protective committee received less than 15 cents on the dollar, Ackerman said.

Among the fees paid in the foreclosure and reorganization were $89,042 to the Chicago Title and Trust company as depositary, receiver, and escrowee; $88,850 to the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, as counsel for the committee and for the complainants in the receivership suit, and $66,104 to the committee.

U. S. EXECUTIVE PAY ROLL TOPS 100 MILLION A MONTH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The monthly pay roll in the executive branch of the government passed the 100 million dollar mark in October and 1,944 new pay rollers were added during the month, bringing the total up to 680,181.

Since Feb. 28, 1933, just before the new administration came in on a platform calling for drastic economies in government, the New Deal burocracy has been expanded by a total of 116,694 employés in the executive department.

The number of employés long has been higher than any previous figure since 1919, when the world war demobilization got under way, but October was the first month in which the pay roll passed the 100 million dollar mark.

It was $101,888,573, according to the announcement made by the civil service commission today. This is an average of 1 billion, 200 million dollars a year for salaries in the executive department civil branch, or more than one-third of the total annual revenues of the country.

These figures do not include the legislative, judicial, or military branches of the government or the employés of the District of Columbia, but they include both classified and unclassified positions in the civil branch of the executive department.

The greatest gain in employment shown by the agencies of the government, old or New Deal, during October was made by the Tennessee Valley authority, with net additions of 452 permanent employés. This brought the total number of employés in this vast social experiment organization up to 12,360, and its operations got under way just a little over a year ago.

Site of Cabin

Services commemorating the 260th anniversary of the arrival of Father Jacques Marquette, S. J., first white resident of the Chicago area, were held yesterday at the northeast pylon of the Michigan avenue bridge. The pylon marks the approximate site of the cabin in which Father Marquette lived from Dec. 4, 1674, until March, 1675.

Students of Mundelein, St. Xavier, and Rosary colleges and Loyola university, representatives of the French war veterans and Blue Devils, Chief Whirling Thunder and Jessie Red Wing of the Winnebago tribe heard speakers pay tribute to the Jesuit missionary and placed wreaths on the monument.

French Consul Rene Weiller and the Rev. J. V. Jacobsen, S. J., of Loyola university spoke at the service. Judge John P. McGoorty presided and Quin O'Brien, representing Mayor Kelly, read the proclamation which designated Dec. 4 of each year as "Father Marquette day, in honor of the Jesuit priest whose name marks a milestone in Chicago's history."

TAXING EXPERTS PREDICT LOWER LEVY ON REALTY

Illinois Is Hit by Cost of Relief Plans.

French Lick, Ind., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Some tax experts at the National Association of State Tax Administrators' annual session here hope for additional reductions on real estate.

Clarence A. Jackson, reëlected secretary-treasurer of the association, is director of the gross income tax division of Indiana. He said today state and local property taxes for next year have been reduced to $92,000,000, compared with $99,000,000 this year and $140,000,000 two years ago.

Talks of Virginia's Efforts.

William H. Stauffer, economist of the Virginia department of taxation, said "there is no state tax on real or tangible personal property that was made possible by the net income tax law and the intangibles and inheritance tax statutes." He added state expenditures were 30 per cent lower this year and held hopes for a greater reduction later.

Neil H. Jacoby of the Illinois department of finance, said further reduction of property taxes in his state will not be possible in the near future because of poor relief.

Dixwell L. Pierce, secretary of the state board of equalization of California, said there is no hope for an early substantial reduction of governmental expenditures there.

Claims Michigan Savings.

Gradual property tax reductions and reduced cost of operating the state government, it was said, is being enjoyed in Michigan and will continue to be, according to Chester M. Martin, chairman of the state tax commission of that state.

Fred E. Stewart of the California board of equalization was reëlected president of the association; A. J. Maxwell, commissioner of revenue of North Carolina, was elected vice president; Miss Ruth Carmichael of Indianapolis wes reëlected executive secretary.

Expect to Save Millions.

A tax information service which sponsors said will save the various states large sums of money annually was established by the association at the final session this afternoon. Through its functions, information will be available as to operation and success of all forms of state tax administration.

Through the service states contemplating forms of taxation new to them will be provided with data showing the results and operation of similar laws elsewhere.

U. S. COLLECTS ONLY 388 MILLIONS TAXES ON LIQUOR 1ST YEAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—During the first year of repeal, which closes tomorrow night, Americans will have drunk about 42 million gallons of hard liquor and 35 million barrels of beer, official figures indicated today.

Although the first year since prohibition has brought relief to the national thirst, it has been a disappointment to the federal treasury. Liquor taxes, especially tarifs on imported liquors, have failed to live up to expectations.

Approximately 388 million dollars in revenues will have been collected by the federal government, exclusive of the sums which states and cities have collected from liquor taxes and licenses. Liquor taxes, especially the levy on beer, have become a major federal revenue source.

Despite these facts, the federal collections are disappointing. Of the 388 millions collected, about 350 millions has been in internal revenue taxes assessed at the rate of $2 a gallon on both domestic and imported liquors and at the rate of $5 a barrel on beer. This is 120 millions short of the 470 million dollars estimated for the first year.

Champion Cattle Thrill Spectators.

kings are coming down the long corridors that encircle the arena from their shower baths.

Every hundred yards of your progress through the long aisles of stalls and pens in the wings of the new amphitheater, which flies a dozen American flags from its green roof, you find yourself asking a dozen questions.

Curling Irons—For Cows!

What are those herdsmen doing with curling irons and emery paper and oil in that pen? They are marcelling the coats and polishing the horns of their cattle to make them pretty when they march and countermarch before the eyes of the supreme court sitting in the arena.

Everything is on a colossal scale. What is in those boxes—some of them covered with glass and some with wire netting? If placed end to end they would extend for nearly a mile. They contain the choicest specimens of various grains and grasses raised in the United States and Canada since the International of last year. Here, for convenience in examination and comparison, they are ranged in three and four tiers and they make an exhibit 1,200 feet long. Viewing them even with a layman's uninformed eyes, you are astounded by the riches they represent. Plaintively you ask yourself why in so vast and so fat a land anybody should be in want.

For what are those little motor driven cars made up in trains of three or four cars each that go scurrying through the corridors and halls of the exhibition buildings and along the driveways outside them? They are for the hourly, even half hourly, cleaning up of rubbish. The International is a cleanly housekeeper and keeps 350 of the cars at work. You have to be a cleanly housekeeper when you are exhibiting in compact though extensive quarters 12,500 animals for eight days. For the sake of the animals as well as of the humans all must be decent. One may fairly add "especially for the sake of the animals," for they are worth nearly five million dollars.

Sleep Beside Exhibits.

In some of the stalls ranchmen, shepherds, and grooms are lying asleep alongside their exhibits, very seldom leaving them, night or day, so highly prized and highly priced are the animals.

But anybody who thinks that the International is solely a fat stock or a prize cattle show misses its whole point. It is a joyous demonstration of high skill in many farm activities from sheep herding—demonstrated in the arena every night and at today's and next Saturday's matinée by collies that possess the swift strategic sense of a Stonewall Jackson—to specimens of handicraft and kitchen craft on view in the boys and girls' clubhouse, which is the Chicago headquarters of the deft members of the 4-H club.

That structure is worth an hour of any American's time because it enkindles his confidence in oncoming generations. Doubly is it worth an hour because very courteous and well informed ladies and gentlemen are there to explain the 4-H exhibits and their economic and cultural significance.

Every exhibit—rehabilitated furniture, garments, glassed "emergency dinners," cotton, grains, vegetables, decorative schemes, and so on in rich variety—is the result of the toil, the ingenuity or the taste of boys and girls under 20, and their exhibition instead of having a routine state fair aspect and tediousness shows freshness of spirit, sound thought and genuine manual dexterity. Many a city boy, if he is capable of self-examination, will be reduced to a humble state of mind when he views the masterly display which his country cousins have brought to Chicago for the International.

How to See Show Best.

On the days of no matinées the Chicago visitor to the show will view it to the best advantage if he arrives at the yards—ample parking space—at 5 o'clock, has an early dinner at the Stockyards inn—price 60 cents, and Mr. Henkle says it is "all right"—and then gives two hours after dinner to a general view of the exposition. That schedule will bring him on time to the exhilirating feats and beautiful pageantry beginning in the arena at 8 o'clock.

As last year, I insist that the exposition officials ought to organize a staf of guides and lecturers, but in the absence of them you must make bold to ask questions of exhibitors themselves or of their herdsmen and grooms, whom you will find very civil and informing—when they have time to be. If you possibly can, get hold of the aforementioned Prof. Caine.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Federal and Mississippi Valley barge lines will continue operations on the Mississippi river south of here throughout the winter.

FARMERS LIABLE TO PROSECUTION UNDER MILK CODE

Punitive clauses of the AAA milk marketing license for the Chicago area are extended for the first time to farmers under an amendment of the license which has been approved by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and became effective Dec. 1. This was announced yesterday by the Pure Milk association, bargaining agency for the majority of the milk producers.

Formerly the AAA proceeded only against the distributor or milk broker who failed to comply with the provision of the license setting prices and requiring reports of purchases and sales to the government. Now the farmer who sells to a broker or distributor who is a violator may also be prosecuted. Prosecutions under the milk license take two forms. The AAA may seek to have the violator fined or may seek an injunction restraining him from selling milk.

4-H CHAMPIONS SELECTED; IOWA GIRL, DAKOTA BOY

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

An Iowa girl with a winsome smile and a South Dakota lad with a twinkle in his eye, both farm born, became the king and queen of American farm youth yesterday. They were adjudged the healthiest of the entire 4-H club membership in the United States at the annual club congress being held in connection with the International Live Stock show.

They were Doris Louise Paul, 15 years old, of Wilton Junction, Muscatine county, Ia., and Leland Monasmith, 18 years old, of Lane, Jerauld county, S. D. With good humor and natural charm, the couple maintained through three hours of harassing camera shooting and interviewing the sort of poise that would have made Hollywood's most sophisticated motion picture stars envious.

Health Rules—and Work.

How did they win? Simple rules of health, of course, but plenty of hard work, too.

Said Doris, who is blue eyed and pretty: "Why I guess I like most everything to eat except raw oysters. I never thought I'd like raw oysters. I've kept pretty busy with my club work—baking bread, sewing, canning, and studying home furnishings. I like to ride horseback, play tennis, hike, and when I get through high school, I'm going to take physical education at the Univeristy of Iowa.

Doris weighs 130 pounds and is 5 feet and 3 inches tall and still growing. At least she has put on an inch of her height since the Iowa state fair in August when she was made state health champion. She wouldn't know what to do with rouge and lipstick because she has rosy cheeks and red lips exactly the color nature intended.

Boy Wants to Be 4-H Leader.

Leland, like Doris, has blue eyes and brown hair, and it would be a tossup to determine which has the more handsome set of teeth. Leland weighs 156 pounds and is 5 feet 9 inches tall, and well built. He has determined one thing and that's a college education to begin next year so he can go into 4-H club as a leader. He was graduated last year from high school where he was basketball captain, played football, and found time for dramatics. He is fond of horseback riding, not only while working on the farm, but for the fun of it, and is a good swimmer.

"The most important thing is to behave yourself according to health rules," he counseled. "Get plenty of sleep, drink lots of milk—I drink two glasses a meal—and don't be finicky about food. I like everything, even to spinach and turnips. One should get other recreation, too. For instance, I like to dance. And see your dentist and doctor often. I get checked over two or three times a year, though I've never been ill."

It was first planned not to select two champions but a group of champions this year. However, the winners were so outstanding that club officials reversed their decision.

The runners-up among the girls were Alice Turnbull, Kansas; Mary Bounds, Oklahoma; Kathlyn Nicholas, Virginia; Bonita Brown, Ohio; Annabelle Jameson, Florida; Aletha Luff, Nebraska, and Evelyn Johnson, South Dakota. The boys were: Kenneth Wilson, Oklahoma; Ned Law, Wisconsin; Wayne Payer, Kansas; Norvel Colbert, Kentucky; Billy Gates, Missouri, and Frank Allen, Indiana.

Winners at Annual Banquet.

Last night the health champions and 1,600 other 4-H club members put on their Sunday best and attended the swankiest event of the whole club congress. It was the annual banquet in the Stevens hotel. The evening's program centered about a huge broiled steak dinner with ice cream for dessert, plenty of music and a pageant.

The farm youngsters were especially appreciative of the opera selections by Robert Long and Marjorie Gillam of the Chicago Grand Opera company. The pageant was called "The Spirit of American Music," a musical drama with a cast of 100, directed by Howard Southgate and written by Morris A. Epstein.

Earlier in the day the boys, more than 700, were guests of the National Live Stock Marketing association at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman.

As science and industry day, there were special events, such as tours for the boys of Armour & Co., and Swift & Co., the Merchandise mart, and for the girls, the Field museum, Adler planetarium, and the Chicago Mail Order company. Similar tours will be held today. A feature this afternoon will be a style revue at the matinée horse show, with the girls modeling their own creations.

CHICAGO-WASHINGTON RECORD SMASHED BY BIG TRANSPORT PLANE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Traveling at an average speed of 231 miles per hour, an American Air Lines transport plane today broke the speed record for the Chicago-Washington route.

The plane, the same new Vultee ship which recently smashed the Chicago-New York record, left Chicago at 1:50 o'clock this afternoon, streaked into Cincinnati at 3:15 for gasoline, refueled in 26 minutes, and swooped down on the Washington airport at 5:13 o'clock, breaking all previous records by half an hour.

On board the plane was L. B. Manning, president of the Cord corporation; R. S. Pruitt, general counsel, and C. R. Smith, president of American Air Lines.

Cutting off about 30 miles of the ordinary Chicago-Washington route, the plane traveled 652 miles in a flying time of 2 hours and 57 minutes. The leg from Chicago to Cincinnati was flown in one hour and 9 minutes and the last lap over the mountains into Washington was covered in 1 hour and 48 minutes.

Two Women Found Shot to Death in Apartment

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The bodies of Mrs. George S. Delaney, apartment rental agency employé, and Mrs. Jean Miller, were found in the living room of the Miller apartment in suburban University City today. Both had been shot in the heart. Police expressed the opinion Mrs. Miller, estranged wife of Elliott S. Miller, president of the Real Estate Management company, had shot Mrs. Delaney, and ended her life.

HARNESS SALES EXPAND; HORSE IS HOLDING OWN

Manufacturers of saddles and harness pointed yesterday to a 5 per cent increase in sales for the year ending May 1, 1934, as disproving any statements that the use of the horse is on the wane. The manufacturers said approximately $12,500,000 was spent for horses' equipment during the year.

"We sniff at talk about getting the horse off the farm just as he was taken off the highway," said Wayne Dinsmore, Chicago, secretary of the National Saddlery Manufacturers' association, the board of directors of which met at the Palmer house. "We are still thinking in terms of more business."

The association comprises 153 manufacturers, who employ more than 4,000 workers. While the directors were meeting, the code authority for the industry was also in session. Today the association members will meet with the Horse and Mule association of America at which breeding problems will be considered.

PICK IOWA STATE COLLEGE STEER AS GRAND CHAMP

School Also Takes Second Place; Both Anguses.

Campus Idol, an Angus steer weighing 1,140 pounds, bred and exhibited by Iowa State college, Ames, Ia., yesterday was awarded honors as the grand champion steer at the International Livestock show. Second honors in this classification, the prize award each year at the show, also went to Iowa State with Kiron, a 1,260 pound Angus. Selections were made by Walter Biggar, Dalbeattie, Scotland, for the tenth consecutive year.

The grand champion was born May 7, 1933, and was exhibited in the ring yesterday by George Edwards, Iowa State herdsman. The reserve grand champion was born April 4, 1933, and shown in the ring by Prof. P. S. Shearer of the animal husbandry department of the college. The champions, and all other animals in the eight hundred competing for prizes in the beef group, will go on the auction block at the stockyards tomorrow.

Winners in Lighter Class.

In the 750 to 875 pound class, honors went to Mulberry Pride, a Shorthorn shown by Leslie R. Ludwig, Rochelle, Ill. Mischievous Page, an Angus Hereford cross breed exhibited by Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college, took first place in the 875 to 1,000 pound class. The grand champion and the reserve champion took honors in the 1,000 to 1,150 and the 1,150 to 1,400 pound class respectively.

The two champions were both coal black with their hair polished by sweet oil and alcohol. They had been fed three times daily during their training with a menu of rolled oats, oil meal, winter silage, and beet pulp.

The grand champion in the beef classification wil lbring a ribbon and $100 from the show and $200 from the breed association. In addition the winner when sold at auction will bring a high price per pound, in the past this has gone as high as eight dollars. Six thousand persons were in the stands to watch the judging.

Swine Honors for Purdue.

For the fourth consecutive year Purdue university took honors in the swine division when Purdue's Model, a 215 pound Chester White, won first prize in the barrow classification. Purdue won reserve championship in this class also with a Chester White. The prize for grand champion pen of three barrows went to Arnold Moore, 18 years old, Wolcott, Ind., with Chester Whites. University of Illinois took reserve honors for the pen class with Chester Whites.

Car lot honors went to Henry Kamrath, Sauk City, Wis., with Poland Chinas, and second honors went to Notre Dame university with Dutch Belted.

The grand champion stallion award was won by J. C. Moore and sons, Rushville, Ill., who exhibited Moore's Lindy.

Grand Champion Mare.

Grand champion mare in the sire class was Moore's Charm. Reserve honors in this group went to F. A. Huddleston, Webster City, Ia., exhibiting Heather Bloom and Wedgewood Ople. First place in the Belgian stallion class went to H. C. Horneman, Danville, Ill., exhibiting Rowe De Or, with reserve honors to Holbert Horse Importing company, Greeley, Ia. exhibiting Marceline De Pottes.

Bull awards were won by Black Peer of St. Albans, an Aberdeen-Angus exhibited by Fullerton & Sons, Miami, Okla.; Raveni Masterpiece, grand champion in the Shorthorn class, exhibited by Earl T. Robbins, Greensburg, Ind., and Northwood Gift III., exhibited in the milking Shorthorn class by Borg Frams, Inc., Delavan, Wis.

Belgian Draft Horse Award.

The supreme honor in the Belgian draft horse class went to Marcelin de Pottes, owned by the Holbert Horse Importing company, Greeley, Ia., when this 5 year old stallion was awarded the King Albert cup.

Bellevue Special, the pride of C. A. Meyer & Sons, Bellevue, Ia., was judged the best Hereford steer of the exposition, with Chief Hope Domino, the Oklahoma A. & M. college entry, named as the reserve champion.

Also winning high awards were the champion shorthorn steer shown by Sni A-Bar farms, Grain Valley, Mo., and the reserve champion from Iowa State college, Broadcloth Junior.

Mrs. Charles de Rahm Jr., New York society woman, owner of a ranch at Jackson's Hole, Wyo., got the thrill of seeing W. H. R. Plus Domino 17th named as the grand champion Hereford bull of the show. This white faced pedigreed bull was bought by Mrs. De Rahm in October from the Wyoming Hereford ranch for $2,100—nearly $1 a pound on the hoof, since the bull weighs 2,165 pounds.

GRAIN FARMERS TAKE INITIATIVE FOR RECOVERY

Convention Here Acts to Build Up Markets.

Members of the Farmers National Grain Dealers' association, a coöperative which represents 800,000 farmer members and patrons, decided in yesterday's session of their convention in the Hotel La Salle to take the initiative in relieving agricultural depression.

Delegates to the convention asserted that a harmonious program beneficial to agriculture can be prepared. The program would be worked out by a board of research, comprising leading farmers, industrial chiefs, government officials and economists, which would bring into farm relief activity a group vitally concerned in the present economic condition of agriculture.

The program, according to the delegates, would include among other measures, the elimination of waste on the farm, the enlargement of the farmers' markets by finding new uses for grain, and the encouragement of greater bread consumption.

Commission Is Chosen.

Starting toward this goal a commission was named to study market conditions. The commission is headed by Homer B. Grommon, president of the Farmers Grain Dealers' association of Illinois.

Resolutions adopted by the delegates commended the efforts of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace "in the restoration of foreign markets for our surplus farm products." In other resolutions private capital was urged to make a special effort to end the depression by investing more in labor.

R. I. Mansfield of the Bartlett Frazier grain brokerage house told the delegates that farming will be a profitable business next year, basing his prediction on a shortage in cattle and agricultural products created by "nature and the government."

Complains of Legislation.

In the last forty years too many laws have been adopted for the promotion of industry at the expense of agriculture, according to C. H. Conway of Starkweather, N. D., president of the association.

"In our national development," Mr. Conway said, "we have come to the place where tarifs and all other laws and rules of trade should be so planned that the farmer would be enabled to sell in the same sort of a protected market in which he must buy."

Mr. Conway was reëlected president at the conclusion of the day's session. Other officers reëlected are Lawrence Farlow, Bloomington, Ill., vice president, and A. F. Nelson, Minneapolis, secretary. They and the other delegates represent 400,000 farmers who are stockholders of local farmer elevators and another 400,000 nonmember patrons.

REP. M'CLURE WINS HIS SUIT FOR $10 LOAN TO A "FRIEND"

Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Representative Frank McClure was the victor in a decision today in his suit to collect $10.70 from Julius Harrison, sales tax investigator in this city. Harrison charged the suit was brought because the two, both Democrats, had fallen out over issues in the last campaign. The court ruled Harrison must repay the money he borrowed from McClure when he became "broke" in Springfield more than a year ago.

BIG WORDS WHIP LIONS SPELLERS AT BENEFIT BEE

"Ameturs" Do 'Horable" Job and Pay Fines.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Such words as "chord," "amateur," "horrible," and "reducing" proved too difficult for a number of Central Lions club members yesterday when the club held a charity benefit spelling bee after luncheon in the Hotel La Salle.

Among the Lions who misspelled the first word submitted to them were O. A. Kleine, medical laboratory director, who went down on "pronunciation," spelling it "pronounciation"; Dr. C. W. Jackman, who spelled "horrible" as "horable," and Milton E. Page Jr., president of the Page Water Tube Boiler company, to whom "amateur" was "ametur." J. J. McCormick, coal dealer, inserted two "e's" in "reducing." Fifty cent fines were imposed on each club member who spelled a word incorrectly. The fines were added to the club's Christmas charity fund.

Wins a Lether Medal.

Morris Blink, president of the Commercial Art Engraving company, was given a lether medal as the winning speller of the club. He was the last of forty Lions, divided in two opposing teams, to survive the test words which were enunciated and judged by Lloyd E. Work, broker. Blink failed on "pharmacopœia."

Frank Sturtevant, orchestra manager, was the second to last man to stand before "surreptitious" caused his surrender. "Horriferous" brought a fine and defeat to Frank L. Fry, architect, third best speller. The Rev. Thomas Anderson of the Wellington Avenue Congregational church was among the last to go down, misspelling "epidermis."

Others who bore up under numerous word attacks were C. P. McEvilly, city passenger agent, Illinois Central railway, who failed to spell "logarithm"; C. Norman Dold, exterminator, who did not even attempt to spell "numismatics," and E. S. McCready, president of the club, who spelled "diphtheria" without the first "h."

Eighth Grade Speller Used.

A. T. Graham, insurance man, spelled "khaki" with a final "e." Bob Fulton, secretary of the club, a printer, put two "l's" in "marvelous." Harry W. Baker, Western Union manager, missed "indelibly," and Jack Ward of the Postl Health club, failed to spell "philately."

The teams were headed by George W. Smalley, of the Smalley Printing company, and E. E. Carney, of the Bureau of Protective Analysis. An eighth grade speller was used to supply the words.

Sentence Fugitive Judge in 12th Precinct Fraud

Fred Wolff, 29 South Sangamon street, was sentenced to sixty days in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Win G. Knoch of Du Page county, sitting in the County court, for irregularities in the vote count for the election of Nov. 4, 1930, in the Twelfth precinct of the Twenty-seventh ward, where Wolff served as a Republican judge. John F. Scanlan and James D. Byrne, judges in the same precinct, were given thirty day sentences a year ago, but Wolff has been a fugitive.

Wife Prepares to Sue Edgar Rice Burroughs

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Edgar Rice Burroughs, wife of the novelist—creator of "Tarzan," said today she plans to file a divorce action soon against her husband in which she will charge incompatibility. She said a property settlement has been arranged and that she may name a woman co-respondent. Burroughs is in Las Vegas, Nev., working on a story.

TRUCK HITS TRAIN; 1 DEAD.

Canton, Ill., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Leslie Marston, 31, Roseville, Ill., was killed and Robert McLaughlin, 17, his brother-in-law, was probably fatally injured early today when a truck driven by the former crashed into the side of a standing freight train at a crossing near Farmington.

"PRINCE MIKE" SENT TO JAIL; U. S. EYES CASE

New York, Dec. 4.—(AP)—"Prince Mike Romanoff," always a self-styled member of the former Russian reigning family until American immigration agents put in an appearance, today found himself once again under the scrutiny of the bureau of immigration.

The status of "the prince," née Harry Gerguson, was again taken under advisement by probation officials after "the east side Romanoff" was sent to jail for 90 days unless he makes good a bad check.

"Prince Mike" was arrested last night in the theater in which he was playing the part of a gay man about town in "Say When." His rôle is to be taken by his Irish understudy.

In April, 1933, "Mike" was permitted to remain in this country but his visit is a probationary one, E. Fred Sweet, chief probation officer, said: "I will inquire into his getting into jail," said Sweet. "I may recommend deportation."

COMMUNITY FUND UP TO $2,700,000; DRIVE HASTENED

With the 1934 Community Fund past the $2,700,000 mark, group leaders yesterday made plans to hasten the return of pledge cards now outstanding, chiefly among business firms and employés.

Clarence B. Randall, chairman of the trades and industries division, said that nearly all the big gifts have been received, and that it is now the task to get in the smaller contributions of the working people. Pledge cards are still in circulation among 1,800 plants employing 177,000 workers.

The employés of the National Tea company sent the fund $7,000 yesterday and the employés of the Chicago Title and Trust company [a partial report] sent $6,500.

Under Thomas Temple Hoyne, controler of customs, arrangements were being made to facilitate voluntary contributions by federal employés.

$40,000 IS VOTED TO STUDY RURAL SCHOOLS' NEEDS

Trustees of the Julius Rosenwald fund have appropriated $40,000 for a study of rural education in an effort to improve small country schools and to bring the schools' work closer to rural life, according to an announcement yesterday.

The Institute of Psychoanalysis of Chicago was voted $10,000 for research into the influence of the unconscious on human behavior. Another $4,000 was appropriated to the National Municipal league for efforts toward improving administrative aspects of government with special emphasis on simplification of county government, and extension of business principles of the city manager plan among cities. Survey Graphic was $3,000 for the program informing the public about social problems and interpreting social change.

Edwin R. Embree, president of the fund, in commenting on the exploration into rural education, said that the small rural school has been neglected during the rapid development of high schools and colleges. The rural teachers are the lowest paid of all educational employés, Mr. Embree said, and the courses of study have almost no relation to farm communities which they are supposed to serve.

"The fund has sent 14 young explorers into rural schools of three states, Georgia, Arkansas and Louisiana," Mr. Embree said.

OWES FIRST WIFE $180 IN ALIMONY; GETS 6 MONTHS

Gage B. Walldren, official of a warehouse company, who recently found himself in the predicament of having two wives at the same time because of a legal tangle, was sentenced yesterday by Superior Judge Rudolph Desort to serve six months in the County jail for being in arrears $180 in temporary alimony to wife number one, Mrs. Elsie Walldren, 4043 Armitage avenue.

Walldren's marital difficulties began over a year ago when he obtained a divorce in Hot Springs, Ark., from wife number one. He then married Miss Mildred Knickels, with whom he is now living at 2324 Division street. In the meantime, however, the Arkansas Supreme court set aside Walldren's divorce and the first Mrs. Walldren immediately filed suit here for separate maintenance.

It was in connection with this suit that Walldren refused, pending settlement of the action, to pay temporary alimony of $20 a week to the first Mrs. Walldren. Thereupon Judge Desort declared him in contempt of court and committed him to jail.

Elevators vs. Street Cars

Elevators in the city's office and store buildings run up and down; street cars in Chicago run back and forth—otherwise, there is no essential difference in the service they render.

Cold facts tell us that the city could get along without street cars no more easily than without elevators.

Eight out of ten persons using local transportation in the city use the Chicago Surface Lines. This is four times as many people as are carried by the two other transportation systems.

Street cars serve every neighborhood. Every thriving business center in Chicago has grown up around a street car intersection.

The low fare of 7 cents, with free transfers, makes Chicago Surface Lines service the most economical that riders can get.

GOVERNOR FIRM AGAINST STATE PROPERTY LEVY

Replies to Schnackenberg Ideas on Relief.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Gov. Horner took issue yesterday with State Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Republican leader in the Illinois house of representatives, on where responsibility lies for solving the relief problem. The state must be in a position by Jan. 15 to provide $3,000,000 monthly for relief in order to qualify for government aid, according to a ruling by government officials.

Schnackenberg said on Monday that the legislature, which convenes on Jan. 9, can take no part in supplying relief money until the tax levy board meets, under the governor's call, to decide whether a state property levy is to be made next year. This was in response to Gov. Horner's statement that the problem was the legislature's, not his.

Horner Answers Schnackenberg.

Yesterday the governor declared that there is no reason for the tax levy board to meet this month—unless to satisfy the technical statutory requirement for an annual meeting—because there is no work before it. He based this position on the fact that revenue from the two per cent sales tax is now being used for state purposes in place of a property tax on which the state formerly depended for revenue. Consequently, the governor reasoned, the state property rate remains at zero and there is nothing for the state board to do.

"I am opposed to reinstatement of the property tax," Governor Horner said. "It is off now and it ought to stay off. Apparently Mr. Schnackenberg wants it put back."

The governor regards abolition of the property levy as one of his major accomplishments. Therefore, since he will work hard against its reinstatement, new revenue will probably have to be found for relief.

Leaders Reach No Decision.

The meeting of Democratic leaders in the governor's suite in the Congress hotel Sunday, which was attended by most of the state, county and city officials, considered the matter from every angle but came to no decision.

Many, however, contended that increasing and widening the sales tax would be more simple and politically expeditious than reinstating the property levy. If the state were to levy on property for operating revenue and the sales tax is held over for relief, the administration would be in the position of adding a tax. It takes credit for reducing the tax burden now through imposition of the sales tax.

Some plan for relief must be ready when the legislature convenes.

CATHOLICS STAY OUT OF BIRTH CONTROL MOVE

The Catholic charities will never agree to have their "clients" directed to birth control clinics, according to Msgr. William A. Cummings, diocesan supervisor of charities for the archdiocese of Chicago, who replied yesterday to the resolution adopted on Monday night at a meeting sponsored by the Illinois Birth Control league, the Social Hygiene league, and the Chicago Woman's club committee on birth control. The resolution demanded that unemployment relief agencies permit case workers to tell "clients" where to obtain information on birth control.

"The Catholic charities of Chicago protest," Msgr. Cummings wrote, "against the resolution. . . . The Catholic charities will never agree to have cilents directed to these bureaus [birth control clinics] and the Catholic church will take every measure possible to prevent such information being forced upon its people. Particularly we object to the implication that the Catholic church has changed her attitude on the matter of birth control.

"The Catholic church remains unalterably opposed to any mechanical or artificial or unnatural interference with the laws of God or nature. She does recommend, at times, self-control and abstinence. The Latz method, mentioned at the meeting, advocates abstinence at stated times in accordance with scientific findings and differs fundamentally from the methods advocated by the birth control clinic.

"The Catholic church has never officially approved or adopted the theory proposed in 'The Rhythm of Sterility and Fertility in Women'."

350,000 FAMILIES FIXED AS ILLINOIS RELIEF MAXIMUM

There will be not over 350,000 families on the relief rolls in January, according to a corrected estimate made yesterday by Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. While this would be an all time high, it would be 10,000 fewer families than Mr. Reynolds predicted several months ago.

The estimated case load this month is 305,000 families, or about 1,130,000 persons including transients and other nonfamily "clients."

An increase of 15 per cent from December to January is indicated by seasonal fluctuations of previous years, which would make next month's figure 350,750.

An opinion of relief labor on "made work" projects was expressed yesterday by Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the United Charities. He spoke at a luncheon meeting of the City club at the Hotel Sherman.

"A study was made of cities and counties in New York state which have used the 'made work' program and of other cities and counties which did not use it," Mr. Hunter said.

"The conclusion was that no more money was spent on public works in one group than in the other. Therefore, the program has not really provided additional work—in many cases it merely shifted the cost of projects from local governments to the federal."

BABY SUFFOCATES.

Coldwater, Mich., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Phyllis N., 4 week old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ferris, was found dead in bed this morning. Physicians believe the child suffocated.

THREE MEMBERS TAKE OATH; SANITARY BOARD PICKS WOODHULL HEAD

The sanitary district board yesterday inducted into office two new Democratic trustees, Joseph T. Baran and George Seif, reinstalled Trustee James M. Whalen for his third term, commended the retiring lone Republican member, Howard W. Elmore, and unanimously elected Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, to the presidency of the board.

Speaking at the ceremonies yesterday were Mayor Kelly, Gov. Horner, Lieut. Gov. Thomas F. Donovan, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, retiring Trustee Elmore and Thomas J. Bowler, retiring president, now clerk of the Criminal court.

Ceremonies yesterday completed the local installation of officers elected on Nov. 6 and made the sanitary district board completely Democratic. Trustee Seif, a former city alderman, left the office of clerk of the Criminal court to become a member of the board. Trustee Baran, who is president of the Cornell Provision company, took public office for the first time.

Mr. Woodhull announced that Trustee John J. Touhy would be chairman of the real estate committee; Mr. Baran, the north shore channel committee; and Seif, the river improvement committee. Mr. Woodhull said he would continue in his position as chairman of the finance committee.

REPORTS HIS FLAT ROBBED.

NRA LEGAL MAZE TANGLES TRADE, LEADERS TOLD

Economic Club Listens to New Deal Debate.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Critics and advocates of the National Recovery administration saw it put under the microscope for observation last night at a dinner of the Economic Club of Chicago at the Palmer house.

Flaws and needed changes in NRA were pointed out by Gilbert H. Montague, New York lawyer and specialist on the recovery measure, while the underlying policies were praised by S. Emory Thomason, Chicago publisher, who is an adviser to the NRA board of public relations.

A Maze of Penalties.

Many business men after following the Blue Eagle in all its flights and sticking close to the NRA code applying to their groups now find themselves in danger of criminal penalties and money forfeitures because they have not complied with other codes they never dreamed applied to them, declared Mr. Montague.

"Codes and supplemental codes approved during the first year of the NRA," said Mr. Montague, "prohibit between 4,500 and 5,000 methods of business conduct. Each of these codes and supplemental codes has the force of an act of congress. Violation of them is a criminal offense.

"The total legislative output in connection with this one administrative agency staggers the imagination. Any calculation involves guess work, but a safe guess would be that the total exceeds 10,000 pages of 'law' in one year.

"Five or six thousand functionaries who now possess authority to recommend codes, supplemental codes, code amendments, executive orders, administrative orders, interpretations, rules, and regulations of the NRA and rules and regulations of code authorities, each having the force of federal law."

Thomason Tells of Hopes.

Upholding the NRA, Mr. Thomason dealt with its social and economic background. He said that though the NRA has not accomplished its expressed purpose it is being improved and that business wants it.

"I believe," said Mr. Thomason, "that an examination of the background of NRA discloses that business and industry wanted and needed NRA in June, 1933, and want NRA today."

Fred W. Sargent, president of the Economic club, was toastmaster and about 600 members attended the dinner.

Dynamite Explodes in Slag Pile; Aged Foreman Dies

A heavy dynamite charge was exploded in a huge pile of slag on the grounds of the Inland Steel company plant at East Chicago yesterday. The explosion hurled a twenty pound chunk of the slag 800 yards, through the roof of a small office, and struck Walter C. Hunter, 83 years old, 1818 East 135th street, foreman of the annealing plant. Hunter fell dead.

J. L. Jacobs Honored; Retiring Tax Assessor

A testimonial luncheon for J. L. Jacobs, retiring county tax assessor, was held yesterday in the Union League club. More than a hundred representatives of civic associations attended. Mr. Jacobs spoke on the tax reforms instituted during his régime, and detailed reforms and educational campaigns that would be a necessity of the future.

CHAMBER'S BAR AGAINST FORUM STIRS CAPITAL

Club's Sponsors Include Mrs. Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Washington buzzed with talk tonight over an edict of the United States Chamber of Commerce barring the fashionably sponsored Town Hall of Washington, a newly organized forum group, from further use of its auditorium.

Over teacups and at dinner tables the intelligentsia of the city discussed it. Some expressed astonishment at the chamber's action in view of what they described as the forum's brilliant opening program last Sunday night.

Mrs. Roosevelt a Sponsor.

Sponsors of the Town Hall group include Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Mrs. Louis Brandeis, wife of the Supreme court justice; the secretary of state and Mrs. Hull, the secretary of the interior and Mrs. Ickes, the secretary of agriculture and Mrs. Wallace, the secretary of commerce and Mrs. Roper, several prominent senators and their wives, and Mrs. Eleanor Medill Patterson, Washington newspaper publisher.

One report said the chamber had canceled a contract with the Town Hall after it had learned that Norman Thomas, Socialist leader, had been scheduled to speak on a later program.

The chamber offered a different version. John M. Redpath, executive manager of the chamber, said the meetings had been canceled after it had been learned that the Town Hall was a commercial organization. He said the chamber had a rule prohibiting use of the building to organizations charging admission fees.

"We have no objection whatever to any of the speakers," Redpath said. "We may be accused of taking action because Norman Thomas, for example, is scheduled to talk. While we don't agree with Mr. Thomas' views, his appearance here has nothing whatever to do with the order canceling the future engagements of the Town Hall."

Blame Silas Strawn.

Officials of the forum group tonight blamed Silas Strawn, trustee and past president of the chamber, for the closing order.

The forum's "first night" attracted a sellout audience, which included cabinet members and other government officials. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, discussed "America's Hour of Decision," and his speech was later dissected by a panel of critics headed by Secretary Wallace.

Uncontested Divorce Assured M. L. Strauss

Maurice L. Strauss, 1255 North State parkway, will be granted an uncontested divorce from his wife, Leta M., it was indicated yesterday by Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan. The two were married May 18, 1931, in Waukegan, and separated Sept. 22, according to the bill. Strauss accused his wife of misconduct with Price A. Huber, Brookline, Mass. W. C. Dannenberg, a private detective, testified that he found the two together in a room in the Vanderbilt hotel in New York.

Plan Buying for 50,000 Needy Children

The purchasing committee of Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit meeting with Mayor Kelly yesterday to plan purchase of warm clothing for 50,000 needy Chicago children. Seated with the mayor are D. F. Kelly and Maurice L. Rothschild. Standing are George W. Young, Barnet Hodes, secretary of the benefit, and John T. Pirie.

Goal Is $200,000

The personnel of the purchasing committee for Chicago's Own Christmas benefit was announced yesterday by Mayor Kelly, sponsor ond chairman of the drive to clothe 50,000 needy children and provide them with toys at Christmas time.

Col. A. A. Sprague was named chairman of the committee. Other members are D. F. Kelly, George W. Young, John T. Pirie, Robert E. Wood and Maurice L. Rothschild.

Mayor Kelly received a group of representative business men late in the afternoon and outlined his plans. The group assured him of support.

Approximately $40,000 was obtained for the benefit from the high school football game at Soldiers' field Saturday. The goal of the campaign is $200,000. The crowning event will be the "Night of Stars," Dec. 19, at the Chicago Stadium.

Board Ready to Hear 1933 Tax Complaints

Taxpayers may now file objections to 1933 real estate tax assessments, it was announced yesterday by Emmett Whealan and Fred W. Brummel, members of the new board of tax appeals. The hearing of complaints on personal property taxes for the year was completed by the appeals board recently dissolved. In making their announcement the board members declared that they would not countenance attempts to "fix" taxes.

MILITIA INSTRUCTOR ASSIGNED.

Capt. Joseph V. Coughlin has been assigned to duty as instructor for the National Guard in Chicago, according to word received here from the war department in Washington yesterday. Capt. Coughlin has been with the Second infantry at Fort Sheridan.

INSURANCE PLOT MYSTERY DEATH CALLED SUICIDE

Hill Bought Gun That Slew Him.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Evidence that Harney B. Hill, former head of the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance company, who was found shot to death under mysterious circumstances Saturday evening, had taken his own life was presented to authorities today.

An employé of the W. G. Frey hardware store at Beardstown identified a potrait of Hill as the man who purchased a revolver found beside Hill's right hand in his bullet punctured car on the Beardstown road. The weapon itself was positively identified by experts at the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory as that sold by Edward Clendenin, clerk in the hardware store, on Saturday afternoon. The bullets found in the car were from the same gun.

Abandon Slaying Theory.

Although officials would make no statement concerning this new evidence, it was learned that the theory Hill may have been slain by gangsters had been definitly abandoned. For a time it was thought he might have been murdered because his car bore several bullet holes, while the revolver apparently had been fired only once. This is believed now to have been a subterfuge to cover up the suicide.

After conferring all day with State's Attorney Alfred Greening of Sangamon county Assistant State's Attorney Vernon Thompson of Cook county announced late tonight that the gang of alleged swindlers under arrest in Chicago probably would escape prosecution on charges of conspiring to loot the treasury of the insurance company.

Mr. Thompson explained that the conspiracy had not progressed to the point where sufficient evidence against the gang could be obtained. They had made a down payment to take over control of the company, but had not yet succeeded in taking assets from the treasury when the plot was uncovered, he said.

But the group, headed by Joseph Baiata, ex-convict, and David [Long Count] Barry, will be prosecuted for embezzling funds from the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank of Chicago. It was this money, the state charges, that was used in the first payment on the insurance company contract. In this connection, Mr. Thompson said, search is still being pressed for Gustav Lindquist, who was installed by the Balata crowd as president of the company and removed by Ernest Palmer, state insurance director.

Yesterday it was disclosed that a telegram from the fugitive Lindquist, dated Nov. 19, from St. Paul, was found in Hill's pocket the night he was slain. It read: "Sorry. Unable to attend meeting. Sit tight. Everything will be all right. Keep confidential."

THREE SUPERVISORS CHOSEN TO SERVE IN NEW PARK DISTRICTS

The Chicago Park district board yesterday appointed three park district supervisors who will serve under Gen. Supt. George T. Donoghue as chief administrative officers for the north, west, and south divisions of the park district.

William Daley, director of parks for the city of Chicago, will be supervisor for the south district, largely an area formerly served by south parks. Benjamin Jung, former secretary of the Lincoln park board, is to head the north district, which includes Lincoln park, and Nathan Balter, west park superintendent, will be in charge of the west district.

"These officials will be representatives of the superintendent's office at outlying park offices," Mr. Donoghue said. "Since the park system is now departmentalized, they will not have the power nor responsibilities of superintendents. Nevertheless, they'll be in charge of their districts."

The park board authorized the sale of $700,000 of Chicago Park district 1934 tax warants to provide funds for the payment of salaries and current expenses to Jan. 1. Bids for the reconstruction of the Almira Simons park fieldhouse, damaged by fire last summer, were received. William Solomon & Co. submitted the low bid of $17,052.

GOOD FELLOWS' OFFERS POUR IN ON OPENING DAY

More than Double Start of Last December.

BY PHIL MAXWELL.

Hats off to you, Good Fellows! It is interesting from year to year to see the report of the first day's enrolment in this Christmas activity, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. There are two and one-half times as many Good Fellows as there were on the opening day last year, and they will deliver nearly three times as many baskets. That's the spirit!

Off to this auspicious start, there is no reason why hundreds more deserving families shouldn't be remembered with baskets of food, candy, and toys on Christmas eve or Christmas morning this season, as compared with last year. Noted in the first day's report are Albert J. Pixley and 24 members of the Pixley & Ehlers restaurant stafs, and 12 persons of the Insurance Company of North America.

A Year Round Proposition.

For more than 10 years the 200 officers, stenographers, and clerks of this insurance company have been doing a splendid work. They will not only take baskets of food, candy, and toys to the 12 families, but also will outfit each family with warm clothing. These Good Fellows save their pennies throughout the year towards this fund. The officers of the Good Fellow club are Miss Nina Knigge, president; W. R. Walters, treasurer, and Miss Myrtle Acaley, secretary.

The Good Fellow campaign is a challenge to men and women of Chicago to see that there is no home in this city without Christmas gifts. The Good Fellow department offers you this opportunity, as it has each December since 1909. All you have to do to join is fill in the adjoining coupon or phone Superior 0100 and ask for the name of a family. These names are submitted to this department by the Christmas Clearing House of the Council of Social Agencies.

Benefit to the Giver.

Last night the thermometer took a drop. How that wind whistled through the hallways! In many an unfortunate home that same wind howled as if foreboding the sadness and chill of an unremembered Christmas time—the time of year when only sunshine and warmth and Christmas good will should dominate the hearth. That wind last night was a call to every Good Fellow. And it costs so little—just a few dollars. But the joy one experiences in carrying out this mission cannot be measured in dollars and cents. A fellow leaves the home to which he takes a basket with a lightness of heart and step that makes him feel years younger.

Others among the early Good Fellows are George W. Young, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and vice president of the Marshall Field & Co. wholesale store, and Frank Conte, who, although a father of seven children, signs his note, "Newsboy, Racine and Van Buren streets." Frank sent along his customary dollar for the Good Fellow fund, and it, with others which are welcomed, will help buy baskets for poor families.

So come along, you Good Fellows. Preferably we would ask that you sign up as a Good Fellow and take the basket to the family yourself, but if this is impossible mail in a check to the Good Fellow department, 1 South Dearborn street. The phone is Superior 0100.

210 Extra Police Guard Loop's Holiday Shoppers

Ten extra city detectives and 200 additional special policemen have been detailed to duty in the loop to safeguard shoppers and merchants from pickpockets and shoplifters during the Christmas buying season. This was announced yesterday following a meeting attended by Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan, Lieut. E. J. Kelly of the pickpocket detail, and H. B. Warner, head of the new Retail Dry Goods Protective association.

Armour's Lake Bluff House Damaged by $15,000 Fire

Fire of undetermined origin yesterday caused damage estimated at $15,000 to an unoccupied house on the estate of Philip D. Armour in Green Bay road one and one-half miles north of Lake Bluff. The house, a two story twelve room colonial structure, was a show place of the neighborhood when it was occupied by the Armours several years ago.

Jewish Group Gets 40,000 Acres of Land in Palestine

JERUSALEM, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Transfer to a Jewish group of 40,000 acres near Lake Huleh, potentially one of the most fertile districts in Palestine, was announced today by Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, high commissioner of Palestine. The district, for which $1,000,000 was reported to have been paid, will open up a new territory for thousands of Jewish colonists.

RAIL ENGINEER, WORKMAN DIE IN TRAIN WRECK

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—A railroad engineer and a workman were killed today in Brooklyn when a New Haven freight train of four electric locomotives and seventeen freight cars sped round a curve near the cut under Brooklyn avenue and crashed into a work train of the Long Island railroad.

William Marley of New Rochelle, engineer of the New Haven train, was killed. The other dead man was William Scheshter of Brooklyn. His presence on the freight train was not fully explained. One report said he was a railroad worker.

Marley was caught beneath a mass of twisted steel when his locomotive fell over in the wreck. A fire company, aided by police emergency crews, worked with acetylene torches to cut him free. When they reached him he was dead. Several other men were injured.

58 POUND MIDGET MARRIES SHOW GIRL WHOSE WEIGHT IS 400

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—A fifty-eight pound midget, 38 inches tall, and a young woman weighing 400 pounds were married today at the Hotel Edison.

They were Jack Glicken, 35, and Mildred Lonti, 21. They appeared in a show at the Manhattan Music hall. Accompanying Glicken, whose full name is Glickenstein, were Charles Ludwig, 43, weighing 48 pounds, and one inch shorter than Glicken, and Donald Williams, 21, weighing 45 pounds and standing 35 inches in height.

Black filmy lace fashions this dinner frock with Eton collar edged in brilliants. The long sleeves are braceleted in brilliants Women's sizes. $39.75

That's when these brilliant fashions emerge like lovely night moths and begin their life. Some of them are on hand to speed the twilight on its way—they are the "formal-informals" that may attend the more elaborate cocktail parties but are particularly welcome at formal dinners, with perhaps a theater afterward.

Others, sleeveless and cut low in back, make their appearance a little later, to shed their radiance at the opera, or to reflect, in their shimmering folds of satin and lace, the rays from the crystal chandeliers that light a ballroom.

One and all, the fashions in the group shown here will be "belles of the bright lights"—for they have all the qualities that will make them shine at the gayest parties of this very festive season.

BEATING THE WAR DRUM.

In London the navy negotiators are getting nowhere on the road to a ratio agreement. Mr. Bingham, the American ambassador, is extending his remarks on the subject of a British-American understanding or alliance. He may have inspired himself, being prepared, as he says, to die happy with the knowledge that such an alliance exists, or he may have been inspired. At least he isn't holding back much in his speeches and interviews. Further out on the circumference there are many rumblings.

In Washington Mr. Vinson, chairman of the house navy committee, said on Nov. 27 that if Japan denounced the naval treaty the United States should be prepared to build five ships to Japan's three. Later Mr. Swanson, secretary of the navy, said the United States must be prepared to create a navy second to none.

In Tokio Nov. 30 Foreign Minister Hirota, in an address to a special sitting of the house of peers, said that Japan's effort was toward disarmament, peace, and nonaggression. Two days later Admiral Osumi said that Japan would face with determination "any power so ill advised as to expand its navy in disregard of Japan's fair offers of a disarmament agreement."

With statesmen thus talking at each other, a familiar situation can be recognized in the making. One gets his spirit up and the other replies in kind. The lightning and the thunder begin. Each fellow's remarks repeated in the other country stir up a little more popular resentment and suspicion. The import may be intended for one thing at home and another thing abroad, but out of it all arises a state of mind and public attention is focused upon the controversy as the affair grows in seriousness. Neither Americans nor Japanese know enough about each other to be certain whether one is bluffing or not. Both sides seem to be getting mad and wise people in both countries should regret it.

Americans have never been able to find what they could regard as an agreement between Japanese words and acts. Japanese policies are unpredictable and, although Americans can easily prove by logic and reasoning that nothing short of complete insanity could bring a war between the two nations, they cannot be sure that the same logic and reasoning would prevail in Japanese military circles.

Within recent years the United States has come definitly to recognize that its western outpost is Hawaii. It has in effect built its Hadrian wall and is retiring, for good or bad, behind it. In the Washington treaty it agreed not to increase its fortifications beyond there and it has granted the Filipinos the opportunity to obtain their complete independence.

If the Filipinos make the grade, the United States in something over ten years will have virtually completed its withdrawal from the far east. Inasmuch as this program is specific, it might seem that the Japanese would understand that American aggression in what they consider their sphere of dominance is out of the question. They have but to wait a short time and the American flag will recede from its advance position.

In the interim there is another step which might be considered by the American government. The American forces in the Philippines are, as an old Iroquois chief once said, too few to fight and too many to be killed. The United States has in the islands something to be attacked but nothing to defend. It might be wise, pending the Filipino coming of age, to withdraw the American garrisons and in doing so withdraw the hostages which the United States has in far waters.

It probably would be impossible to contain the American people if they learned that an American military post had been attacked and that a garrison was besieged as the Russians were in Port Arthur. Then the American fleet, no doubt, would be sent on the long and dangerous journey into enemy waters to fight against odds which might be unconquerable. Even if such a maneuver were recognized as in the highest degree reckless, national pride might compel it, folly though it were.

If responsible men in the two governments are to engage in a series of bluffs and threats against each other it would be wise for America to diminish the offensiveness of its language and increase the defensiveness of its position. Apprehensions may seem wholly absurd. Reason does not tolerate the premonitions which appear in every bellicose development. But if reason always prevailed there would be much less gunpowder made in the world.

FOR GOOD FELLOWS.

The Good Fellows are rallying again as they have done year after year since 1909. To them no celebration of Christmas can be regarded as complete or nearly complete which does not include a sharing of their good fortune with others.

The various relief agencies are providing bare necessities for the poor, but bare necessities do not make a Christmas. Toys for the children are not bare necessities and neither is a substantial Christmas dinner. Except for the Good Fellows Christmas for many hundreds of families in Chicago would be nothing more than another day in December. It would not be a feast day; it would not be a holiday. It would come and go without its message of hope and good cheer.

No one has to be a Good Fellow. The organization is purely voluntary. No one is ever solicited by word of mouth to enlist. If you are the kind of person who merits the title of Good Fellow you may join. All you have to do is sign and mail the coupon which appears on another page of THE TRIBUNE this morning and will be reprinted daily until Christmas eve.

Membership will cost you as much as you care to spend. Perhaps you will find, as thousands of Good Fellows have found in the past, that the satisfaction of bringing cheer and courage to the less fortunate is the greatest of Christmas satisfactions. Good Fellows say it lasts longer.

THE RIPE FRUIT OF ABSOLUTISM.

On the last day of June of this year the German dictatorship shot Roehm, Schleicher and 70 others, according to the official reckoning. The unofficial estimate of the number killed was much larger.

Less than a month later the Austrian chancellor, Dollfuss, was assassinated. His death was followed, in turn, by numerous hangings.

Not long afterward came the assassination of the Jugo-Slav king, and that in turn has been followed by the assassination of Sergei Kirov, a leading official in the soviet government.

Thus the normal and expectable harvest of political dictatorship is being reaped. Every dictator rules by force. If his authority were based on consent he would not have to be a dictator. Those who are dissatisfied with a régime of absolutism are forbidden to protest and the agencies of protest are always closed to them. They cannot present their views in public meetings and they cannot print them.

Under these circumstances, men whose ambitions have been thwarted, whose property has been confiscated or whose dignity has been affronted have only one recourse and that is assassination. They are forced to resort to it because they have no other means of expressing themselves. The dictators themselves have no illusions about the matter. When Hitler saw or thought he saw a revolt brewing within his own ranks, a revolt which could succeed only over his dead body, he struck first.

Assassination was the tool of the political opposition under the czars and it is the tool of the political opposition to the newer Russian tyrants. This does not demonstrate a depravity peculiar to the Russian people, but rather a logical necessity arising from a régime of suppression in any country.

Where the powers of government over the individual are limited, where the opposition is free to organize and express its views, and where government officials can be displaced by popular demand, assassination is not logical, but maniacal. The way to prevent assassination is to preserve the liberties of the citizens.

THE SAAR AGREEMENT.

Although the problem of the Saar seemed unyielding, the French and German envoys, working with the league of nations Saar committee, have reached a preliminary agreement which may permit the orderly conduct of the January plebiscite and a peaceful territorial and economic readjustment to fulfill the political decision.

In spite of a pronounced sentiment in the Saar against the Nazis, it has been accepted as at least probable that the referendum would be carried by the German element if no force were used on either side and that the vote would give the region back to Germany. There were, however, so many contingencies that the election might prove only to be a further complication.

It is not merely a matter in the Saar of determining whether the people of the region want to join one nation or another. That would be simple if the two countries accepted the wish of the people in good faith. Independent of the wishes of the people, there are properties to be considered in an industrial unit which doesn't conform to frontiers. If the new agreement prevails the Saar election may be held without the explosion which it was feared might attend it.

THE RAIN RETURNS TO THE SEA.

[State Journal, Lansing, Mich.]

Quite a "precipitation of moisture," as the weather bureau people put it, has descended on the just and the unjust in these parts of late, and on the more or less parched earth. A good deal was said about the parched earth last summer.

But though it has rained the night through on some nights of late, and though the rains have been general, it has been considerably said by those who profess to know that the moisture deficiency created last summer has not as yet been restored. Perhaps the statistics of the rainfall would be more to the point than listening to what "they say," but in any event the earth needs a good soaking.

But if every conceivable device is provided to carry our rainfall quickly to the streams, to the lake and to the sea, wherewithal shall the earth be soaked?

Some decades back there was a mania for drainage in this state. Perhaps this state was no more an offender than other sections, but, be that as it may, few and far between are the swamps in Michigan today. Where is the huckleberry marsh of yesteryear? Testimony remains that Michigan Indians once transferred easily and quickly from the Grand river system to the Huron system, but they could not do it today.

When the digging of wide, public ditches was to the fore, and pretty nearly every farmer was tilling his land, the thought seemed to be the reclamation of swamp land to the area of fertile acres; but in the long run it is doubtful if much real value has been added. Michigan was once like a great sponge in respect to moisture. Today it is more like slate roof.

It is related by those who knew James W. Potter—the donor of Potter park to Lansing—in the last days of his interest in public consideration, that when taken occasionally to view the building of great county ditches, he would always strongly deprecate the job and declare that the day would come when Michigan would have more land than it needed, and that the swift drainage of the land would be deeply regretted. Perhaps if he were here today he would regret seeing the rain carried away as fast as it falls.

There is always something of a battle on between nature and artificiality. Artificiality is at present all to the fore in statecraft. Artificiality is not wholly to be deprecated, but Mother Nature in all departments of life has a way with it. Natural conditions cannot be beaten for long nor altogether.

NOW HERE IS SOMETHING to worry about. A friend of mine who is the agent of a steamship company writes: "I see you got all worked up and declared the depression was over because you got a circular from a steamship company saying that some of their suites for a round the world trip cost eight thousand berries. Keep as cool as possible when I tell you that on one of our ships that makes a round the world trip there are six suites that cost $18,600 each for two persons. And two suites for $24,000 for two. And they've all been sold. This will mean to you that the depression is over several times, but before you commence cheering let me say I would like to ask if that's the case or if it's because a large number of wealthy people are wondering if the money they now have at hand will be as easily available and worth as much next year. Think it over." I don't have to think it over. I never knew any millionaires that spent money because they thought they might not find it at hand next year or that it would go down in value. When they cut loose and buy a round the world suite for $18,600 or $24,000 it means that they think they know the depression is over. It's the bird that has a couple of dollars that spends it because he thinks he may lose it. Anyhow, here's quite a question, and if you haven't got anything else on hand right now to worry over, go to it.

PIGEONS.

Conceded to be favorites
Of any square Chicago boasts,
They rise to breast a breeze like sprites
Loosed to the air in hosts,
Descending to the street at last,
Enticed by vagrant hands that charm
With scattered crumbs for their repast,
Sensing neither fear nor harm,
Epitome of perfect peace
Amid the traffic crowd and riot,
Forefending danger by the ease
Of poise, serenity and quiet,
To lend in any kind of weather
Reminder like a healing touch:
If we walk gently here together,
Life will not hurt so much.

AGAIN THE VEXED QUESTION of licensing the drivers of automobiles is being agitated. I do hope that thing will come to pass. A dear little girl of twelve or fourteen summers almost ran her cute little touring car over my left hoof yesterday as I was starting to cross from an island in the Boul. Mich. to the mainland. I let out a yell that would make a Comanche Indian on the warpath ashamed of himself, and the cunning little girlie leaned out of the car window and cheerfully yipped, "Merry Christmas! Go to hell!" "I know it," replied the first one, "but hain't it a swell offer?"

I locked and barred my paradise,
And out to sea I sailed;
The north wind bore to sunlit skies,
Whilst maidens fair, with tear-wet eyes,

Palms in the breezes nod and sway,

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

EVERY one is familiar with the term Bright's disease—some of us all too familiar. Richard Bright first identified kidney disease as a common cause of several widely divergent conditions, such as dropsy, apoplexy, uremia, and certain types of acute inflammation. He was in his day Britain's most distinguished physician and ablest clinical observer, and his description of nephritis has not been improved upon nor corrected in the light of medical progress, although much detail has been added.

Modern medicine now applies the term Bright's disease to a slowly progressive degeneration of the kidney structure. In general Bright's disease is called nephritis and implies inflammation or injury to the delicate kidney tissues. The disease ranks third or fourth among causes of death, and is a contributing factor in many cases of ill health. It handicaps the individual affected, as he is rarely able to work at normal efficiency.

Infections, particularly of the nose, throat, and bronchi, most often precede the development of nephritis; of these tonsilitis is the principal culprit and the streptococcus is usually the guilty organism. Occasionally the beginning of the disease may be traced to overexposure to cold or to inclement weather leading to a marked drop in body resistance.

Practically all chronic conditions are preceded by an acute stage. Although many persons apparently recover from the acute phase without the slightest damage to the kidney, evidences of the disease may reappear in later years if the body is subjected to abuse.

Two types of chronic nephritis are recognized: one with swelling of the tissues and one without. Chronic nephritis with edema (collection of fluid in the tissues) is quite characteristic. The skin of the legs may be swollen to the bursting point, the eyes swollen shut, and water may accumulate in the lungs, causing difficulty in breathing. There is a loss of strength, and digestive disturbances and headache usually appear. At first the heart muscle is not seriously involved. Later some damage to heart and blood vessels ensues. Albumin is usually present in the urine in generous amounts and the functioning power of the kidneys is gradually decreased.

In nephritis without swelling of the tissues there is generally a considerable rise in blood pressure, first noticed after the patient has passed his 40th year. There is also noted a loss of weight, loss of strength, decrease in initiative, and more frequent urination at night. In many cases the blood pressure will rise as high as 250 and occasionally hemorrhages from the nose will occur. Sooner or later enlargement of the heart can be detected and with the passing of time shortness of breath is noted. The urine is usually pale, considerably increased in amount, and often contains but a slight trace of albumin.

The treatment of any manifestation of kidney disease consists in eliminating foci of infection. Every effort must be made to avoid fatigue, hence physical as well as mental effort should be governed by the amount of fatigue it produces. Diet holds out the greatest promise. Protein should not be eliminated from the diet, but in general should be slightly restricted. Sodium chloride (common salt) should be definitly limited, and potassium chloride may be substituted. If there are signs of swelling of the tissues the amount of fluid taken with or between meals should be reduced.

If the individual who has Bright's disease can regulate his activities, his diet, and his rest, the outlook is hopeful for many years of comfort with reasonable activity. The kidney may be safeguarded just as one would protect a damaged hand or foot. If the body is not pushed beyond the capacity of the undamaged kidney tissue to function life may be preserved for many years.

KEEP PASSAGES FREE.

M. E. G. writes: My 7 year old girl had a mastoid operation last winter, apparently the result of a bad cold, followed by earache for a period of a month. We have always given her cod liver oil and for a year now a concentrated vitamin A and D for cold prevention. She had her tonsils and adenoids removed last summer for the second time. Right now she has a slight cold, but is blowing a bloody discharge from her nose. As soon as cold weather comes her nose seems to stop up and she breathes through her mouth, a habit I seem powerless to break.

I am afraid of another winter like last one and have done everything I can do or know how to do to prevent her taking colds. She is very healthy in other ways and had never been sick until last winter.

REPLY.

The use of a drop or two of mineral oil or white vaseline in each nostril morning and evening will serve to keep the mucous membrane of the nasal passages free from irritation.

For cold prevention washing the nasal passages daily with Dobell's solution, plenty of fresh air in her sleeping quarters, and cold vaccine under the direction of your physician may help. Caution the child not to use force in blowing the nose.

ARTHRITIS.

P. C. M. writes: About six years ago I contracted a case of acute arthritis following tonsilitis. Practically every joint was affected. After recovering, my tonsils were removed and I have had no recurrence of the arthritis.

In applying for life insurance, however, I was unable to obtain a certain preferred risk policy because I had had arthritis. I was obliged to take a policy not quite as attractive. Does the fact that I was rated up by the insurance company indicate that they expect a recurrence of the trouble later in life and, in your opinion, is this probable?

REPLY.

Arthritis is sometimes accompanied or followed by damage to the heart and the kidneys. "Rating up" probably means that the experience of the company has been that individuals who have suffered an attack of rheumatic fever or arthritis are not quite as good risks as those who have not experienced this illness.

The chances are that you will have no further trouble, inasmuch as you have probably removed the focus of infection [tonsils].

TAX AGAINST ESTATE.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What kind of tax is attached to an estate left by a deceased owner? 2. What is an inheritance tax? 3. What is the value before an inheritance tax can be assessed? 4. How much on the hundred dollars, or thousand, etc., is the tax? 5. Is it the same if wife, children, or nieces and nephews are heirs? 6. Suppose it were government bonds and wife and husband each had a key to safety deposit box, it being rented and registered jointly—would the survivor have immediate access to the box? 7. Who investigates it? When there are bonds for which no taxes are demanded and no debts or outstanding accounts, and a wife was made by will administrator without bond [8] can she settle the estate without making it public, and [9] should not the advice of a lawyer be nominal in such case? 10. Does life insurance come under the inheritance tax law? 11. To whom should administrator go to make the report? 12. Who opens the will, etc., in such a case? E. S. M.

1. If the estate is large there may be a federal estate tax and a state inheritance tax.

2. It is a tax on inheritance. It is not clear what information you intend to ask for.

3. Depends on the degree of relationship. The Illinois exemption for a child, for example, is $20,000 worth.

4. The rate of the tax also depends on the relationship.

5. See preceding answers.

6. The one-half which passes by virtue of survivorship would be subject to tax if the amount were large enough.

7. The safety deposit company will insist on an examination if they know the facts.

8. Depends on facts that are not before us. The officials of the safety deposit company are in a better position to answer you than we are.

9. See preceding answers.

10. Yes, if it is payable to the estate of the deceased. In general, no, if it is payable to a named beneficiary.

11. There would be no administrator until court proceedings have been instituted. It is not clear what question you intend to ask.

12. The inheritance tax examiner would take it out of the box and deliver it to a representative from the office of the clerk of the Probate court.

ASSETS OF ESTATE.

Marion, O., Dec. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father was employed as a passenger train employé for more than fifty years on the same railroad. On Nov. 14, 1933, he was retired on pension. On Jan. 3, 1934, he was stricken with a heart attack and suddenly passed away. Before his death the company had advised him that his November and December pension checks would reach him in the same mail. After his death I wrote to officials of the company about the checks. Their reply was that the papers had not passed through the proper channels at the time of my father's death. 1. Am I entitled to receive said checks for the two months of his life after the pension was to have started? 2. What steps should I take to further the cause? B. A.

1. We see no reason why they should not be assets of his estate. The question whether you would receive the entire amount would depend on whether there are other heirs.

2. If your claim is denied and you wish to force matters you should employ an attorney. If the pension was merely a gift as distinguished from being a matter of agreement, then there would be no basis for enforcing it by court proceedings.

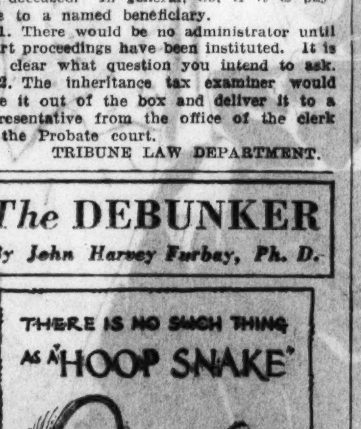
The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph. D.



THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS A "HOOP SNAKE"

There have been many stories about a so-called "hoop snake" which was supposed to take its tail in its mouth and roll like a hoop. Tales of its speed when pursuing a human being were astounding, and the reptile was said to strike with deadly fangs when it overtook its victim. This makes excellent fiction but very poor natural science, for no such snake has ever been known to exist anywhere on earth.

PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 27.—Anent the proposals that a tree belt should be established, one question, whether, if it be true that the planting of a few trees in the short grass country can offset the influence of the Rocky mountains, we should not give serious consideration to the equal feasibility and greater effectiveness of efforts directed toward the mountains themselves. Mountain ranges are bigger than trees; so much bigger, in fact, that trees have been known to grow on them like stars in the heavens. Therefore:

[a] Let an alphabetical bureau be established in Washington to regulate the influence of the Rockies in the interest of the forgotten prairie dogs. In connection with this there should be a Web Foot Supply administration—call it the WFSA for the sake of brevity. The duties of the WFSA shall be to supply web feet for the prairie dogs in order that they may have the more abundant life of the muskrat.

[b] Or possibly it would be more desirable—in view of the fact that some doubt has been expressed as to whether a tree belt could be made to flourish in the short grass country—to plant the tree belt on the easterly bank of the Gulf Stream. There both moisture and soil conditions are far more conducive to successful silviculture. The lessened requirement of attention to the trees will permit more time to be devoted to the more expedient, less costly, and more effective job of so placing the mountains that the desired control of climate will be obtained.

It is therefore proposed:

1. That the Sierras be moved far enough eastward to bring California more closely in touch with the United States and less devoted to its climate, EPIC, and Aimee.

2. That the Rockies be located where the Mississippi now flows. Not only would this provide for precipitation of all the moisture that had escaped the Sierras, but it would also effectively settle the flood control and inland waterway problems and, incidentally, might bury Gov. Olsen and Huey Long.

3. That the eastern hills, now proudly called mountains by the natives of that part of the country, be given proportions truly justifying that name. Here would be a public works project to dwarf such undertakings as the one that partisan pettiness changed in name overnight from Hoover to Boulder Dam. Build these hills to greater height than the Sierras or the Rockies. Throw up an effective barrier between Wall street and the White House. Use the Great Lakes as a borrow pit and thus settle the Canadian lake level problem.

CHICAGO CONTRIBUTES TO THE ABUNDANT LIFE.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—The United States District court at New Orleans has recently issued a temporary injunction restraining an ice company from erecting additional ice producing facilities until political authorities can determine whether such a plant meets the "requirements of public necessity and convenience." The plant, if constructed, would be built with private funds.

When the federal government, however, enters on its adventures in constructing dams and erecting power plants and in irrigation projects it pays no heed whatever to the "requirements of public necessity and convenience." As a matter of fact, it is erecting power plants in regions where the generating capacity is already greatly in excess of the consuming capacity, and it is bringing land under cultivation that is not needed. The extravagant scale of these adventures is measured by the fact that plans for the immediate future call for expenditures in the Tennessee valley and in almost uninhabited regions in Oregon, Montana, and elsewhere of more than $1,000,000,000, and that other similar plans already approved by the administration but not yet initiated call for additional expenditures of over $2,200,000,000.

Now what are the citizens of Chicago contributing to these federal expenditures in submarginal areas in the United States? As a consequence of governmental attacks they are suffering enormous losses in the value of the public utility securities they own directly and that are owned by the insurance companies in which they hold policies. Since they pay, directly and indirectly, one-thirtieth of the cost of the federal government, they will pay $33,000,000 of the expenditures immediately in prospect and $70,000,000 of the cost of the other projects that have been approved. It follows that citizens of Chicago are making a considerable contribution to "the more abundant life."

ABOUT GERMANY.

Chicago, Nov. 29.—You take a great delight in showing how un-Christian and heathenlike Adolf Hitler has made Germany. May I refresh your memory and inform you that before the Social Democratic revolution of 1918 the study of religion was compulsory in all state schools? It was a common sight in a public school to see a rabbi, priest, and minister walking arm in arm discussing the finer points of dogma. After the 1918 revolution religion was struck out of the curriculum of the state schools. Today Adolf Hitler has restored the study of religion in the state schools and in spite of what your prejudiced correspondents might have to say on the subject one can see the rabbi, priest, and minister in the halls of learning in Germany once more.

A few days ago the fact that butter costs 63 cents a pound was prominently displayed in your columns. For the last hundred years or more the price of butter in Germany has always been so high that the common person either went without or used lard. It is no more the fault of Hitler that butter costs 63 cents in 1934 than it was the kaiser's that it cost 86 cents a pound in 1907.

I am not a "Nazi."

NORTHERN AUTOS STREAMING OVER ALABAMA ROADS

Montgomery Predicting a Prosperous Season.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Montgomery, Ala., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Northern tourists in the last two weeks have been streaming through this "cradle of the confederacy" in increasing numbers, harbingers of a prosperous season for southern resorts this winter. There were four Chicago automobiles parked at one of the larger hotels here when the Tribune roadster arrived from Mississippi at 3 a. m.

Robert D. Jordan, Alabama highway department engineer, said that travel from the north is noticeably heavier than a year ago. The same report was obtained from the Montgomery Chamber of Commerce and from the recently organized Alabama Tourist association.

See Records Shattered.

Last year the southern resorts had their best season since the stock market crash of 1929. Indications are that records of the boom era will be equaled or bettered this season. Highways and automobiles have been improved, railroads have reduced fares, and, with recent signs of better economic conditions, the public seems to be indulging travel appetites that were stinted during the leaner years.

Alabama is going after this tourist business. Hotel and other business interests have organized within the last sixty days to promote automobile travel through this state on trips between Florida and the Chicagoland states. On Saturday the last detour on U. S. 231 southeast of here will be removed, giving a continuous pavement from Chicago to Florida via Birmingham and Montgomery.

In promoting the use of this new road, Alabama will be competing with the more familiar Chicago to Florida route through Chattanooga and Atlanta. From Chicago to Nashville to Chattanooga to Miami is 1,460 miles. From Chicago to Nashville, thence on U. S. 31 to Montgomery and U. S. 231 to Marianna, Fla., and thence to Miami is 1,528 miles.

"For this additional 68 miles," said W. G. Moffatt, Montgomery director of the Alabama Tourist association, "the traveler is able to avoid mountains such as are on the Chattanooga route and is able to enjoy scenery and points of historical interest that are familiar to fewer northerners."

In Competitive Route.

In addition to the Florida travel, Alabama is bidding successfully for trade from northern motorists en route to gulf coast resorts and to New Orleans. Mississippi, on the more direct route from Chicago to New Orleans, has mud, dust, and rough gravel for most of the mileage on its main north and south highways.

According to Perkins Prewitt of Birmingham, president of the Alabama Tourist association, the gulf resorts may also expect a prosperous season this year, judging from the volume of early travel.

HUEY'S THREATS TO FIRE CRITICS AT L. S. U. BARED

Sworn Statement Says He Cursed Student.

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The dispute over Senator Huey [Kingfish] Long's censorship of the state university campus paper, the Reveille, rose to new heights today when the senator was accused in a sworn statement of violently cursing Jesse H. Cutrer, resigned editor, and threatening to "fire any student who dared to say a word against Huey Long."

The statement was issued by David R. McGuire, one of four students dismissed in the controversy, who asserted he was sitting near Senator Long in the state senate chamber on the night of Nov. 15 and overheard the "Kingfish's" outburst.

Paper Out with New Staf.

Meanwhile the Reveille appeared on the campus today after a lapse of two issues. It is now under the editorship of Miss Grace Williamson of New Orleans and a new staf. Following the resignation of the former stat and emphatic protests of the student body, four students were dismissed or "indefinitly suspended" and 22 others were temporarily suspended by James M. Smith, president of the school.

McGuire's statement said that Long's tirade occurred when he and another journalism student brought him an advance proof of an article to be published in the Reveille which criticized the senator for bestowing the title of state senator upon Half Back Abe Mickal in a campus celebration.

The article was in the form of a letter contributed by Duyane R. Norman of Jamestown, La., a university sophomore. It called the ceremony a burlesque which was "saved from seriousness" by the intervention of Capt. Biff Jones of the football team and Mickal himself.

Boasts of His Revenge.

"When some one told him it was to appear in the Reveille," McGuire said, "he burst into a tirade of profanity directed at J. H. Cutrer Jr., editor of the Reveille, interspersed with frequent boasts concerning what he would do if the letter was printed next day.

"He said 'If that little ——— ——— ——— runs this letter tomorrow we are going to have a new editor. And as for that little ——— ——— ——— that wrote this, why, he's not going to be in school. That's my university and I'm not going to stand for any criticism from anybody out there.

"'I'll fire any student that dares to say a word against Huey Long. I'll fire a thousand. We've got ten thousand to take their places. That's my university. I built it and I'm not going to stand for any students criticizing Huey Long.

"'That letter's not going to be in that paper tomorrow. I'll make 'em tear it out and run the damn paper over.'"

CRACK AIRPLANE CARRIER IN DOCK FOR TANK REPAIR

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The Ledger-Dispatch said today it learned that an attempt to reduce tonnage in order to keep within the terms of the London naval treaty has seriously impaired the U. S. S. Ranger, Uncle Sam's new 20 million dollar aircraft carrier.

Hailed as a prize ship early in May when she captured a $50,000 government bonus in speed trials off the Virginia capes, the Ranger has been giving trouble ever since, the paper said.

Entering the Norfolk navy yard several days ago, it develops that the Ranger is to be out of active service for a considerable period while the gigantic gasoline tanks for the carrier's planes are being repaired, the paper says.

Admits Trouble with Tanks.

Washington, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chief of the navy bureau of construction and repair, said today the new aircraft carrier Ranger had been having trouble with corrosion of gasoline tanks.

Ontario to Unite Four Border Cities Into One

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Amalgamation of four border municipalities into a new and bigger Windsor was forecast today in a communication from Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn.

"Government legislation," he said, "at the next session of parliament will weld Windsor, Walkerville, East Windsor, and Sandwich into a city of more than a hundred thousand population. The new Windsor will come into being on July 1, 1935."

Sentenced for Five Years on Treasure Hunt Charge

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 4.—(AP)—A man listed in court records as Dr. Armgaard Karl Graves, who said he was a former German secret service agent, today was convicted of obtaining $1,500 from Clarence Saunders, Memphis merchant, by falsely representing that it was to be used to finance an expedition to the coast of Haiti to uncover $3,000,000 in gold supposedly buried there. He was sentenced to serve five years in the state penitentiary.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY!

DUE to your dauntless leadership—your foresight and vision—a great American industry was reborn one year ago today. Just one year ago today . . . but how far-reaching have been the benefits resulting from that judicious step one year ago today!

Nearly $400,000,000 paid to U. S. Treasury

From a source of taxes, which throughout fourteen years lay untapped, nearly four hundred million dollars have flowed into the treasury of the United States . . . since just one year ago today.

This figure represents only Federal revenue on the wine, beer and liquor industries. In addition, millions of dollars in State and local taxes on this newly born industry have supplied new sources of income to assist in the task of balancing budgets.

Million Re-Employed

Approximately one million American men and women have found employment as a direct result of Repeal. Not merely in the industry itself thousands of packers, shippers, bottlers, office workers and salesmen have found employment, but even remotely allied trades . . . the lumber, painting, plumbing and building industries . . . transportation and electric light and power companies . . . have welcomed this sorely needed impetus to their business.

Thousands of property owners have found occupants for their stores. Manufacturers of machinery and equipment have found new buyers. Hotels and restaurants are now employing more help and purchasing more equipment than a year ago today.

More than $1,000,000 a day income added to the U. S. Treasury

* * *

With pride and as a matter of justice, we are pleased to call to the attention of the American people this fulfillment of its action of one year ago.

BRITISH TORIES O. K. PLAN FOR INDIA HOME RULE

Diehard Opposition Ridden Down by Huge Vote.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Stanley Baldwin, lord president of the council, inflicted a signal defeat on the tory diehards today at a special meeting here of the Conservative conference, composed of representatives of all Conservative organizations in the country, to consider the government's India policy.

This was in fulfilment of a promise he made a couple of years ago that before what is known as the "white paper policy" was adopted by the government he would take counsel with his party.

The white paper policy is practically that of the Simon commission. It provides for a form of self-government for India, both in the provinces and in the central government on federal lines.

Proceedings Are Tame.

The diehard opinion mobilized against this policy by Winston Churchill, Brig. Gen. Sir Henry Page Croft, and Lord Lloyd threatened to wreck the Tory party. At the last moment Lord Salisbury detached himself from the government and was persuaded to take the titular leadership of the diehards.

The proceedings today were so tame as to be almost ludicrous. Baldwin made a powerful speech, pleading that justice to India would bind it to the empire. He was supported by L. C. M. S. Amery and others. Churchill, Gen. Croft, and Lord Salisbury fulminated against the policy, holding out the example of Ireland, which was given self-government and now is lost to the empire.

Sir Austen Chamberlain wound up the debate by putting a strong argument for the government's case. On a show of hands the chairman declared that the diehard amendment, which had advocated withholding self-government in the central Indian parliament, was defeated. Churchill demanded a poll. The result was 390 votes for the diehard amendment and 1,102 against.

Approved by Other Parties.

The white paper policy thus received the overwhelming indorsement of the Tory party. It already had been accepted by the Liberals and Laborites. Parliament probably will make it unanimous.

More important still is the effect on domestic politics. The diehards want to get rid of Prime Minister MacDonald and the Liberal and Labor elements in the cabinet. Baldwin stands for the national government, and he is now acclaimed as undisputed boss. The national government will probably win the next election and be good for five more years.

GETS 6 MONTH JAIL TERM FOR FRAUD SCHEME

CRIMINAL COURT.

Frank Valecek, John Coantomanos, and John Susanec, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary by Judge Walter P. Steffen.

John Oraweciez, manslaughter, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge John C. Lewe.

John B. Pearson, 30 years old, who used TRIBUNE want ads and the mails in a scheme to defraud, was sentenced to six months in the county jail yesterday by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Pearson advertised for persons with a little capital to join him in a newspaper venture. In return for deposits ranging from $100 to $400 Pearson offered jobs as editors, reporters, and business managers. His sentence was delayed on his promise to make restitution. When he failed to do this Pearson was taken into court yesterday and sentenced to jail.

Maryland Takes Parolee to Imprison Him for Life

James [Red] Kelly, alias James Connelly and Jack Hart, an escaped convict from the Maryland state penitentiary, where he was serving a life term for murder, was paroled yesterday from the Illinois penitentiary at Joliet and turned over to Maryland officials. Kelly was serving fourteen years in Joliet for murderous assault. He was given his parole at the request of Maryland officials.

Jail Woman Labor Editor in Canada; Sedition Talk

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 4.—Miss Jeanne Corbin, a former school teacher and recently editor of a radical labor journal, The Worker, was today sentenced to three months' imprisonment for making seditious utterances at a meeting of lumbermen at Noranda, Que. The trial took place at Amos, Que., near Noranda.

HONDURAS IS HIT BY QUAKE; FOUR TOWNS LEVELED

Huge Area Cut Off; Fear Lives Lost.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Dec. 4.—Government officials were striving tonight to communicate with Central Honduras to determine the extent of damage caused by earthquake shocks which, according to meager reports which leaked today through damaged communications, destroyed four towns and damaged at least five others.

Three of the towns reported destroyed have a combined population of 6,500. The number of casualties has not been learned here. The towns are San Jorge, with 2,000 persons, La Encarnacion, with 3,000, and San Fernando, with 1,500. The fourth community reported destroyed is the village of Santa Rita, in the Copan area.

The city of Comayagua, 60 miles from Tegucigalpa, and the towns of Gracias and Naranjito, in the western part of Honduras, and Ilama, a colonial town, were damaged. Houses were reported razed at La Esperanza.

The sketchy reports, most of which came from Sinuapa, capital of the Ocotepeque department, indicated that the populace of the afflicted areas were panic stricken. An eerie note accompanied the quake at Comayagua when church bells rang all night long as the tremors shook the belfries in which they swung.

Communications to the east were destroyed. Truxillo and Yoro, in the northern banana region, reported that the quakes were felt there, but there was no indication of the extent of the damage.

40 Second Quake in Chile.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 4.—A strong earthquake which lasted 40 seconds occurred in the Arica region at 1:25 p. m. today, according to state telegraph reports. There were no reports of injuries. Homes at Iquique, Pisagua, Sapica, and Negrero were damaged.

COUNTESS IRKED BY REPORTS OF MARRIAGE RIFT

New York, Dec. 4.—(AP)—"It's all a terrible misunderstanding. We've had no quarrel. The facts were misrepresented. There is going to be no divorce."

The beautiful Countess Covadonga, daughter of a wealthy Cuban merchant, denied today when she arrived on the Berengaria reports that she was to separate from the eldest son of ex-King Alfonso, the former prince of the Asturias, who renounced his rights of succession to the old Spanish throne to marry the commoner.

"Some one spread the report that I went to a dance and my husband told me if I went I needn't come back," she said. "That is not true. I don't like to dance."

She said another rumor had it that she and the prince quarreled over red dresses—that the prince didn't want her to buy them. She said she hated red dresses.

There was that report that she walked out of their Paris hotel and left the prince.

"Ridiculous," the countess said.

The countess, the former Edelmira Ignacia Adriana Sampredo, plans to return to Paris in two months.

Accuse Steamship Agency Cashier in $13,000 Theft

A warant charging Otto Calmark, 32 years old, 4941 Lester avenue, with embezzlement of $13,000 from the Norwegian-American Steamship Line ticket agency, 333 North Michigan avenue, was issued yesterday by Municipal Judge Matthew D. Hartigan. The complaint was signed by Arne E. Williamson, manager of the agency, where Calmark was employed as a cashier.

DENTIST SHOT AT OFFICE IS ARRESTED FOR OWNING GUNS

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Dr. George Walker Hindmarsh, who was shot twice and critically wounded in his dentist's office on the morning of Oct. 29, was arrested today in the Presbyterian hospital, where he is now on the road to recovery.

Dr. Hindmarsh was charged with violation of the Sullivan law as the result of the finding of three pistols and three blackjacks in his office by detectives searching for some trace of his assailants.

They also found about $100,000 worth of Liberty bonds and other negotiable securities, and jewelry worth from $35,000 to $40,000.

LINGERIE SHOP LOOTED.

Five burglars escaped with lingerie, hose, and gloves valued at $1,000 after breaking into the H. A. Miller Lingerie shop, 2835 Cermak road, from a vacant store next door early yesterday.

YOUNG SLAYER'S MENTAL TEST IS POSTPONED

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 4.—(AP)—A sanity hearing for Philip Kennamer, charged with murder in the slaying of John Gorrell, student dentist, was postponed today until after his preliminary hearing Dec. 17.

County Attorney Holly Anderson announced the delay as Flint Moss, attorney, emerged from a conference with Kennamer and said Kennamer told him the story of the slaying.

Details of how and why Kennamer, 19 year old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennamer, killed Gorrell were withheld by Moss, who said all angles of the case were discussed with young Kennamer.

33 at Illinois Sorority in Diphtheria Quarantine

FIRST CLASS

For directness, convenience and that feeling of doing things in the perfect manner — cross Cunard White Star First Class. The giant liners go first to Cherbourg, nearest port for the Continent . . . thence to Southampton. Sailings every week . . . no other Line offers so many. But most important is the sense of dependability, of ease, of gracious living, which practiced travellers associate with Cunard White Star First Class. It's more than a gratifying feeling . . . once known, it becomes a necessary one! First Class staterooms with private bath are available for as little as $219 per person.

CABIN CLASS

Cunard White Star's Cabin fleet is the largest in the world . . . headed by Britain's largest motor liners—the Georgic and Britannic. These ships are modern from stem to stern: brilliant public rooms, cocktail bars, special sports decks, vibration-less speed. That same gracious hospitality, which travellers everywhere associate with Cunard White Star, characterizes each ship of the fleet . . . and there are eighteen. Such facilities mean unusual services: Cabin sailings average two a week . . . to Plymouth, Havre and London . . . to Galway, Cobh and Liverpool. Rates: Cabin Class $126 up . . . Tourist Class $104 up . . . Third Class $82 up.

EVILS OF DOUBLE MONEY STANDARD MENACE RUSSIA

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MOSCOW, Nov. 12.—By courier and mail.]—One of the standard communist traditions—that a state with a socialized economy can get along without money—apparently has been effectively squelched, at least in the soviet union. But while those who previously held this idea have been discredited and silenced, the leaders of the country from Josef Stalin down have not as yet been able to solve the money problem, undoubtedly one of the most baffling questions facing the country.

In the report of the state planning commission on the first five year plan it was stated that soviet currency "is the most stable in the world."

When soviet authorities refer to the stability of their currency they have in mind the so-called "gold ruble," or chervonetz, which they use in paying for their imports from foreign countries or in their dealings with tourists. In the four weeks preceding the writing of this dispatch the Moscow Daily News listed the exchange value of the dollar as 1.13 rubles and the British pound as 5.69 rubles. The guidebook to the soviet union issued by the monopolistic "Intourist" travel bureau states that one chervonetz equals ten gold rubles, or approximately $5.14, and that one ruble equals 100 kopeks, or about 51 cents.

Rubles and Rubles.

There is no disputing the accuracy of these statements, so far as they go, but there is a vast difference between the so-called gold ruble, an entirely theoretical and uncoined unit of value, and the paper ruble, which constitutes the currency of the soviet people and their government in all domestic dealings.

The number of these "paper" rubles in circulation within Russia and in countries bordering on Russia is supposed to exceed six billion. Since the government officially prohibits exchange transactions between foreign currencies and the paper ruble, it is difficult to place a value on the soviet currency unit, but in illicit exchange transactions, which are quite prevalent both within the country and in such places as Harbin, Manchuria; Warsaw, Poland, and in Finland, the rate varies from 1¼ to 3 cents a ruble.

Meet More Difficulties.

The soviet authorities are obviously finding it more and more difficult to enforce this double currency standard, one for foreigners and the other for its own people. Foreigners who enter Russia, either as tourists or as semi-permanent residents, are supposed to remain on a "gold" basis and to do their trading at the official "torgsin," or special shops for foreign trade, where the prices are quoted in gold rubles. Many do so, but by far the larger number find ways to trade at shops where paper rubles are accepted and the prices are much lower.

There is a vast amount of illicit dealing in the paper ruble, a situation with which government officials must be familiar. Foreigners in Moscow tell of frequently obtaining packages of "cheap" rubles in Poland which contained wrappers bearing Chinese characters, indicating they had been smuggled out of Vladivostok or other Siberian cities, where the rate averages around 80 for the dollar, and shipped around to Poland to be sold at 40 for the dollar.

It is not unusual for the tourist to be approached by paper ruble dealers in the streets and hotel lobbies. The report is prevalent that employés of the official tourist agency are also engaged in illicit transactions. Unfortunate Americans who paid in advance for their tours, including hotel service and meals while in Russia, in American money, cannot help themselves. All they can do is swear and mark this country off future European tours. And many of them do.

Cheap Money Floods Country.

It is a common statement in Moscow that the soviet government put over the first five year plan by speeding up its money printing presses and compelling the Russian people to tighten their belts. But now the country is deluged with cheap money, so cheap that whole fleets of trucks and railway cars are necessary to cart it about the country from the banks to the shops and factories and then back again. The government is compelled to use all kinds of artificial means to keep prices down within reach of the laborers.

There is much talk of official moves to recognize inflation, establish a definite rate between the paper and gold ruble, and remove the restriction on open exchange operations. Meanwhile, attempts of the government to prevent illicit transactions in cheap rubles are about as futile as was the American attempt to prevent the sale of bootleg liquor.

NO SMOKING! BRITISH KING'S SON IS TOLD IN AUSTRALIA; HE QUITS

TOOWOMBA, Queensland, Dec. 4.—(AP)—This city's most distinguished guest in many years, the duke of Gloucester, third son of the king and queen of England, learned last night about an Australian regulation forbidding smoking in public buildings.

A fireman on duty at a citizens' ball at the city show grounds asked the duke to douse the cigaret which he was puffing.

Toowomba's mayor hastily apologized and ordered the fireman to leave the building. But the fire chief stepped in and said his man was only doing his duty. The duke, who is in Australia on a good will tour, meanwhile had stopped smoking.

2 SWIM 21 MILES TO LAND FROM CAPSIZED SHIP

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The captain and a seaman of the schooner Unity enjoyed the prize of life today as a reward for a 21 mile swim through tropical waters infested with sharks and the even more dangerous barracudas.

Meanwhile, all shipping in the vicinity of Trinidad and Tobago was warned to be on the lookout for five other members of the Unity's crew.

The Unity, a fishing boat, was hit Sunday by a heavy squall. For a time all seven men held on to the capsized boat. It was drifting swiftly off shore, so the captain with one companion started the long swim to land.

Dublin Theaters Withdraw Movies of Royal Wedding

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Films of the wedding of the duke of Kent, son of the king and queen of England, and Princess Marina of Greece, were withdrawn today from Dublin theaters following riots in protest against their showing Sunday and yesterday.

RUSSIA TO SPEED DEATH TRIALS OF SUSPECTED FOES

71 "Whites" Are Held in Assassin Plot.

MOSCOW, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The soviet government struck another blow at terrorism today by issuing new decrees to accelerate the trials of persons charged with offenses against the bolshevik régime.

The move came as 71 white Russians arrested as an aftermath of the assassination of Sergei Kirov, secretary of the central executive committee, awaited trial.

The executive committee's decree amended the criminal codes of all constituent republics of the soviet union to eliminate delay in the trial and execution of accused terrorists.

Accused Denied Attorneys.

It required that investigations of such offenses must be completed in ten days, indictments handed to the accused the day before the trial opens and the trial be conducted without prosecuting or defense attorneys.

Appeals to a higher court and applications to the central executive committee for clemency were ruled inadmissible. Death sentences were required to be imposed immediately upon conviction.

Whether the white Russians arrested as the republic mourned Kirov's death were directly implicated in the official's assassination was not disclosed. They were rounded up here and in Leningrad and held for investigation.

Meanwhile Leonid Nicolieff, named by soviet authorities as the assassin, was still being questioned. No announcement was made of the probable disposition of his case.

Kirov's Body Lies in State.

Kirov's body lay in state in the column hall of the historic Union house. His ashes are to be buried in the shadow of the Kremlin wall following a national funeral in Red square Thursday. The remains will be cremated tomorrow. Kirov's brain will be given to a Leningrad scientific institute for study.

Throughout the night Russian workers with solemn faces moved slowly past Kirov's bier in the Union house, while thousands of others stood in queues converging upon the Opera, waiting in the snow for an opportunity to pay their respects to the revered communist leader.

Kirov's coffin was borne from the train which brought it here from Leningrad by the highest executives of the communist state, led by Joseph Stalin. Placed on a gun carriage, it was carried through the streets of Moscow to the Union house. It was estimated that 2,000,000 persons in all would file past the bier during the hours before the cremation.

SEEKS TO EVICT SQUATTERS FROM INDIANS' LAND

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 4.—(AP)—A petition seeking eviction of 60 squatters from 4,100 acres of land adjoining the Winnebago, Neb., Indian reservation was filed in federal court here today.

Damage of $100,000 to timber and arrears of $90,000 in lease rent is alleged. Among defendants is the State Bank of Winnebago and Ernest J. Smith, receiver for the bank.

Assistant United States District Attorney A. C. Epperson, who filed the complaint, contends that the land, built up by the river accretion over a 40 year period preceding 1913, was added to the eastern side of the reservation and remains a part of the reservation.

If the contention of the government is sustained in court, the tract will become the property of the entire Winnebago tribe.

Driver of Hijacked Truck Is Held All Night by Gang

Harvey Schried, 40 years old, of Detroit, was released yesterday at 53d and Halsted streets by hijackers who had held him prisoner all night. Four gunmen forced Schried from his truck as he drove from a warehouse at 723 East 39th street Monday night. Two of the hijcakers drove away in the truck, which contained lard valued at $2,340. The others took Schried to a barn on the west side.

THEY ALL GET A LIFT WITH A CAMEL!

CIVIL ENGINEER. Says Captain Eric Loch: "Camels have been my cigarette for 9 years. The longer I smoke them the more I appreciate their rich, mild flavor. I smoke all I want and they never jangle my nerves."

NEWSPAPER MAN. Ray Baker of the INS says: "The most enjoyable way of easing strain that I know is smoking Camels. For my experience has been that whenever I feel 'all in' I can quickly restore my energy with a Camel."

EXPLORER. Mrs. Wm. LaVarre reports: "I am devoted to Camels. Any time I'm tired I stop and smoke a Camel. It wakes up my energy in no time. And here's an important point. Smoking Camels steadily, I find, does not affect one's nerves."

CHURCHES STUDY NEW CALENDAR TO FIX FEASTS

Nations' League Backing Plan Now Offered.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Dayton, O., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Agreement between the three great branches of the Christian church—Catholic, Protestant and Greek Orthodox—concerning fixed dates for Easter and other feasts and related fundamental calendar reform, was made public here today by the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America. That council officially opened formal sessions this morning.

While calendar reform with its important effects on ecclesiastical observances does not occupy first importance in the agenda of the council's four days' sessions, yet full significance of such reform as related to the advancement of comity and coöperation in a divided Christendom scarcely can be estimated.

League Favors Plan.

This importance is pointed out in the report of the council's department of relations with churches abroad. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of New York is chairman of this department.

"For the first time in modern history all the churches of the world actually have been consulted on a specific question and replies are now in hand which seem likely to lead the league of nations to proceed with its plan," the Cadman report states.

The league of nations has been sponsoring calendar reform for several years. Until recently the chief propaganda from that and other sources advocated a calendar year composed of 13 months of 28 days each. Favor has now turned to a "balanced" 12 month calendar. Religious pressure set aside the 13 months plan.

Retain Twelve Months.

The world calendar thus generally approved by Christendom is described as balanced in structure and perpetual in form. Its 12 months are multiples of halves and quarters. The equal quarters, as against the proposed 13 months' calendar, consist of three months; the first month of each quarter has 31 days; the remaining two have 30 days. These quarters also comprise 13 weeks, or 91 days, of which 13 days are Sundays and 78 are week days. Each month has 26 days.

Under the new calendar Easter will fall each year on Sunday, April 8, instead of varying over a period of a month, from March 23 to April 25. Inasmuch as Easter fixes dates for all other feasts and fasts except Christmas and Epiphany, the entire ecclesiastical year will thus be immovable.

The Vatican has notified the league of nations that "there is no dogmatic objection to calendar reform," but that the holy see feels the question should be considered by an ecumenical or general counsel before general action is taken by the Catholic church.

Highest Nazi Officials Ordered to Collect Funds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister of air; Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, and Dr. Friedrich Sahm, Berlin's seven foot lord mayor, will be among the 3,000 prominent persons who next Saturday, "solidarity day," will shake boxes in the streets of Berlin, collecting for the winter help fund to assist Germany's poor. Goebbels has warned collectors that they must not merely make a brief appearance on the streets for the sake of boosting themselves. They must collect for three and a half hours in the afternoon and again for an hour at night at theaters and movies and in restaurants.

Aguinaldo Unable to Pay for Land; Loses 2,390 Acres

MANILA, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Unable to make payments to the Philippine government, Gen. Emilio Aguinaldo, who led an insurrection against the United States a generation ago, lost 2,390 additional acres of public lands in Cavite province today. He contracted to buy the land in 1915. Recently Aguinaldo surrendered 170 acres to satisfy an unpaid loan of $3,000, and on the land given up today he owed a balance of $121,788.

Hundreds of Hungarians Reported Ousted by Serbia

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Several hundred Hungarians working in Belgrade were ordered today to leave the country within 24 hours, according to unofficial advices here. It was understood the action grew out of Hungary's attitude toward Jugo-Slavia's protest to the league of nations concerning King Alexander's assassination.

BANK THEFT SUSPECT SEIZED.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Jack Doyle, alias Joe Shank, said to be wanted in Minnesota for bank robbery, was arrested here this afternoon, only a few hours after he had driven into the city and taken lodging at a private home.

Good-bye COLD!

When This Famous Remedy Gets on the Job!

It's just too bad for a cold when you take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. For this famous tablet soon has the cold on its way. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine acts quickly and decisively because it is expressly a cold remedy and because it gets at a cold from the inside.

Complete relief is had with Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine because it is a complete treatment. It does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is courting danger. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 35c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and resent a substitute.

FORGER FINDS HIS TALENTS VALUABLE EVEN IN A PRISON

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 4.—(AP)—A prisoner in the Nebraska penitentiary who is serving time for forging checks was making money fast until Warden Dan Kavanaugh noticed some perfectly healthy prisoners were "on a diet."

Kavanaugh, who knows every one of the 865 prisoners by name, segregated the forgers and questioned them. One admitted he copied the signature of Dr. B. A. Finkle, prison physician, and sold five passes to fellow prisoners who wanted some "trimmings" with their meals.

The convict made $27 in a few weeks, a small fortune in prison. Kavanaugh "sentenced" him to five days in solitary confinement and took away sixty days of "good time" on the prisoner's record.

FORGED LETTERS ADVANCE SPEER SLAYING CLEWS

Seek to Divert Eyes from Suspect.

Greenfield, Mass., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Four witnesses possessing information of forged letters which, investigators say, the principal suspect attempted to cause authorities to believe were written by Dr. Elliott Speer, testified today at the inquest into the murder of the Mount Hermon Preparatory school headmaster.

One of the letters attempted to divert suspicion from the suspect by hinting at a motive another man might have had for wanting Dr. Speer killed.

The letters first came to detectives' attention a few days after Dr. Speer was shot in his study the night of Sept. 14. The letters attempted to show that the greatest personal regard existed between Speer and the suspect.

Widow Is Witness.

The four witnesses were Mrs. Charlotte Welles Speer, widow of the educator; Wilfred W. Fry of Philadelphia, president of the school board of trustees; S. A. Norton, cashier of the school, and the murdered man's father, Dr. Robert E. Speer, head of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

Another witness awaiting call is Daniel van Volkenbergh, school handy man. He informed police a shotgun of the type which killed Dr. Speer has been missing since the murder. This gun was owned by the principal suspect in the case, who has denied he owned that type of gun.

Cast Doubt on Letters.

After Dr. Speer's secretary and others doubted the authenticity of the letters, detectives found they had been written in a Springfield hotel.

Further proof that a letter signed with Dr. Speer's name and dated at the school could not have been written by him was brought out by the fact that on that day Dr. Speer was in another state.

Contents of the letters are being guarded, but it was learned the story of the forged letter will create a sensation if told at a murder trial.

Belgium Bans Free Press on Financial Questions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 4.—A decree issued by the Belgian government today provides jail terms for the propagation of news and information which is apt to hurt the credit of the state, even unintentionally. Newspapermen who send correct information which may impress public opinion in Belgium or abroad unfavorably regarding the soundness of the government's financial policy are liable to arrest.

Rumanian Lawyers Ordered to Strike Against New Tax

VIENNA, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The official Austrian news agency reported today that all lawyers in Rumania have been ordered to go on strike in protest against a new professional tax.

DE VALERA REGIME HOLDS OWN IN IRISH SENATE ELECTIONS

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Triennial elections to the Irish Free State senate resulted in nearly a dead heat today, giving the government a total of 29 seats to 31 for the opposition. Twenty-three seats were at stake today. The Fianna Fail party of President Eamon de Valera elected 11 out of 12 candidates it put in the field.

HITLER DISCARDS NAZI GOVERNOR FOR PARTY INJURY

Silesian Chief Had Made Threats Against Priests.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Helmuth Brueckner, Nazi governor of Silesia, was the subject of a glowing eulogy at Breslau yesterday by Home Minister Wilhelm Frick, who declared that Brueckner had earned "special thanks" for his activities in Silesia.

Today Chancellor Adolf Hitler discharged Brueckner from his post as governor which he had held since the Nazi assumed power, and expelled him from the Nazi party "for conduct prejudicial to the party." Herman Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia, who had appointed Brueckner a Prussian state councillor, has now also deprived him of all Prussian state offices.

The nature of his offenses was not disclosed. It is known, however, that remarks by Brueckner in which Catholic priests were threatened created considerable feeling several months ago.

This is the first time since the June 30 "blood purge" that an important leader of the Nazi organization has been disciplined. Many lesser officials have been weeded out, however.

Tightening of state control of the nation's activities continued today, the cabinet decreed a batch of new laws extending the rule of Dr. Karl Goerdeler, price dictator, to all commercial activities.

The circle of companies which are compelled to invest surplus profits in government loan stock was enlarged so as to provide revenue for the state's depleted treasury. Henceforth dividends of over six per cent must be paid over to the gold discount bank, which as trustee invests the money in state loans and bonds. Loan stocks must not be included among the possessions of companies and may not be distributed to shareholders for four years.

In accordance with recommendations of the banking committee of inquiry the money market and capital market are to be sharply divided and the establishment of a reich credit control office is provided.

Seek Austro-German Pact.

VIENNA, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Cordial relations between Austria and Germany by Christmas was said in authoritative circles today to be the latest aim of Chancellor Hitler. Franz Von Papen, German minister to Vienna who is now in Berlin conferring with Hitler, will return tomorrow, it was reported, with definite plans for bringing the two German speaking peoples together.

A plea for Franco-German understanding as a prerequisite to international peace was also expressed today in Oesterreiche Abendzeitung," controled by Emil Fey, Austrian minister of the interior. It was the first notice taken by the Austrian press of the German chancellor's reported ambition to promote peace among nations.

Memel Excited as Liths Take Over German Schools

KLAIPEDA, Memel Territory, Lithuania, Dec. 4.—(AP)—A decree making 222 of the 228 schools in the Memel territory all-Lithuanian created intense excitement here today. Threats of school strikes were voiced. Hitherto 208 of the schools were German. Under the Versailles treaty Germany ceded the Memel territory to the allies and associated powers. Lithuanians seized it by a surprise attack in 1923. In 1924 the league of nations made it an administrative unit within Lithuania, but with certain administrative and financial autonomy.

SPECIAL MEETING OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL OPENS TODAY

GENEVA, Dec. 4.—(AP)—With Europe's statesmen anxious over the Jugo-Slav-Hungarian controversy, but easy in their minds about the Saar question, an extraordinary session of the league of nations council will open tomorrow.

Foreign Minister Laval of France spent the day conferring with ministers of other countries in an effort to keep the Balkan dispute over responsibility for the assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia from developing into something that might endanger the peace of Europe. What attitude Hungary would take toward Jugo-Slavia's charges that it was to blame because it harbored Balkan terrorists remained unknown.

Geneva believed the likelihood of conflict growing out of the plebiscite in the Saar basin next month was virtually eliminated by the Franco-German agreement reached at Rome yesterday.

A Statement of Policy by NATIONAL DISTILLERS

(ON THE FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF REPEAL)

On October 17, 1933—a little more than one eventful year ago—people opened their newspapers and encountered the heartening pledge and challenge of the words which follow here:

"It seems certain now that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment will become effective this present year.

Thoughtful men and women are already asking, what will happen then?

It is a question you can answer—and we can answer—each in our own way.

The first part of our answer is based on the clear recognition that the American people are not voting liquor in, but Prohibition out.

We recognize there have been serious abuses in the past.

We recognize also that there will doubtless be some abuses in the future, since men and women are still fallible and Utopia is not yet here.

But we recognize most clearly of all that good policy and good taste alike dictate that we oppose these abuses by every means we may properly employ.

To that end we pledge ourselves to stand, in every phase of our business, for moderation and not abuse—for temperance instead of excess—for the strict observance not merely of legal duty, but of moral duty as well.

It goes without saying that no product which bears our emblem will be sold unless it is as good in quality and in purity as science and our skill can make it.

Will you not join with us, and by using your new freedom wisely and temperately, help to safeguard the privilege which hopeful American men and women now are voting to give into our common care?"

With confidence born of experience, we repeat this sound statement of policy for the year ahead

HUNDREDS JOIN IN LAST TRIBUTE TO SEYFERLICH

Fire Commissioner Buried in Impressive Rites.

Arthur R. Seyferlich, fire commissioner who preferred death to an operation that would have ended his active career, was buried yesterday after impressive ceremonies attended by persons of all ranks who knew and respected him.

Under gray wintry skies, the body of the chief was lowered into a grave in Rosehill cemetery as hundreds stood with bowed heads. High state and city officials and delegations from distant cities were among the mourners who attended Masonic and church services earlier in the day.

Gov. Henry Horner voiced the sorrow of himself and the state during the services at 11 a. m. in the Oriental consistory, Dearborn street and Walton place. The ceremonies here were under the auspices of St. Bernard commandery, Knights Templar, and were led by George Barlow, commander, and L. E. Rockwell, prelate. Floral wreaths were banked high about the casket.

2,000 in Procssion.

More than 2,000 persons marched in the procession from the consistory to St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran church, Orchard street and Kemper place. Delegations of firemen from Milwaukee, Wis., and Columbus, O., made up sections of the cortège.

The column of marchers was headed by a police motorcycle detail. Members of the family preceded the herse in automobiles. Among the sections that followed were those of the fire insurance patrol, suburban fire departments, the Retired Firemen's association, and the Firemen's post of the American Legion. Fire apparatus laden with floral offerings brought up the rear. Hundreds of persons fringed the line of march as it proceeded to the church two and a half miles from the consistory.

The Rev. George L. Scherger, pastor of the church, officiated at the religious service at the grave that followed Masonic rites conducted by Oscar H. Nast, master of Ben Hur lodge, A. F. & A. M., of which Commissioner Seyferlich was a member.

Of the 5,000 persons who sought admittance to the church, many had to sit in the basement, where they heard the church service broadcast over a public address system.

Praised as Great Servant.

Mayor Kelly, who headed the city council group in attendance, praised Commissioner Seyferlich's record in a brief talk before the church service.

"The city has lost a great servant and a greater friend," he said. "In his lifetime Commissioner Seyferlich set an ideal example for good citizens to follow. His leadership was especially exemplary for younger persons. As a fireman he did not send men into danger. He led the way for them."

Rev. Thomas C. Espin, British Astronomer, Dies

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The death Sunday of the Rev. Thomas Henry Espinell Compton Espin, astronomer, was announced today. He was for many years the vicar of Towlaw. In 1910 he discovered a new star, Nova Lacertæ. He has found more than 100 double stars.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The removal of KYW to Philadelphia this week leaves Chicago with only four clear channels serving this region: W-G-N, WMAQ, WBBM and [jointly] WENR and WLS. Other Chicago stations are all low powered except WJJD which operates at 20,000 watts, but it is heard during daytime hours only. And out of town stations share the same wave length.

KYW, which for seven years has been operated by the Chicago Herald & Examiner, was removed to Philadelphia because the central western zone, including Illinois, was over quota. Philadelphia in the eastern zone was under quota. Thus the Westinghouse company chose to move KYW, its pioneer Chicago station, to the eastern city.

◆

Today Chicago and Illinois are close to the power quota allotted them by the federal radio commission. And W-G-N finds itself in possibly a better situation to serve the public interest than any other Chicago station. Its broadcasts blanket the entire central west. Driving to Iowa last week, we kept W-G-N tuned in for 250 miles and found even daytime reception in a motor radio very satisfactory. At night W-G-N's signal is as potent across Iowa as Des Moines' large station, WHO.

With the departure of KYW several of its features, including the Globe Trotter and Star Dust are moving to WENR and Paul McCluer's Sunday Morning Sunshine hour is being taken over by WMAQ. The morning Musical clock is to be moved to some other station, possibly WBBM.

If Bentonelli sleeps an extra hour this morning he deserves it. In four days he has sung the leading tenor rôle in three grand operas, flying to New York for one of them—something of a record.

After appearing in "Madame Butterfly" here Saturday he sped to the airport, where the east bound plane was held 15 minutes for him. He changed from his Lieut. Pinkerton costume of the opera to street clothes in the car.

Bentonelli flew to New York to sing the tenor lead in "Rigoletto," the first of the condensed operas presented in that new NBC radio series. He then returned to Chicago and appeared here last night in "Martha."

◆

And now they're auditioning radio aspirants from telephone booths. Holland Engle, CBS program director, got a call yesterday from the leader of a male quartet. Before he could hang up the boys went into their act. It was so good that Engle asked them to come into the studio for a tryout.

COL. J. A. MARMON, 34 YEAR VETERAN, DIES IN CAPITAL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Col. Joseph A. Marmon, 59, a veteran of more than 34 years of army service, died today in Walter Reed hospital. At the bedside was his wife, Pauline Frederick, the actress, whom he married last January.

Wm. Moore, 81 Years Old, Dies; A Retired Decorator

William Moore, 81 years old, for more than fifty years a resident of Chicago, died yesterday at his home, 319 South Harvey avenue, Oak Park, after a long illness. Until his retirement 15 years ago he was a painter and decorator. His wife died six months ago. Their children are Mrs. Florence O'Connor, Mrs. Lauretta Allgier, Mrs. Marie Healy, John, and Edward. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

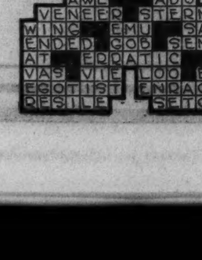
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



FATHER SCANLAN DIES; A CHICAGO PRIEST 46 YEARS

Former Immigrant Boy Is Pneumonia Victim.

THE REV. J. M. SCANLAN.

The Rev. James M. Scanlan, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes church at Ashland and Leland avenues, died in the church rectory yesterday after a brief illness. He was 70 years old and had served as a priest here since his ordination 46 years ago.

He became ill with pleurisy Nov. 23. His condition was complicated by chronic ailments, and he developed pneumonia, which was the direct cause of his death.

Born in Kilalee, County Clare, Ireland, in 1864, Father Scanlan came to America when he was 16 years old. Shortly after his arrival he entered St. Francis seminary in Milwaukee.

He was adopted by the Chicago archdiocese and attended Niagara university. Ordained in 1888, he became in that year assistant pastor of the Holy Name cathedral, where he served until 1900, when he was appointed pastor of St. John's church, 18th and Clark streets. In 1914 he was assigned to the pastorate which he held until his death.

Father Scanlan leaves two sisters: Mrs. Martha Flanley and Miss Catherine Scanlan, both of Chicago.

Bishop Thomas F. Lillis of Kansas City will celebrate the solemn requiem mass in Our Lady of Lourdes church at 10:30 a. m. Friday. The Most Rev. William D. O'Brien, auxiliary bishop of Chicago, will preach the sermon. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

NEW YORK GETS NEW AIR FIELD TO SAVE TIME

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Mayor F. H. La Guardia put through the sinking fund commission today a lease of the North Beach airport of the Curtiss-Wright Air Terminal company on old Bowery bay.

This assures the city of a landing field ten minutes from midtown Manhattan, via the Triborough bridge. New York thus has another talking point in its campaign to be eastern terminus of all of the larger air lines and air mail.

The new field on which the city takes a five year option will be used as an uptown terminus for Floyd Bennett field, the city's main terminal in Brooklyn.

Uptown passengers probably will alight at North Beach, and the downtown and Brooklyn customers at Bennett field, with ferry service to Wall street.

The lease agreement between the city and the Curtiss-Wright company calls for a five year lease at $1 a year, the city to remit the taxes paid on the 178 acres of the field, about $28,000 a year. The new field will draw from the Newark terminal.

Viscount Buckmaster, 83, Dead; Ex-Lord Chancellor

LONDON, Dec. 5 [Wednesday].—(AP)—Viscount Buckmaster, chairman of the governing body of the Imperial College of Science and Technology and a former lord chancellor, died early today.

Stanley Owen Buckmaster, baron of Cheddington, was made a viscount in 1933. He was 83 years old. He became a member of parliament from Cambridge in 1906 and served until 1914. He was a former counsel for Oxford university and a member of the Council of the Dutchy of Lancashire. He was lord chancellor in 1915 and 1916 during the war.

Paul-Albert Besnard, Noted French Painter, Dies at 85

PARIS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Paul-Albert Besnard, 85, famed painter, died today after a long illness. Besnard was awarded the Prix de Rome in 1874 and in later years won many other honors. Some of his better known works were "L'Ile Heureuse" [The Happy Isle], "Portrait de Mme. R. J.," and "Danseuses Espagnoles" [Spanish Dancers].

Sir Horace Lamb, British Mathematician, 85, Dies

CAMBRIDGE, England, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Sir Horace Lamb, 85, noted mathematical physicist, died today. Sir Horace became a full professor of mathematics in 1875 at the University of Adelaide. His incursions into the realms of higher mathematics brought him increasing scientific honors and in 1925 he was made president of the British association.

W. O. Huggins, Editor of Houston Chronicle, Dies

Houston, Tex., Dec. 4.—(AP)—W. O. Huggins, editor of the Houston Chronicle and former chairman of the Texas state Democratic executive committee, died unexpectedly in his home tonight.

Adrien de Gerlache, Polar Explorer, Is Dead at 69

BRUSSELS, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Adrien de Gerlache, arctic and antarctic explorer and holder of the Chicago and other geographical society medals, died today at the age of 69.

ICE LADEN TRUCK HITS STREET CAR; DRIVER IS KILLED

One man was killed and several passengers on the street car were cut by flying glass yesterday when a truck loaded with ice crashed into the side of the street car at Washington and West streets, Waukegan.

Roy Drinkwine, 34 years old, of Waukegan, driver of the truck, was killed when the machine overturned. His brother, Glenn, 26 years old, was injured. He was taken to the Victory Memorial hospital. The others injured, all passengers on the street car, were treated and allowed to return home.

Four deaths in Cook county brought the 1934 motor toll to 1,173. The victims:

James Coleman, colored, 60 years old, 4034 Indiana avenue. Died in the County hospital of injuries incurred Nov. 17 when he was struck by an automobile at 41st street and Michigan avenue.

William Lauff, 60 years old, 1472 Foster avenue. Drove his automobile headon into a southbound street car in front of 6020 North Clark street last night. Died a few hours later at the Edgewater hospital. Police believe he was seized with a heart attack while driving.

Mrs. Mary McDonald, 54 years old, of 338 West 56th place. Died at the People's hospital of injuries suffered when she was struck by an automobile at 31st street and Shields avenue on Dec. 2.

John Harris, 60 years old, colored, of 5244 South Michigan avenue. Fatally injured when struck by an automobile in front of 5135 South Michigan avenue. Died in the Provident hospital.

Suicide Threat Brings Reproach; He Slays Self

Henry Drysch, 42 years old, 5631 Grover street, a mechanic, went to the home of his estranged wife at 4918 Dickens street yesterday afternoon and was refused a reconciliation. Drysch shut himself in the front room, announcing he would shoot himself. When his wife rushed in at the sound of a shot she found it was only an experiment on his part. Mrs. Drysch reproached her husband for his action and told him she would call the police. While she was telephoning Mrs. Drysch heard a second shot. When the police arrived they found the mechanic shot to death.

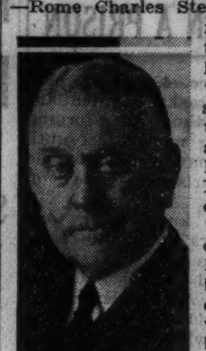
R. C. STEPHENSON, SOUTH BEND BANK HEAD, DIES AT 69



R. C. STEPHENSON.

South Bend, Ind., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Rome Charles Stephenson, 69, former president of the American Bankers' association and former state senator, died this afternoon of a heart attack at his home, 201 North Shore drive.

Although not in especially good health, his fatal illness came suddenly. Only two weeks ago he had been named a member of the administrative committee and foundation trustees' committee of the American Bankers' association.

He was married three years ago to Miss Mary Stuart, a nurse who had cared for the banker's first wife, Ella Maxwell Stephenson, during the illness that preceded her death. Miss Stuart then was 45 years old.

Mr. Stephenson was born at Wabash, Ind. Admitted to the Indiana bar in 1887, he began his law practice at Rochester, Ind. Until 1908 he was a member of the law firm of Holman & Stephenson. From 1906 to 1908 he was a member of the Indiana state legislature.

He was president of the American Bankers association during 1930 and 1931 and previously had been president of the Indiana Bankers association.

In addition to his widow, Mr. Stephenson is survived by two sons, Hugh Robert Stephenson of Chicago and Joseph Maxwell Stephenson, South Bend publisher.

From a Chicago collection of high colored metallic threaded new knits. This model has a flattering round bertha collar buttoned down the front. The skirt is slim and straight knitted with a close firm stitch.

English Designs Create a Stir in Fashion World

BY RHEA SEEGER.

In the midst of all pre-Christmas massmeetings [all the flustered females in the elevators trying to identify their offspring riding the escalators] one of the most brilliant fashion shows of a decade was staged and sponsored by the Fashion Group of Chicago. It was a collection of superperfect clothes that left even the veteran fashion reporters breathless and gasping for suitable adjectives.

Fifty models, direct from England, designed by an Englishman, a wizard with shears and a flair for flattery. Some tweeds that would make any one part with their last cent to own them, tweeds so fashioned and suavely fitted and contrasted one shade with another that such tweed costumes become the finds of fashion history.

Tweed suits with snappy short jackets made with clever inverted plaits, sections of tucked pieces alternated adroitly with contrasting untucked sections, yokes, impeccably tailored pockets and collars, are worn with skirts that are as slim as pencils. Most of the skirts extend well above the normal waistline and in many models are cut and sewed to the simple wool blouse of contrasting color.

Knockout afternoon dresses of soft pastel shades are fitted and cut to outflatter other dresses. Surprisingly, most of the sleeves in these dresses were short. Long sleeved models for daytime in powdery pastels featured long, slim fitted sleeves, thin supple wools and high necklines, extremely simple silhouettes, and again the magic of perfect line and fitting.

But the evening gowns really startled the spectators! You could hear the gasps of admiration in Gary as the mannequins glided into view. Slim form revealing sheaths to the knees and from then on swirls of clinging material, nothing stiff or angular or unlovely in the entire collection.

Long, limpid lines of superlative beauty, all with trains cut and molded by magic tipped fingers to accentuate the dramatic and beautiful color combinations. Long chiffon scarfs, a good fifteen feet in length, in one and two colors, were used to float from the arms or from the neckline. Long sweeping side sashes of color contrast, as in a bright blue dull textured gown with a cherry red sash and a long full and yoked cape of the same red.

Or the rustling black taffeta made with the lowest of square cut décolletage with two criscross wide straps at the back, a tiny, snugly fitted peplum jacket with long tight sleeves and the high round collar tied in place with another of those long, long scarfs of canary yellow chiffon.

Or the diagonal masterpiece, a printed satin gown with diagonal seaming contrived in a new and most refreshing manner. Unquestionably the most breath-takingly perfect clothes that have ever been unpacked and shown in Chicago!

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Anything that smacks too much of gadgetry gives us a terrific pain, but attractive efficiency is something else again and something swell.

Have you seen the bath chests that just struck the market—fortunately in time for Christmas? Women are going mad over them and we don't wonder.

They're tailored looking affairs, white, piped in red or gold with two doors that swing open to reveal the swankiest of bath accessories. In the first compartment are two cakes of peach tinted bath soap—the kind that's guaranteed to add glamor to the mundane business of keeping clean. Right next door is a pyramidal bottle of cologne of the most enchanting scent, a new venture for this cosmetic house and we'd say a most successful one.

Next, going from left to right, the fair bather's eye strikes a handsome bottle of bath powder, the airy-fairy kind that is such feminine fun to swish all over you from head to toe as a final bath rite.

And that isn't all. In the very last compartment is a similarly shaped bottle of the most exquisite of bath essences, a heavenly concoction that transforms the tub of water into a calm, perfumed sea.

All in all it's one of the most swish arrangements of bath glorifiers we've ever seen—compact, decorative, and filled with delectable things. Everything is in the same scent, too, which is no small point, and it's a fragrance that is positively thrilling.

These little chests will make perfectly elegant gifts, if we're any judge of what woos a woman. You can see them in the downtown shops.

Betty Gillies Is Engaged to Dr. Mackenzie

Announcement a Surprise to Some Friends.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE engagement announcement that is heading our column this morning will come as a great surprise to all but the most intimate friends of pretty Betty Gillies, for Dr. Wallace Dundas Mackenzie's courtship of her has been somewhat of a whirlwind one and not even all her friends have met him.

Miss Gillies, who was christened Marion Elizabeth, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Perry Gillies of Winnetka. Dr. Mackenzie, who was born and reared in Scotland, is a son of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Dundas Mackenzie of Auckland, New Zealand. He is a graduate of the University of Edinburgh and later studied medicine in London and Vienna. He now is practicing in Evanston.

Miss Gillies, who, with her parents, has just returned from visiting James Gillies Jr., who is a freshman at Yale, attended the North Shore Country Day school in Winnekta and Hollins college in Virginia. She was presented to society in the fall of 1932. She has one younger sister, Ruth. The wedding is planned for next spring.

Art Institute Plans Reception.

Invitations have been issued by the president and trustees of the Art institute for a reception on Friday afternoon, Dec. 14, from 3 until 5:30 o'clock to view the rearranged painting galleries, including important recent accessions and the following temporary exhibitions: A memorial exhibition of the work of John W. Norton, the salon of American humorists; an exhibition of modern German and Austrian textiles, the Hamilton Easter Field collection of American paintings and sculpture, and contemporary American paintings from the New York and Philadelphia exhibitions held by John Wanamaker, Inc.

The Antiquarian society and the Fortnightly will combine to preside at a tea table in gallery 25; the Chicago Woman's club, the Municipal Art league, the Chicago Woman's Aid, and the Art Institute Alumni association will be in charge of a table in gallery 45; a table in gallery 27 will be presided over by the Arché club and the Musicians' Club of Women; the Association of Arts and Industries, the Renaissance club, and the Chicago Drama league will have a table in gallery 30, and the Arts, the Contemporary, and the Friday clubs will cooperate at the table in gallery 48.

Miniature Room Display Dec. 16.

The formal opening of Mrs. James Ward Thorne's miniature rooms at the Chicago Historical society will be on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 16, at 3:30 o'clock.

Invitations to the debut of Miss Mildred Starck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip T. Starck, have been issued. Mr. and Mrs. Starck and their pretty young debutante will receive from 4 to 7 o'clock on Dec. 14 in their home at 330 Wellington avenue, and that night there will be a dinner dance for the bud, also at the Starck residence. Only the debutantes and their beaux are invited to that. Miss Starck finished at Miss Bennett's at Millbrook, N. Y., two years ago and last year went to the Finch school in New York.

Miss Louise Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Parsons of West Schiller street, will make her debut the same afternoon at a reception at the Fortnightly.

Dec. 24 is the date upon which Miss Harriett Street will make her formal bow to society. Her mother, Mrs. Harry L. Street, will receive with her from 5 until 8 o'clock at 1235 Astor street, where the Street family is spending the winter, having closed their Winnetka house during the cold weather.

Miss Street will arrive at home from Vassar just two days before the tea. Mrs. Street has three older daughters, Miss Marjorie, Miss Katharine, and Mrs. Thomas H. Knorr. Miss Katharine is in Denver now visiting her fiancé, James Reid Shannon, and his mother, Mrs. Edward Lincoln Shannon. The Street-Shannon wedding will take place next spring.

THE "very dear mother," whose real name is Mrs. Harrison Tweed, is coming to Chicago next week to lecture at the Arts club on the trend of the modern theater and to see her son in the Uptown Players' production at the Chicago Woman's club theater that opens Wednesday evening. Michael Strange herself last appeared on the stage in her own play, "The Byrons." She has published several volumes of verse, she was once Mrs. John Barrymore, she was born an Oelrichs, she wears her hair in a long bob and wears a hat only in a snowstorm, she frequently affects Byronic collars, and she is said to possess great charm.

MISS STEIN'S autograph brings to mind the story about the friend of Mrs. Bess Kime, one of the editors of the Journal of the American Dental association, who, when she learned that Mrs. Kime and her daughter, Hope, were going to see "Four Saints in Three Acts," sent them a copy of the libretto. She inscribed it, "Hope you . . . hope you and Hope . . . hope Hope . . . O, nuts."

LAST NIGHT WAS "sports night" at the Chicago Lying-In hospital's Merry-Go-Round at the Hotel Sherman and when Mrs. James Weber Linn announced to her committee that Kingfish Levinsky was going to appear, one of them had a sudden flash of recollection.

"Why, he was one of our dispensary babies," she said.

Another maid	Ruth Mills
A third maid	Mary Krakowski

Conductor, Gennaro Papi.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Miss Mason stopped the performance with "The Last Rose of Summer" in the second act. This in itself tells something about the way that "Martha" was received last night. An elderly and well known score, with a still more elderly and better known Irish folksong as one of its high points, took the attention of the public as few of the most ingenous modernisms have been able to do.

"Martha" is one of the most tuneful operas in the entire répertoire. That being the case, it calls for a cast of the most skilful singers of any opera company. Still further, when one has Miss Mason as the leading soprano of the group, with a voice of gold that has been worked out to just about twenty-four carats of fineness, the three others of the quartet should be something of the same order. Admitting that her English in "The Last Rose of Summer" was hardly as clear as her Italian in the rest of the opera, her tone in all of the performance was something to grow rapturous about. Hers is one of the great voices of the present era.

Wherefore there is extra reason to congratulate Miss Barron, Mr. Bentonelli, and Mr. Royer at being able to keep up their vocal parts and to sustain the performance. She set them a high mark at which to aim; they, one and all, found the central circle and hit it without fail. Mr. Bentonelli in particular was effective. It was predicted in the beginning that he would do things. He is doing them.

Maria Jeritza, who has been one of the striking personalities of the opera season, left for New York yesterday, having finished her assignments. It was hoped that later performances would present her in such works as "Die Walküre" and "Der Rosenkavalier." These operas, however, have for one reason and another gone into the discard, and therefore, with mutual regret, Mme. Jeritza is leaving until another season.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Mrs. Roosevelt this afternoon attended the concert of Fritz Kreisler, violinist, in Constitution hall, occupying the presidential box with her secretary, Mrs. Malvina Thompson Scheider, and a group of personal friends.

Earlier this afternoon Mrs. Roosevelt attended a meeting of the Chi Omega award committee which each year makes an award to the woman of the most outstanding achievement. Mrs. Roosevelt is a member of the committee, but is not a member of Chi Omega. The award at today's meeting was made to Frances Perkins, secretary of labor. Mrs. Roosevelt was hostess at dinner tonight to the members of the committee and the winner of the award. The presentation was made after dinner.

Mrs. Dern, wife of the secretary of war, gave a tea this afternoon at their home in the interest of the "talking book reading machine" for the blind.

SOCIETY AT OPERA

Like many of the guests who attended London's recent royal wedding, Mrs. Johnson Davis carried a bouquet of white violets last night when she attended the performance of Flotow's "Martha" in the Civic Opera house. Worn with a clinging wine velvet gown, the bouquet attracted more than one admiring comment from friends during the three intermissions.

Mrs. Davis was a member of a main floor box party that included Mr. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Davis, and Mr. and Mrs. John Goodall. Just across the aile from this party Mr. and Mrs. James Scott Kemper entertained Dr. and Mrs. Ashley Gerhart and Mr. and Mrs. James B. Westcott.

Some of the dignified dowagers who have stanchly maintained with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler that the manners of the younger generation are shocking found fuel for their argument in the post-deb who, gowned in velvet and mink, occupied a first row seat on the main floor and enjoyed gum throughout the evening.

Wearing a décoletté gown of black satin Mrs. Arthur Meeker was strikingly attractive. Mrs. Meeker, accompanied by her son, Arthur Meeker Jr., was with a box party that included Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ranney and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gillette. George W. Rossetter, president of the opera company, and Mrs. Rossetter entertained Mr. and Mrs. George Edson Bliss and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Williams. A member of another large box party, Mrs. Hubert Burnham was distinctively gowned in white crêpe trimmed with elaborate mink lapels.

Robert Ayer on New Trip as Seaman

Prefers Work with Travels to South America.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Sun bathed decks, a star flecked ceiling, large sprawiing chairs, and ancient civilizations passing in review may be the lure for most winter travelers, but for one young Chicagoan it's the sailor's vernacular with the feel of swabbing decks, stoking furnaces, and handling the ship's wheel.

Robert McCormick Ayer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Ayer and Harvard graduate in the class of 1932, is moving into the harbor at Talara, Peru, this morning as a member of the crew of the Santa Maria. Mr. Ayer tried the South American trip for the first time in the early fall as a sequel to his 1933 adventure around the world as an ordinary seaman. He liked it so much and is so interested in obtaining his mate's license that he was ready to turn around and repeat two weeks ago yesterday when the Santa Maria dropped anchor in New York.

The Santa Maria will make its southernmost call Dec. 13 at Valparaiso in Chile, vale of paradise, Valpo as it is affectionately called. Viña del Mar, the Lido of South America, is there, and Santiago, the Chilean capital, not far away. With the snow capped Andes for a background this city is set like a jewel. Down from the Andes every morning before dawn come the "criers" on donkeyback to hawk everything from straw mats to hot meat pies through the cobbled city streets. One of Chile's most picturesque sights.

Mrs. Julius Rosenwald will be passing through the Panama canal just about Christmas time, for she is sailing Dec. 22 from New York for San Francisco. There she will embark Jan. 18 on the S. S. Malolo for at least six weeks in Honolulu.

Travel in this direction is decidedly on the increase this year, in fact so much so that one steamship line is running a boat train, European style, from Chicago Jan. 22 to connect with the S. S. Lurline Jan. 25 out of San Francisco. But then travel has been on the increase every year since the first white tourist, Capt. James Cook, put in at Kauai, one of the eight Hawaiian islands, Jan. 18, 1778.

Perhaps it's because the islands are such a combination of the sophisticated and the idyllic, the orient and the occident, ancient Polynesia and modern America. The lei used in welcome and farewell personifies their spirit of friendliness. As the visitor steps ashore, friends proffer garlands of plumeria, carnations, ginger flowers, and maile and the lei custom dictates that he must wear them. On departure he must also keep his lei until the ship is off port. Then if it drifts ashore when cast into the sea, legend says that he will return.

There will be leis for Mrs. Rosenwald when she steps down the gangplank in Honolulu, also for Miss Joanna Fortune, who is climaxing her oriental trip this month with a stopover in the islands. Now aboard the S. S. Chichibi Maru with Miss Harriet Monroe, Miss Fortune will be in Honolulu the end of this week. Miss Monroe is coming directly to Chicago.

Pleasant envy goes with Mr. and Mrs. Hyde Wallace Perce, Oak Park residents, as they leave Chicago today to embark tomorrow in New York on the S. S. President Wilson, on a world holiday. For them the journey is the fulfilment of a long harbored desire to see such out of the way places as beautiful Bali, the thriving colony of Java, ancient Angkor, and tropical Penang. Their itinerary takes them around through the Panama canal, across to Honolulu, Japan, China, then to the Malay states, on to India, Egypt, Italy, and home. If they remain to enjoy springtime in Naples and Florence, it will be the beginning of May by the time they are back in Chicago.

Of all the experiences in store, Mrs. Perce is anticipating Bali the most. She wants to see "this other Eden" that writers have run out of adjectives to describe . . . its ceremonials, its theaters, its religious festivals all set against a backdrop of jungle green.

Heads Plays for Children

Miss Helen Bell.

Start January 26

Miss Helen Bell, the talented director of the Junior League Children's theater, has exciting news for Chicago's children: The league will open its winter program of children's plays with "Snow White" on Saturday morning, Jan. 26, and will continue with the same play for the following three Saturdays. Try-outs for the play will be held from Christmas until New Year's, and rehersals will begin on Jan. 2.

The league's second art exhibit will open Thursday, Dec. 13, in the offices with a tea from 3 until 6 o'clock. The water colors and oils of Mrs. Huntly H. Gilbert, Mrs. Frederic Clay Bartlett Jr., and Miss Emeline Bush will be shown.

Guests Give Biggest Hand to Shakespeare

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The first alliance of motion pictures with the spoken classic drama in the history of the theater began at McVicker's last night. The Old Globe players of A Century of Progress, with their fleet and expert condensations of Shakespeare's texts, joined with the mechanized amusement of the cinema studios, and the effect of the program was decidedly gratifying.

This was an inaugural bill, with extra flourishes in the way of pageantry and a recital of Elizabethan songs. The audience was, in part, an assemblage of guests of honor, and probably was not representative of the mass of steady cinema house patrons. Its reactions, therefore, may not have been indicative of the attitude of today's attendance upon the regular continuous performance.

However, it must be recorded that Shakespeare was a greater hit last night than the accompanying movie—an adaptation of Charlotte Brontë's famous Victorian novel, "Jane Eyre," with Virginia Bruce and Colin Clive in the central rôles. Shakespeare was followed with keen attention and applauded with an outburst of enthusiasm. The photographed love story of Miss Brontë's sentimental tale was received with a touch of derision; its old school attitudes apparently made the audience feel showboat-y and satirical.

No doubt I shall have to go back to McVicker's again to complete my observations. I am eager to learn the results of the experiment upon the genuine motion picture guinea pig, who will take the romance of Jane Eyre and the unfortunate Mr. Rochester as seriously as myself.

The program started with a flourish of theatrical history. An incarnation of James McVicker, who built the first theater to stand on this site in 1858, came down the aile, an ante-bellum dandy, with his fair daughter Mary, who married Edwin Booth, on his arm. In real life they were Clyde Oliver of the Merrie England pageants last summer and Miss Jackson Perkins, leading comedienne of the Old Globe company.

The curtain rose to reveal the entire troupe of Shakespeareans framed in their familiar Elizabethian setting. Mr. McVicker addressed them in a prolog that summoned up the ghosts of the past, recalling how he always played the first grave digger when "Hamlet" was the bill. Miss McVicker declared that she was ready to take a shot at the rôle of Shakespeare's Shrew. And so the show began.

"Julius Caesar," edited into a compact drama of conspiracy, assassination and revolution, had the place of honor on the bill. With John A. Willard as Mark Antony and Carl Benton Reid as Brutus, it is one of the best of the Old Globe's performances. Willard's delivery of the funeral oration is a brilliant piece of Shakespearean acting. It has the modern trend toward realism, but in its dramatic effect, without much support from the listening crowd of Romans, it equals any that I have heard.

Then came "Jane Eyre," during which I eyed the enlarged image of Virginia Bruce with admiration. I haven't heard any film fans raving over this blonde lady, but I am willing to cheer alone if necessary.

Old English songs, accompanied by the virginal and the recorders mentioned in "Hamlet" then made a transition into "The Taming of the Shrew," in which Miss Perkins is a captivating and impetuous Katharine, and Carl Benton Reid is a Petruchio who causes veterans to proclaim that they never saw a better.

The Forgotten Honeymoon

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS.

Rhoda Cornboise's engagement to Maj. Ralph Stornack is arranged by her ambitious mother. Rhoda is in love with Colin Briarley, who is serving sentence unjustly for the murder of a Canadian solicitor in a London night club. Chief witness against Colin was Stornack, who was the solicitor's host. Rhoda met Stornack when he called to express his regret for the testimony he had to give at her lover's trial. Jack Caermaen, an old pal of Colin's, is his warder. Caermaen takes Colin's place as prisoner, allowing Colin to use his week's vacation. Rhoda elopes with Colin on the eve of her marriage to Stornack. After a brief honeymoon Colin returns to prison. Rhoda returns home and feigns a lapse of memory. Her mother besieges her to marry Stornack, who is still willing. He and his confederates know she has inherited the fortune of a Canadian relative. The solicitor had come to London to tell her of it. It was Stornack who killed him. Caermaen has his solicitor, Jarroman, investigate Stornack. Rhoda leaves home and stays with friends of Caermaen, the Rawlings, in London. Her mother follows with a court order placing Rhoda under her charge. Mrs. Cornboise takes Rhoda to France, where the son of Rhoda and Colin is born. The baby is left there when they return to London. Caermaen arranges to get Colin out of prison again for a few days. Rhoda flies with Colin to see their son. Mrs. Cornboise sees Colin and penetrates the mystery of his excursions from jail. She threatens to expose Caermaen if Rhoda doesn't marry Stornack. Giving up hope of Colin's release Rhoda decides to marry Stornack in order to protect Caermaen. Stornack, with his confederates, Leningway and Galston, arrange a mock marriage, in order to get Rhoda to sign over her fortune to him. He rents a home in a village near London, where the wedding is to take place. Rhoda writes Colin of her intention. Caermaen aids Colin to make another secret escape.

INSTALMENT XXXIX.

A MOCK MARRIAGE.

As on the previous occasions, Jack Caermaen laced up the boots while Colin buttoned himself into the warder's tunic.

Then the final warder's speech by Caermaen.

"I've had trouble enough with you, Eighty-Seven. Hardly a week passes but I have to open this door for something or other. Just mind out what you're doing."

But it was Colin Briarley who stepped out into the corridor and locked the cell door.

The relief came a couple of minutes later. As before everything worked like clockwork. As he made his way to Carmoddle Villas Colin thought for a moment of the pitcher that went often to the well.

"Well—it hasn't broken this time and that's all that matters," he mused as he entered the little house.

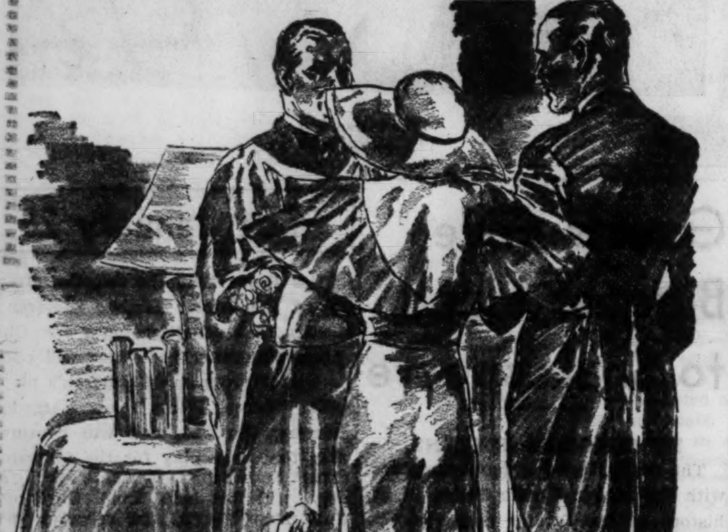
Ten minutes later he had dumped the warder's uniform and was once more a smart young man about town to look at.

"Jack, old boy, this is where I abuse your hospitality. But you'll know eventually why I'm doing it."

He went downstairs to the sitting room, opened all the drawers, then rummaged through them and shut them again.

"I know he's got it here somewhere. I wonder where he keeps it. I'll try under the bed."

Upstairs again—to drag from under the bed, first a trunk and then a military valise. The valise was locked on a padlock. Downstairs and up again with a poker. With the poker he forced the padlock. Inside was Caermaen's rig-out as an officer of the R. A. F.—mess kit which he was still entitled to wear on festive occasions.



"We want as little ceremony as possible."

Colin put the revolver in the pocket of a light overcoat. He slung the overcoat over his arm and strolled to the station.

He caught the two-fifteen to London.

At half-past twelve Rhoda, with her father and mother, stepped into the car that was to take them to Landkey-on-Thames. Mrs. Cornboise was, as usual, smartly dressed but there was no suggestion of wedding finery about any of them.

Rhoda was not flinching. In all honesty she believed that she was taking the only honorable course. To "marry" Stornack before her mother's ultimatum expired—before Jack Caermaen knew what she was doing. When it was all over she would telegraph to him and tell him that he need never give himself up.

"I think I've written to nearly every one we know," remarked Mrs. Cornboise as the car drew clear of the trafic belt. "I've told them all that it's an American wedding. The Americans all get married in a private house—at least to judge by the films I've seen."

Neither of them made any reply. "The Professor" was looking gloomy—for he had sensed that Rhoda was unhappy.

"Here we are!" exclaimed Mrs. Cornboise. "How extremely picturesque—and how much nicer than a crowded hotel! Rhoda, you are in luck!"

"Yes, mother," said Rhoda.

Ralph Stornack came to the wicket gate to welcome them. Behind him was a rather rough looking man, like a farmer. And, further back, a man in clerical dress.

To Rhoda, Mrs. Cornboise said in an undertone: "Wake up, dear, we're here!"

Rhoda allowed herself to be prodded out of the car. She smiled when Ralph spoke to her—smiled again when he introduced the man that looked like a farmer.

"This is my friend, Mr. Leningway," said Ralph Stornack. And something pierced the fog that had settled upon Rhoda's sensibilities.

Leningway! She had heard that name somewhere before. In a conversation with Jarroman. In connection with the talk about Uncle Peter that had all come to nothing. What could it matter!

She was introduced to the clergyman but did not catch his name.

They were all being shepherded into the cottage.

"Well, I think we're all here!" said Stornack facetiously, and then to the man in clerical dress: "We want as little ceremony as possible. Will you start, please—and I hope you will give us the shortest possible form."

"Very good, sir!" said the clergyman, which was a rather singlar remark for a clergyman to make. But Mrs. Cornboise's attention was elsewhere and Rhoda did not care.

When the essential passage of the ceremony had been muttered very indistinctly, a convincing looking book was produced; bride and bridegroom signed it and then the witnesses. As soon as this had been done the "parson" picked up the book, handed a certificate to Rhoda, and departed with almost indecent haste.

"I think they're so sensible—these American weddings!" said Mrs. Cornboise. "There's no fuss, and we don't have to be formal with each other."

Rhoda was aware that some one had given her a full glass, and presently that they were drinking the health of the bride. And then that Stornack was standing very close to her.

"Here's to us, darling! . . . Aren't you going to drink the toast?"

"Why, of course I am!" said Rhoda, with the same bright smile. She drained the glass at a gulp and it made her cough. The unaccustomed wine made her feel dizzy and increased the sensation of being outside herself—of watching herself smiling and talking as if she were some one else.

"Well, now we are going! Good-by, Rhoda dear! I'm sure you and Ralph will have every happiness."

"And if your mother's confidence should be falsified by events, do not hesitate to return to us," said her father before Mrs. Cornboise could interrupt him.

Ralph took her to the wicket gate to wave good-by to her parents, then, his arm about her waist, took her back to the cottage. Leningway showed no signs of going.

"And now, I think, if we make ourselves extra polite to Mr. Leningway he will produce a little surprise for us," said Stornack in his rôle of fatuous bridegroom.

From behind a chair Leningway produced an attaché case and opened it. While he was spreading the papers on the table Stornack went on:

"I have never talked to you about money, my dear, because I know you don't care for such things. Now I'm not a rich man, but I am able to make some small provision for you."

"A very generous provision," said Leningway, speaking his rehersed speech.

"You have always been generous to me, Ralph!" she said, while she hoped that, whatever it was, it would not take long. She wanted to get out into the air.

"I had better read aloud the text of the documents," said Leningway.. "I'm afraid Mrs. Stornack will find them rather long and rather dry to digest . . . 'whereas a marriage has been arranged and solemnized in the village of Landkey-on-Thames in the county of ——' "

"O, I say, old man! Surely we needn't sit through all that!"

"I guess we can cut if you wish," said Leningway. "You've read it all through yourself, but what about Mrs. Stornack?"

Neither of them made any reply. 'The Professor' was looking gloomy—

Betty Gillies Is Engaged to Dr. Mackenzie

ern furnishings at the old Potter Palmer residence for the benefit of the Children's Memorial and St. Luke's hospitals reveals that more than the $9,000 announced last week was realized. Each hospital will receive $5,375, for the total is $10,750. Mrs. Frank Hibbard was chairman of the committee, of which Mrs. John W. Gary and Mrs. Joseph H. King were the vice chairmen.

The benefit the woman's aid society of the Passavant Memorial hospital gave recently cleared $9,500, it was announced yesterday by the president, Mrs. Francis Johnson. The society took over the opening night of Max Reinhardt's production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which ends its engagement here tomorrow night.

Mrs. Lennox Haldeman, publicity chairman for the Sunbeam league, reports that the league cleared $3,500 as the result of its recent ball for the benefit of the kindergartens it supports for underprivileged children.

Mrs. Stephen Garretson Browning, that charming lady who celebrated her 97th birthday last March, is back from Cooperstown, N. Y., at the apartment of her daughter and son-in-law, the Frank Loesches, at the Drake hotel.

Gardner Catlins Have Daughter.

From Waterbury, Conn., comes the news of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Gardner C. Catlin of that city. Mrs. Catlin is the former Jeannette Todd of Evanston. The baby has been named Elizabeth Ann.

Mrs. Arthur M. Barnhart and her son, Arthur Barnhart, have returned from an extended stay at the Lake Placid club in the Adirondacks. Mr. Barnhart will divide his time this winter between the family home on Drexel boulevard and the Drake hotel. Mrs. Barnhart expects to return to Lake Placid at Christmas time.

Miss Helen Fulton will fly home Dec. 13 from the University of Southern California to spend the Christmas holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Fulton of Winnetka. According to the new ranking of Chicago tennis players, Miss Fulton is now number 1 woman player for this district. She is not playing any tennis just now, however, nor will she for another three months, because she fell during a badminton game a few weeks ago and injured her hip.

Mrs. C. D. Sherman Wed to T. W. Childs

Mr. and Mrs. John Thomas Meeks of Columbus, O., are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Mrs. Oliver D. Sherman [Mildred Meeks] to Theron Walstein Childs which took place on Thanksgiving day in the Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park. The wedding took place at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of the bride's daughter, Mary Dale, and a few relatives, and a reception followed at the home of the bridegroom's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Randall. The Rev. Christoph Keller officiated.

Another wedding of interest to Chicagoans which took place on Thanksgiving day was that of George H. Ennis and Miss Bernice Brinkema, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Brinkema of Omaha, Neb. The wedding took place at noon at the home of the bride's parents, with the bride's father officiating. Mrs. William S. Ennis and her daughter, Margaret, who returned from the west, attended their son and brother's wedding, but William H. Ennis and Lambert H. Ennis, the bridegroom's brothers, could not get away for the ceremony. Harry Nacey Jr. served Mr. Ennis as best man.

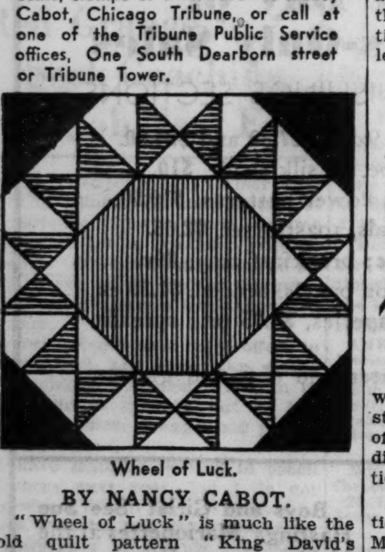
Divide Time at Two Teas.

Quite a number of women went from the Arts club to the Casino or vice versa yesterday afternoon, for there was a tea of interest in each club. The one at the Casino was given for the committee in charge of the Women's Trade Union league benefit on Dec. 26, the opening night of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe's engagement.

The tea at the Arts club had a Russian ballet flavor, too, for it opened an exhibition of modern paintings collected by Leonide Massine, ballet master of the Monte Carlo Ballet Russe. An exhibition of drawings by Jean Cocteau was opened, too. Mrs. James Ward Thorne, new chairman of the reception committee, was there to greet every one, looking charming in a gown of violet satin and a black velvet hat.

"Wheel of Luck" Quilt Block Has Tennessee Origin

Patterns of this quilt design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.



Wheel of Luck.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Wheel of Luck" is much like the old quilt pattern "King David's Crown." Today's quilt pattern comes from the mountains of Tennessee and first was pieced by an old colored mammy who admitted making eighty-five quilts "all by herself." White and two shades of red were the original colors used. Modern color schemes allow a more elaborate and highly decorative combination.

Lovely for Parties or Play

CHILD'S DRESS.

Small children need a good many dresses, and this simple little design will be pretty for play or for parties. For parties a pale blue organdy in combination with blue organdy, with tiny pink sprigged flowers, would be lovely. Pink grosgrain ribbon ties around the brief French bodice, and the puffed sleeves are pretty for dimpled arms. For playtime there are dimities, ginghams, and other wash materials.

The pattern, No. 2612, comes in sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. A dress for a 19 inch doll is included in this pattern.

Large Letters Are Held Key to Personality

GRAPHOLOGY COUPON
Your Handwriting Analyzed

Know your assets, handicaps, talents, and emotions. Obtain a personal graphology chart. Here are the rules:

1. Clip this coupon, attach a sample of handwriting, and mail to Muriel Stafford, box 1539, Chicago Tribune.
2. Enclose 10 cents (carefully wrapped) for each sample of handwriting you wish analyzed.
3. Enclose a self-addressed STAMPED envelope, folded once.

BY MURIEL STAFFORD.

Beauty fades quickly. Wealth can fade even more quickly. Brains are often unappreciated. But a magnetic personality will draw people to you regardless of your looks, your wealth or your mental ability.

This does not signify that you can always keep these people as friends, but if you are interesting and sincere as well as magnetic there is certainly no reason why you can't.

You will often find that people who have an enigmatical charm write a large and flowing hand with beautiful capitals. Practically all stage people write this way. A warm and expansive personality seems to express itself in letters that are wide and large.

The real secret of personal magnetism is usually an unselfish love of humanity, so that you will find the letters are inclined to the right except in rare cases.

Notice the terminals. You will find them curving up in a gracious, benevolent manner. You will often find that the letter M has a "W" shaped appearance. The "u-shaped n" and the "w-shaped m" are always indications of charm and poise, whether the letters are capitals or not.

Grace Moore

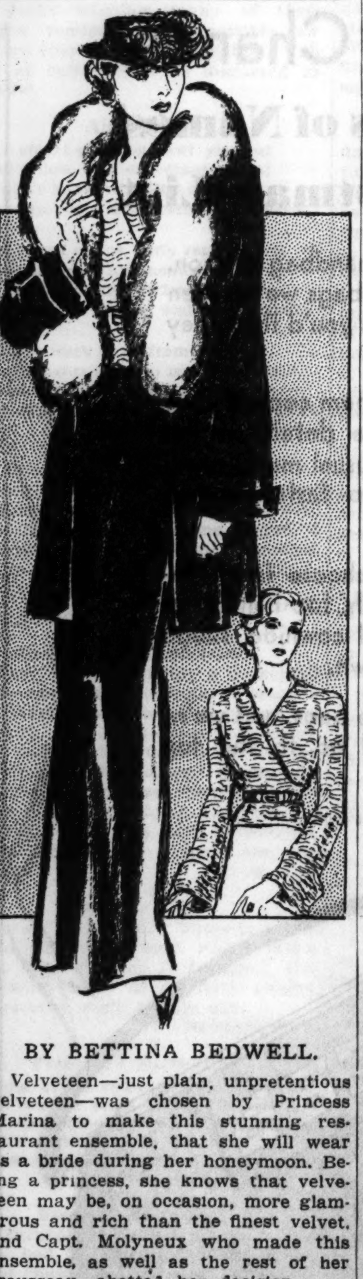
Dorothy Stone

For today's illustration of handwriting I am using two successful stage personalities. These signatures of Grace Moore and Dorothy Stone display many of the magnetic qualities I have mentioned.

A rhythmical flow is especially noticeable in the handwriting of Miss Moore, the opera singer. The writing has the "rounded" quality that is so often found in the handwriting of true musicians. Here is an example of the "W-shaped capital M," also.

Miss Stone's writing is darker and more intense in many ways. Both of these actresses write extraordinarily large and the slant is decidedly forward, as you can see.

Velveteen Makes Smart Ensemble for Royal Bride



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

Velveteen—just plain, unpretentious velveteen—was chosen by Princess Marina to make this stunning restaurant ensemble, that she will wear as a bride during her honeymoon. Being a princess, she knows that velveteen may be, on occasion, more glamorous and rich than the finest velvet, and Capt. Molyneux who made this ensemble, as well as the rest of her trousseau, abetted her decision.

The jacket and instep length skirt are of velveteen in a rich, winey brown color. The former, like many of the wraps in the royal trousseau, is moderately long, and hangs loose from simple, well tailored shoulder lines. It has loose sleeves, and an important, but simple, collar of blue fox. The skirt is cut on the bias and has a bit of circular movement towards the front.

BY MARY MEADE.

Do your candies wiggle? Some of the latest and best sorts of confections do, we find, for they are being made from that most quivery and versatile ingredient—gelatin.

Our latest discovery turns out to be Gelatin Rainbow Wafers—beloved by youngsters from 6 to 60 and available for the ridiculously small figure of 16 cents for 300 pieces! The following recipe does the trick:

Gelatin Rainbow Wafers.

1 tablespoon unflavored granulated gelatin
1½ tablespoons cold water
2 tablespoons boiling water
1 pound confectioners' sugar
Coloring (liquid, powder, or paste)
Flavorings

Pour the cold water into a bowl and sprinkle the gelatin on top of it. Add the boiling water and stir until the gelatin is thoroughly dissolved. Add two cups of the sugar and mix well. Turn the candy out onto a board dredged with sifted confectioners' sugar and knead until perfectly smooth. Now divide the mixture into as many sections as you wish and sprinkle the desired colors and flavorings over each section. Knead these in well, then work into each enough additional sugar to make stiff again. This will take the rest of the pound of sugar. Roll out each section separately, cleaning the board between each rolling. The candy should be worked out as thin as possible, then cut in one inch rounds with a biscuit cutter or the top of a sharp can lid. If you would like part of your wafers chocolate flavored, work cocoa into one section in place of some of the sugar. Vanilla, peppermint, cinnamon, sassafras, clove, wintergreen, or lemon may be used for flavoring.

Turkish Delights.

4 tablespoons unflavored gelatin
1 cup cold water
4 cups sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1½ cups boiling water
½ teaspoon peppermint extract
1 teaspoon cinnamon extract
Red and green coloring

Heat the sugar, salt, and boiling water to the boiling point. Pour the cold water in a bowl and sprinkle the gelatin on the water's surface. Add to the hot sirup and stir until the gelatin is completely dissolved. Boil slowly for fifteen minutes. Remove from the fire and divide into two equal parts. Color one part a deep rose and flavor it with the cinnamon extract. Color the other part a pleasantly light green and flavor with the peppermint extract. Rinse out two pans (8 by 4 inches) with cold water, pouring the green candy into one pan, the red into the other. Let stand in a cool place (not in the refrigerator) for about twelve hours to stiffen thoroughly. Then gently loosen the candy from the pan edges with a thin knife and turn out onto a surface lightly dredged with confectioners' sugar. Cut into cubes and roll these in confectioners' or finely granulated sugar.

Fifth Member of Beery Clan Enters Movies

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—A fifth member of the clan of Beery is now breaking into films. This is Carol Ann, Wallace Beery's four year old adopted daughter. She plays the infant Maureen O'Sullivan in "West Point of the Air," army flying field romance in which her dad, Lew Stone, Robert Young, Jim Gleason, Russell Hardie and others have been appearing in shots made at Kelly field, San Antonio, and here.

Carol Ann appears as the commander's daughter in prolog scenes. The commander's daughter as a grownup is Miss O'Sullivan, who marries Beery's son [Bob Young]. The other Beerys in pictures are Carol Ann's daddy, her uncle, Noah Beery; Noah Beery Jr. and Bill Beery, an extra and bits actor in westerns.

Lew Ayres and Ginger Rogers have moved into a new city version of a Spanish farmhouse on Roxbury drive, Beverly Hills.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

SOME OBSERVATIONS ON REBIDDING.

I think it may help you if I give a short resumé of the considerations which influence me when I have opened the bidding with one in a suit, and my partner makes any one of the various "minimum" responses which are available to him. Lately we have discussed some very advanced bidding and I hope that you now see the real reasons for many of the "revolutionary" bidding methods which you had to take on trust in the earlier articles. One cannot explain everything at once; consequently one must, in some instances, put the cart before the horse for the time being.

When You Opened as Dealer or in Second Position.

In these positions, you have rebid material in your hand. Remember that your partner knows this; consequently he will not feel impelled to force you to do what you should have natural reasons for doing. If his response is one no trump, his hand is not necessarily within a trifle of a pass; it may be within a trifle of a two no trump response, or a takeout in two of a lower ranking suit. So do not be timid about rebidding, especially if your hand is not strictly defensive in type. If your hand as a whole is pretty good, do not shrink from bidding in reply a somewhat shaded secondary four card suit, especially with 5-4-2-2 distribution and no real solidity in your first suit. I would bid a second suit rather lightly, or else rebid a five card suit without any reserve factors in the hand; but I would be cautious about raising to two no trumps, as this usually imposes a difficult problem on the responder. On the other hand, if the response to your opening bid is two in a lower suit, now I would rebid to two no trumps rather lightly. As I have endeavored to explain in the last two weeks, the lower suit takeout in itself promises some kind of fairly safe rebid; there is safety either in your suit, or in your partner's, or no trumps. So be eager to make a constructive and informative rebid. If you now bid a second suit yourself, that is the nearest thing to a forcing bid without actually being one. Two no trumps is only slightly less so. The weaker "chance givers" are to raise your partner's suit [showing a good fit, but disclaiming ability to take the strain by jumping to game] or, still less so by rebidding your own suit, which throws most of the responsibility back to your partner. When you really do not need, and cannot expect, normal trump support from your partner, do not be afraid to jump in rebidding your suit.

After Having Passed Originally With:

Sp.—K Q J 9 x x Di.—K x x x
Ht.—x x Cl.—x

if you open in third or fourth position with a spade and your partner bids two diamonds, take the strain by bidding three spades. How else can he know that if he holds no more than

Sp.—10 x Di.—A Q x x x
Ht.—K J x Cl.—x x x

the game will depend on a heart finesse only. If the enemy attack that suit before you can knock out the ace of trumps? Had the response been one no trump, you could rebid to two spades. The diamond takeout enables you to force because [a] you know that your singleton club is not a duplication; [b] your spade suit can really stand by itself; but if the hand is a freak and your partner is void in it, spades, the fit is there in diamonds. A force means "no eventual misfit; safety guaranteed somewhere."

Experience Brings Relief and Relaxation.

Only by studying my methods in pairs and by developing fine partnerships through practice and experience will you be able to make the most of my system. Do not try to put new wine into old bottles. When you have developed real Sims partnerships with players in your club or group, you will, I am sure, say to yourself, "Sims makes us work and think and judge for ourselves where others gave us tables to refer to or counts to rely on. He took away our abilis, but God bless him for teaching us when not to force."

Toys Should Be Suited to Child's Skill

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The matter of age is one of the first things to consider in buying toys at Christmas time—or any other time for that matter. The small child has certain needs and skills—he must learn first the use of the large muscles and should therefore have playthings that he can manipulate without the danger of failure lurking in the offings.

Just taking the matter of trains alone—you can tell, by watching, when the big locomotive to be pushed can be replaced by the one to be pulled by a string, to be followed by a windup without a track, then one with a track, and finally by the popular electric train. By carefully observing your child you can gauge what he is equal to.

There are, however, other points to consider in this matter of toy selection.

Playthings should be well made. A flimsy toy is not only an expense in the end but is a source of irritation or frustration to a child when it breaks or falls apart or—worst thing of all—when it doesn't work.

The third and possibly most important thing of all is that the toy shall give the child something to do. The mechanical toy—the plaything which does the doing while the child looks on, has no value to him at all. Don't invest your money in such contrivances, but choose instead the toy which allows for your child's activity and play of imagination.

We have lists of playthings—graded to age—which are sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Learn President, Not Mrs. Roosevelt, Picked New China

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—President Roosevelt and not Mrs. Roosevelt—as most people suspected—picked out the design for the new 1,000 piece china set for the White House.

However, Mrs. Roosevelt did add her own Rooseveltian touch—a delicate design of three roses from the family crest in lieu of the conventional scrolls on the inside rim.

The china has a blue band with gold edge and gold stars, topped by the President's seal.

She made it clear it was the President's seal, "which all White House china always carries," and not the Roosevelt crest, as had been erroneously rumored, which was used.

Her only part in the choice of the $9,000 china, Mrs. Roosevelt said, was to suggest it would make it more interesting historically, since the White House keeps a china collection, to have some touch distinctive of the administration, and the roses from the old Dutch coat of arms were chosen.

Previous Presidents had left precedents for distinctive marking of china sets, notably Benjamin Harrison, who had his name and the date put on the back of each plate.

Griffin, Dudley Art Exhibitions Please Critic

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Two one-man shows by women painters, both of them Chicagoans, have opened. Under the auspices of the All-Illinois Society of the Fine Arts, Nina K. Griffin is showing a delightful group of water colors in the Lord Nelson room at the Drake hotel. In the Roullier gallery, Fine Arts building, Katharine Dudley is showing recent orientals and portraits in pastel.

Katharine Dudley has been seen here before with an occasional portrait of much subtle beauty in the annual Members' show at the Arts club. This more complete representation of her work is welcome; it betrays her as the polished technician, leaning ever so lightly upon the influence of Matisse and Renoir. When she is pure, Katharine Dudley, as in the various "Gardens" and in her portraits, she is the most satisfying and the most fascinating.

The influence of Matisse and of Renoir, but the Renoir of sixty years and failing eyesight, the "raspberry" Renoir is seen particularly in the series of oriental boudoir interiors, where plump houris loll relaxed against soft cushions. One after the other, these are unvaryingly sweet and the colors fairly drool in their overripe beauty.

The substantial contrast is discovered in the charm of the children's portraits, a group of which makes an admirable foil.

Nina K. Griffith offers a delightful exhibit. Her water colors are fresh and sparkling, gay in color, and beautiful in design. They deal with flowers, fruit, pottery, glass—almost any lovely thing is grist for Mrs. Griffith's mill, and she turns it all into myriad radiant compositions.

The touch of modern drawing in "Interior" is amusing. The street scene, "Chicago in Winter," is most effective. The show is one of the best in town. It will continue to Dec. 24.

Hair at Back of Head Must Be Coiffed Neatly for Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Every time you attend a theater or concert you realize that women, on the whole fail on one fine feature of interest—a smart looking back of the head, indicating that hand mirrors must be used as dressing table decorations only. It indicates, too, the old ostrich idea of what you yourself can't see must go unobserved by others. It's when you see a beautifully styled back of a woman's head that you realize how completely alluring this particular charm can be. But there's probably only one of her type at most, in the row of seats ahead. Unless it is one of the big dress occasions with locks fresh from the professional's hands atop the ermine collars.

Such a sight greeted these prying eyes recently behind the diamond horseshoe row. It seemed that every head was dressed not only for the handsome Canadian mounties out front to see, but to gladden the eye of occupants of seats behind. In such a group you begin to realize what an all round beautifully turned out head can be. I could have picked out dozens and dozens of examples from that handsome group of women.

Anyway, this back of the head study is something for all women to take up. You've been exceedingly smart about back lines on the frock. You know to a T just where a seam, a tuck or a little fulness should be to improve the silhouette. You've studied that back in a triple mirror or with a large hand mirror. And you've done snappy things with the figure in consequence. The back of the head has form, line, symmetry. Its smart treatment slims the neck, creates interest, presents a picture. So, don't be old fashioned and think you're through with a front and side hair arrangement. Get line and shape to the back of the head. When you buy a hat, its back effect is important enough for you to ask for a hand mirror. The back hair is even more important.

C. Y. O. BOXERS FIGHT FOR TITLES TONIGHT

CRAYNE NAMED MOST VALUABLE ON IOWA ELEVEN

ALL HAWKEYES CAST VOTES FOR STAR FULL BACK

Excels as Punter and Ball Carrier.

Honor Roll

EIGHT Big Ten schools have named their most valuable players. They are:

Dick Crayne, Iowa, full back.
Les Lindberg, Illinois, half back.
Ed Whalen, Northwestern, guard.
Gomer Jones, Ohio State, center.
Duane Purvis, Purdue, half back.
Gerald Ford, Michigan, center.
Pug Lund, Minnesota, half back.
Milt Kummer, Wisconsin, guard.

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Dick Crayne, who has played full back for two years, is the University of Iowa nominee for THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's most valuable player award.

When Hawkeye players voted for the most valuable man on the 1934 team, Crayne's name was on all except one ballot. The star full back voted for Capt. Russ Fisher, quarter back.

With characteristic modesty, Crayne answered the question of "How did you get away for so many long runs?" asked by a fan during the 1933 season by asserting, "All I did was follow the blockers."

This year, however, there weren't any blockers and the triple threat back was often stopped before he had taken two steps behind the line of scrimmage. Despite this he gained 432 yards, averaging 3.3 on each attempt in Iowa's eight games.

Scored Seven Touchdowns.

He was also high scorer on the Hawkeye team with seven touchdowns, equaling his own high scoring record of last season. He participated in the longest forward pass gain recorded by the Iowans in recent years, 68 yards, to Frank Jakoubek in the Purdue game.

Although Crayne was the spearhead of the Iowa running and passing attack, Coach Ossie Solem found him even more valuable as a punter. It was the 190 pound junior full back who pulled the Hawkeyes out of numerous dangerous spots. Probably the most notable example of his worth as a kicker was in the Indiana game when he punted from behind his own goal line out of bounds on the Hoosier two yard mark. This, of course, was with the aid of a strong wind, but he turned in an average of approximately 45 yards for the entire season.

Modesty and willingness to work are the qualities which have made Crayne one of the most popular men on the Hawkeye squad. Sports writers throughout the middle west commented on the fact that he never loafed or slowed his pace even though he received little coöperation from blockers.

Shuns a Day Off.

Following the Minnesota game, in which Crayne carried the ball on nearly every Iowa play and was hit hard on every attempt, Coach Solem told the full back that he could take Monday off from practice. Crayne surprised the coach by asking: "Will it be all right if I put on a suit and take a light workout, anyway? I don't want the fellows to think I have become a prima donna."

Besides playing football and competing in indoor and outdoor track, Crayne works four hours a day to help defray expenses in attending the university. He arises at 4 a. m. the year round to deliver milk for a local dairy company.

Crayne's home is at Fairfield, Ia., where he starred as a football, basketball, and track man. He has never been a candidate for the Hawkeye basketball team. He runs the 220 yard low hurdles and 220 yard dash on the track team.

Crayne is 22 years old and is 6 feet tall. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta fraternity and the Hawk-I club, an organization of major letter men.

Red Grange to Seek Coaching Job Next Fall

Harold [Red] Grange, former University of Illinois star and captain of the champion Chicago Bears, became a candidate for a coaching position yesterday. Grange's retirement as an active player at the end of the present professional season was announced last week.

Several colleges have made offers to the once fleet half back who scored four touchdowns against Michigan in twelve minutes in 1924, but he has made no decision, Grange said yesterday.

"I have definitly decided to coach somewhere next year, but I do not know where it will be," he replied to reports that he had been sought by the University of Florida. "Florida officials have not approached me. I have talked with several Florida alumni, but they were acting in no official capacity. I assume if Florida wants me it will get in touch with me."

Grange said he would not make a decision on the offers he now has until after the close of the season.

Conacher Scores Winning Goal in First Period.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 4.—(AP)—The fast traveling Toronto Maple Leafs regained their winning stride tonight by shutting out the Boston Bruins, 1 to 0, before thirteen thousand, largest crowd of the season, at the Boston Garden.

The Leafs, who lost their first game of the season in Detroit Sunday night, gained their winning tally late in the opening period. Happy Day batted the puck over the Boston line. Charley Conacher gained it against the right boards, stick-handled through the Boston defense and across the lip of the cage before back-handing the rubber through crouching Tiny Thompson, the Boston goalie.

The Bruins, due to Toronto penalties, had several openings during the last two sessions, but their attack refused to click despite their five men waves. Several times in the final period the Leafs trapped the Bruins down-ice, but none was able to crack Thompson again despite his lack of protection.

FOOTBALL BETTING.

BETTING on football games, both in volume and in number of chance takers, reached maximum proportions in the season just closed. There is nothing significant in this, in our opinion, except revived interest in the sport.

Much of this speculation was in hat pools, score pools, and wagers between individuals fired by so-called loyalty to the "old home team." This kind of speculation has existed in the past.

The most notable increase was in the so-called professional betting—"pools," bets on single games, with the bookie laying odds against the better's choice, and a football adaptation of parlay wagering.

The "pools," in the main, were similar to those of baseball pools which have existed for years. Printed cards with eight teams punched are sold for 10 cents each—cash prizes to holder of tickets whose eight teams had the largest aggregate of points, and also lowest number of points. This is just pure luck, with the buyer of the card expressing no opinion on the results, taking merely what he draws.

Wagers with bookies on single games were not large, at least in Chicago. Since the odds-layer seldom could round out his book the odds offered were not attractive.

The wagers picking so many winners—on the parlay plan in principle—had an increasing vogue, with many small bets being laid at odds so favorable to the bookmaker that we doubt whether many of these betters realized the impossible percentage they were going against. This type of betting will be discussed tomorrow.

Name Guy Bush Defendant in $10,000 Injury Suit

Guy Bush, former Chicago Cubs' pitcher, was named defendant in a $10,000 personal injury suit filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Thomas McCullough, 35 years old, 4411 Beacon street. McCullough charged that Bush invited him for an automobile ride last Oct. 25, and drove so recklessly that a collision with another automobile occurred in Peterson avenue, near Damen.

CASEY GIVES UP JOB AS HARVARD FOOTBALL COACH

May Take Over His Old Frosh Post.

Cambridge, Mass., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Edward Laurance Casey, famous as one of Harvard's greatest football players and head coach of his alma mater for the last four years, resigned today, according to an announcement by William J. Bingham, director of athletics and member of the committee which accepted the resignation. Casey's action bore out predictions made during the recent season, when the Crimson was charged with five defeats, including two losses to its traditional foes, Yale and Princeton.

No choice of a successor to Casey had been made tonight, although Adam Walsh, captain and center of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen team, who was released as an assistant coach by Yale ten months ago, has been mentioned as a likely possibility. Other rumors have pointed to Harry Kipke, head coach at the University of Michigan; Arnold Horween, former Harvard star, who coached here from 1926 to 1930, and Wesley Fesler, one time Ohio State star, who has been the Crimson end coach for the last two years.

May Take Frosh Job.

Neither was any announcement made as to Casey's plans for the future, although it was indicated that because of his tremendous popularity he might be retained as freshman coach. As such, in the five years prior to his taking the post of head coach, Casey had phenomenal success,

Another report had it that Casey might succeed Lone Star Dietz, coach of the Boston Redskins of the National Professional league. The owner of the club, George Marshall of New York, is a close friend and admirer of Casey.

Casey, famed in his playing days as Lightning Eddie, made a name for himself first in the 1916 Harvard-Yale game. He ran the length of the field for a touchdown, only to have the score nullified by holding on the part of Dick Harte, Harvard end. Yale won the game, 6 to 3, but Casey, after a period of world war service, returned to school and was a big factor in the Crimson's 10 to 3 victory over Yale in 1919.

Received Degree in 1920.

Casey received his degree in 1920 and began his coaching career at Mount Union college, Alliance, O., in the same year. He then came on as back field coach under Horween and was named head coach in December, 1930, when the latter resigned.

During the recent season, Harvard lost to Holy Cross, 26 to 6; to Dartmouth, 10 to 0; to Princeton, 19 to 0; to Army, 27 to 6, and to Yale, 14 to 0.

Casey's brief comment was simply: "I feel that a change will be better for Harvard football. After all, I have been head coach for four years. We have had a fair amount of success, but on the other hand we have had a number of defeats. I cannot but feel that a change will be better all around."

COCHRANE, NAVIN TO SEEK PITCHERS AND OUTFIELDER

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Frank J. Navin, president of the pennant winning Detroit Tigers, and Mickey Cochrane, his manager, are going to market.

They need pitching strength and an additional outfielder, and so Sunday, after a conference, Mickey and his boss plan to depart for New York to attend the annual meeting of the major leagues.

Cochrane believes there may be a couple of seasoned left handers on the market. Wally Stewart is said to be packing up his bags to leave Washington, and Earl Whitehill of the Senators also may be available.

The rumor persisted that Al Simmons of the White Sox would be the outfielder who will come to Detroit. That has been denied both at Navin field and at Chicago, but the removal of the screen from left field at the Detroit park is taken as an indication that Navin and Cochrane have their eyes on some one who could knock the ball over that wall.

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS TO C. Y. O. BOXERS

Nagurski Was Star Even as a Freshman

(This is the third of a series concerning the football career of Bronko Nagurski, star full back of the Chicago Bears' professional team.)

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Bronko Nagurski's debut on the Minnesota freshman football team was auspicious in the fall of 1926. The squad was large and for a time Nagurski was just one of many young men who hoped to make a reputation lugging footballs. But one afternoon when Dr. Clarence Spears, the heavy handed, hard driving varsity coach, who believed first in power and then finesse, ordered up a team of freshmen for scrimmage, Nagurski had his first taste of major league football.

It seemed that the doctor had devised a special off-tackle play which he had reserved for Michigan.

"Get in there and stop this play," Spears ordered.

He Starts at End.

The freshmen took him at his word and to the varsity's surprise, they stopped the play. Then Spears gave the freshmen the ball. On the first drive Nagurski shot through the line for three yards. Again and again he lunged and each time, when the tangle of legs and arms had been sorted there was Nagurski with at least two more yards to his credit.

It wasn't long until the word got around that Minnesota had discovered another Herb Joesting. "Just wait until next year," the folks said. But Nagurski wasn't to start carrying footballs right away.

Nagurski started the opening game in 1927 against North Dakota at right end. The shift from tackle to end was occasioned by the illness of Haycraft. Minnesota won, 57 to 10, and followed with an easy victory over Oklahoma Aggies, 40 to 0. Through this preliminary training, Nagurski studied his lessons on football, learned to drive through for the ball carrier or rush the passer or kicker. And when he unleashed his power there were none who could stay his course.

Then Came the Irish.

But Spears made another change. Except for Mike Gary, the tackle position was the problem. So Nagurski went back to tackle. Before he finished his span of competition Bronko was to play every position on the team except center, half back, and quarter back. The famous 14 to 14 tie with Indiana, the tie which prevented Minnesota from winning the conference championship, came next.

The Gophers went on to victories

Indiana Denies Basket Coach to Be Released

Bloomington, Ind., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Reports that Everett Dean, Indiana university basketball coach, would be released at the end of the current season and that Clifford Wells, coach of the state high school championship Logansport squad, would replace him were denied today by William Ramsey, assistant athletic director.

Ramsey said reports of the impending shakeup were "news to me." It was reported that unless Dean had a highly successful season he would be dismissed at the close of the present campaign.

BILL M'KECHNIE TO KEEP JOB AS BOSTON MANAGER

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Dispelling rumors that Babe Ruth would get his job, William B. McKechnie today disclosed that he has signed to manage the Boston Braves again next year. Returning from a deer hunting expedition in Cameron county today, McKechnie, a native of Wilkinsburg, said his contract for the 1935 baseball season has already been signed and returned to Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston National league club.

Reports had been current that Ruth might supplant McKechnie at Boston, where the Bambino has a large following.

EXPECT 20,000 TO SEE FINALS AT STADIUM

Scholarships Await Victors.

BY FRENCH LANE.

What all this fighting among the boys of the Catholic Youth organization has been about will be cleared up for good tonight at the Chicago Stadium when the 1934 finalists make their last bid for 1934 championships.

This morning thirty-two boys, trained to the minute, are eagerly awaiting the struggle. There are only sixteen championships to be passed around, so that is the cause of the spectacular disputes which will be settled amid a storm of flying boxing gloves.

May Have Sellout.

So great is the interest in the outcome of these championship bouts—the finals of one of the outstanding amateur boxing tournaments held each year in America—that already 18,000 persons have bought tickets and there is a possibility that 21,000 will watch the sixteen battles. A gathering of this size would give the huge Stadium its first sellout audience of the new indoor athletic season.

There's an interesting background to the Catholic Youth organization bouts that are attracting so much attention.

They were originated four years ago at the suggestion of the Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, whose idea it was to take boys with spare time off the street and give them a chance to indulge in vigorous and highly competitive athletics.

Idea Catches Public Fancy.

The idea not only caught the fancy of the boys but also caught the fancy of the sport conscious public. A crowd of 10,000 watched the first championships decided and the champions came from an original field of 1,500. The boxers represented the various parishes in the archdiocese of Chicago and surrounding territory. From the beginning Cardinal Mundelein has given the tourney his sanction.

Tonight, four years after the first tournament was held, the boys who will strive for the championship are the survivors from an original field of more than 2,500 and they will wage their last desperate struggles before a crowd twice as large as the one that viewed the original tournament finals.

There's something more than a championship at stake tonight for those who fight their way on to the sixteen titles. Each lad who wins a crown not only will receive the usual amateur medal reward of gold, silver, etc., but he also will be presented with a scholarship to any Catholic university or preparatory school he selects.

In addition there's a trip to California for the champions, later on a trip to New York, and probably a journey to Panama as a grand finale.

Fight in Two Classes.

The program tonight includes eight bouts in the championship division and eight in the class A division.

The lads in the championship division competed in the Catholic Youth Organization tournament last year and four of them won titles.

The crowd that will pack the Stadium tonight will include many notables. Among them will be Mayor Kelly, Gov. Horner, Bishop Sheil, State's Attorney Courtney, Treasurer Robert M. Sweitzer, Frank J. Lewis and many of the social, industrial, and business leaders of Chicago.

Plan Extensive Program.

A colorful ceremony will open the program at 8:15 o'clock. There's to be a procession of "A" boys from the Catholic Youth organization. They will be accompanied by a guard of Eagle Scouts. John Panne-Casser, the opera tenor, will sing "America," and later on "The Star Spangled Banner" while Old Glory is unfurled. The finalists will march into the ring, the creed of the C. Y. O. will be read and the boys will give their pledge of sportsmanship.

The boys in the class A division will be the first to strip for action. The first lads to start whaling away at each other will be Ray Cannick of St. Agnes parish, Chicago Heights, and Joe Warren from St. Mary of Lake parish. They are lightweights. From then on the order of bouts will be as follows:

CLASS A.

James Diamico, St. Michael, vs. Mario Formentina, St. Agnes, 118 pounds.
Joe Gora, St. Pius, vs. Mitchell Janus, St. Pancratius, 147 pounds.
Julius Szabo, St. Patrick, vs. Walter Richter, St. Francis of Rome, 160 pounds.
John Szybyst, St. Aloysius, vs. Adrian Wolfert, Holy Name, heavyweight.

CHAMPIONSHIP DIVISION.

Lorenzo Lovings, St. Malachy, vs. Savior Canadeo, St. William, 135 pounds.
Frank McHugh, St. Leo, vs. Ed Mileski, St. Pancratius, 147 pounds.
Bill Fitzgerald, St. Kevin, vs. Charles Wozniak, St. Alexander, 160 pounds.
Ray Wozniak, St. Alexander, vs. Ray McNally, St. Leo, 175 pounds.
Al Camber, St. Ann, vs. Tom Kenneally, St. Bernard, heavyweight.

RECORD CROWD OF 15,000 SEES HORSE SHOW

Women Owners Win Blue Ribbons.

A crowd of 15,000, the largest ever to witness a horse show in Chicago, jammed the Stock Yards amphitheater last night for the competition in all classes and a number of exhibitions. Mrs. A. C. Thompson's Happy Way farm entries from Elmhurst won two firsts as well as a number of other places, against the best from stables in nearly every part of the country.

High Explosion, an 8 year old chestnut gelding, won the harness pony class. He had to defeat such formidable steppers as Glantham Lady, the Heyl Pony farm nomination, which took second, and N. L. Litchfield's Bell Fern Mary, third place winner.

Texas Stable Scores.

Charm and High Explosion from Happy Way farm won from five other pairs in the ladies' harness pony class.

The Spindletop stables, owned by Mrs. M. F. Yount of Beaumont, Tex., scored firsts in the five gaited and three gaited saddle events. Mrs. Yount's Chief of Spindletop defeated a field of eleven in the five gaited class, winning over G. A. Nichols' Morning Glory, from Oklahoma City, Okla.; Mills Brothers' The Rotarian, from Chicago, and Hubert S. Silberman's Dickey Dhu, also from Chicago.

Ten other entries were beaten by Mrs. Yount's entry in the three gaited saddle horse class, which the chestnut mare Roxie Highland won. Meadow Moon, from Rolling Meadows farm at Cincinnati, was second.

Elmhurst Five Opens Season at Home Tonight

Elmhurst college will open its basketball season tonight on its home court against the Chicago School of Optometry in a nonconference game. Elmhurst will center its offensive around Capt. Duke Duhan, veteran star forward. Lueschke, Robbins, and Hylander, former West Suburban conference stars, will undoubtedly see action.

Al Ettore, Philadelphia heavyweight, who won a decision over Charley Massare on the Levinsky-Lasky card at the Stadium recently, also anticipates a fight on the program. . . . He worked out at Trafton's gymnasium yesterday. . . . So did Mullins.

Barney Ross, junior welterweight champion, will entrain tonight at 11:45 o'clock at La Salle street station for Cleveland, O., for a defense of his title against Bobby Pacho next Monday. . . . The champion will be accompanied by his managers, Sam Pian and Art Winch, Trainer Izzy Kline, and Sergt. Harry O'Connell, bodyguard. . . . Irving Schoenwald, Arcadia Gardens promoter; Benny Ray and Jackie Sharkey, local lightweight, will go to Cleveland Saturday morning. . . . Schoenwald hopes to obtain some talent for his next card at Arcadia next month. . . . Sharkey boxes Jimmy Vaughn of Cleveland in a supporting match on the program in place of Davey Day, Ross' stablemate, who was unable to fulfill the engagement because of a nose injury.

King Levinsky, who opened drills Monday for a four round contest with Champion Max Baer at the Stadium Dec. 28, took a layoff yesterday. . . . He will resume training today, Trainer Walter [Whitey] Ekwert announced. . . . Everett [Young] Rightmire last night left for Sioux City, Ia., where he will tackle Frank Wolfram on Dec. 18. . . . Solly Dukelsky, Chicago middleweight, has resumed workouts after a long vacation, weighing 170 pounds.

Frank Battaglia, at one time a leading middleweight challenger, refuses to let a little thing like a dislocated knuckle stop him from regaining his former position. . . . Despite the injury he worked out yesterday and he hasn't a match in sight. . . . James Norris Jr., who with his father directs activities at the Stadium with Trustee Fred Hummel pending completion of plans to take the west side building out of receivership, informed Joe Foley yesterday morning he can rent the Stadium for major shows. Fishers Fight for Indiana Water Rights

BY BOB BECKER.

If a recent decision of the Indiana Supreme court stands, Indiana fishermen will face some sad years as far as their sport is concerned. Under the ruling of the court any one owning land around a lake has the right to keep people off the water of that lake. The court has decided that any one owning land under a lake can control the water in it. In other words, the right to fish follows the ownership of the soil.

The next step in this battle in behalf of the sport of fishing in Indiana is scheduled to be taken Jan. 9, when the test case involving the fisherman's rights is reopened in Steuben county Circuit court after being remanded on a demurrer by the Supreme court.

Battle Begins on Center Lake.

The fight over Indiana fishing rights started on Center lake directly north of Angola, Ind. This lake is about 50 acres in size and the congressional survey describes it as a nonnavigable body of water. John Sanders Jr., who is said to own about nine-tenths of the land around the lake, has for several years charged for the privilege of fishing in his portion of the lake. The adjoining riparian owner claimed that he had the right to fish in the larger portion of the lake and to invite his friends to fish with him.

When Mr. Sanders made an arrest for trespassing because a fisherman was out on the main body of the lake the legal fight started. Mr. Sanders said he owned the land under the water and therefore could exclude anybody from the surface of the lake.

Appellate Court Reverses Verdict.

First Judge Clyde E. Carlin of the Circuit court ruled that the defendant had a right to fish and row on the water claimed by Sanders. Then the case went to the Appellate court. This court upheld the Circuit court decision by declaring that Sanders could not exclude the public nor adjoining riparian owners from fishing and boating in the lake.

By this time the fight looked to be over. Then on went the case to the Supreme court and here Justice Myers overruled the decision of the Appellate court.

BEARS DEFEAT MONARCHS BY 2 PINS IN MATCH

Members of the Chicago Bears football team, using six men against five for the Monarch Beers of the Classic league, won an exhibition match last night at the Lakeview alleys, 2,954 to 2,952. Needing a double to nose out the bowling stars, Keith Molesworth of the Bears made his two strikes and finished with a 570 total to lead his teammates. Al Kawal of the Bears had a 218 game.

Other Bears who bowled were Hewitt, Rosequist, Sisk, Manders and Trainer Lotshaw. Lange led the Monarchs with a 225 average, followed by Fuller with 220. Proceeds of the match will be turned over to THE TRIBUNE's Good Fellow fund.

Clarence Smith Defeats Brown on White City Mat

Clarence Smith, Woodlawn light heavyweight wrestler, threw Jack Brown in 26 minutes and two seconds in the windup of the weekly professional wrestling show at White City last night. In the semi-windup Swede Hanson pinned Martin Howard in 23 minutes. In other matches Ernie Peterson and Rudy Kay drew in 30 minutes and Bobby Novak won from Henry Forman in 13 minutes and 20 seconds.

Frank Hart to Wrestle Charles Fischer Tonight

LOTT RANKED AT TOP OF CHICAGO TENNIS 10TH YEAR

BY HOWARD BARRY.

George Lott was given his customary place at the top of the Chicago Tennis association's ratings when the ranking committee, headed by Leo J. Lunn, submitted its report last night at the association's annual meeting, which was held at the Allerton club. This was the last time Lott will enjoy that honor, which he has held for ten years. He became a professional recently and will be beyond the pale of amateur sport next season.

John McDiarmid was given second place, Thane Halstead third, and Karl Kamrath, the city champion, fourth.

Miss Fulton No. 1.

Helen Fulton, who performed brilliantly against some of the best players in the country during last summer's tournaments, was rated the best woman player within the jurisdiction of the Chicago association. Eugenie Sampson Kamrath was ranked second, Louise Hofmeister third and Bernice Ayer fourth.

Frank D. Fulton was elected president for the coming year, succeeding Ralph Westcott. Miss Ayer was elected secretary and A. R. Kaiser treasurer. William N. Strack was made first vice president and Fred Wagner second vice president.

Directors Are Listed.

BIG TEN CHIEFS WILL LIST DATES AT MEETING HERE

Minnesota Hopes Faculty Heads Will Alter Rules.

Routine matters, such as arranging the winter and spring schedules of Western conference competition other than basketball, and setting the dates for the indoor and outdoor conference track meets, will comprise the schedule for the meetings here Friday and Saturday of the coaches and athletic directors of the Big Ten. The faculty committee will hold its annual winter meeting at the same time.

So far as is known, no surprising move is planned, although in some quarters, particularly at the University of Minnesota, there is hope that the faculty committee will alter one of the eligibility rules which otherwise will deprive the Gophers of the services next fall of two varsity regulars of the 1934 championship eleven and shorten the time of at least three other players.

Bevan, Kostka Affected.

The present rule for eligibility provides three years of competition, but the freshman year is counted in the conference for those athletes transferring from universities which permit intercollegiate competition between freshman teams. This rule thus affects Bill Bevan and Stan Kostka, regulars on the Minnesota eleven this fall.

Bevan played his freshman year at Oregon and after entering Minnesota in the fall of 1932 became eligible after a year's residence and competed on the Gopher varsity in 1933 and 1934. Kostka played freshman and sophomore football at Oregon. He entered Minnesota in the fall of 1933 and played this last season.

Others who will be affected are Jay Bevan, George Svendsen, and Art Clarkson. Clarkson's home is in Seattle and he matriculated at Minnesota with Kostka after a freshman year at Oregon. He will have one more varsity year under the present rule.

May Not Discuss Rule.

It is considered unlikely that the faculty committee will discuss this rule and if it does none will predict a change. Minnesota, however, is prepared to call attention to another section of the eligibility code which provides that conference universities schedule games only with schools having the same eligibility requirements. Since many universities have intercollegiate freshman competition and then permit three years of play on the varsity, they do not conform to Big Ten requirements.

Minnesota probably will point out that Ilinois, by scheduling Southern California, and Michigan, with games with Columbia and Pennsylvania, have violated this rule.

Last year the conference committee suggested that coaches refrain from writing on their respective sports during the season. This "suggestion" may be incorporated in the rules, it is said. Another recurring problem is the question of coaches selecting and directing all-star teams in post-season games. So far the conference merely has suggested that this is inadvisable.

WILL DISCUSS DRINKING

Champaign, Ill., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Drinking of intoxicating liquor by spectators at football games will be one of the subjects brought up before the annual meeting of faculty representatives and athletic directors of the Big Ten conference, Director of Athletics George Huff of Illinois promised today.

Huff said drinking at football games throughout the nation has gotten out of hand and that something must be done to curb it.

"I would like to see an honest and frank discussion of the question," said Director Huff, "and obtain the attitude of the body on what steps are most advisable to remedy the situation."

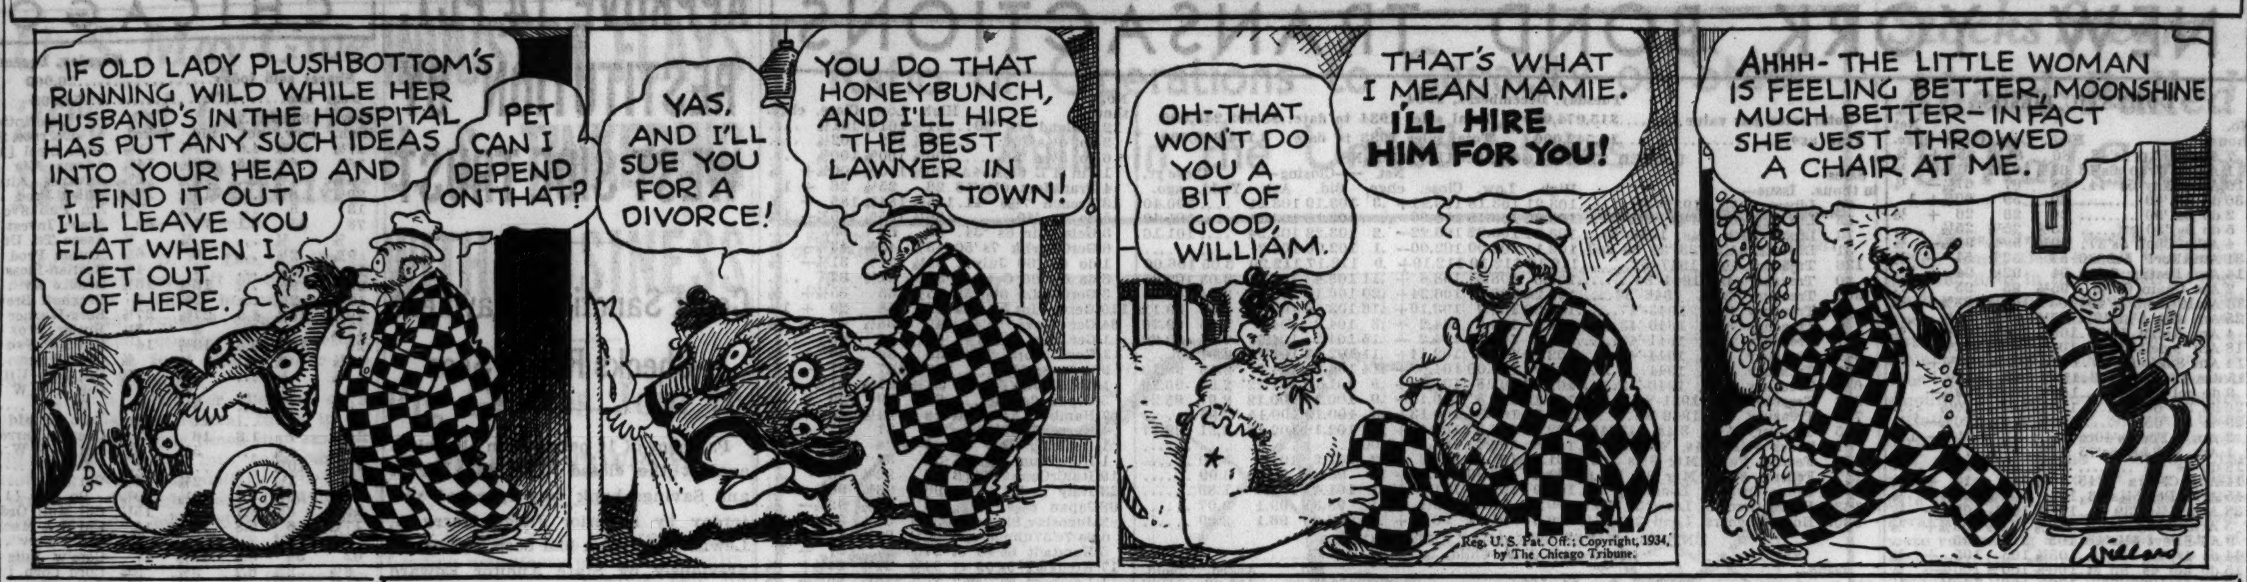
MOON MULLINS—MAMIE'S GREAT IMPROVEMENT



IF OLD LADY PLUSHBOTTOM'S RUNNING WILD WHILE HER HUSBAND'S IN THE HOSPITAL HAS PUT ANY SUCH IDEAS INTO YOUR HEAD AND I FIND IT OUT I'LL LEAVE YOU FLAT WHEN I GET OUT OF HERE.
PET CAN I DEPEND ON THAT?
YAS, AND I'LL SUE YOU FOR A DIVORCE!
YOU DO THAT HONEYBUNCH, AND I'LL HIRE THE BEST LAWYER IN TOWN!
THAT'S WHAT I MEAN MAMIE. I'LL HIRE HIM FOR YOU!
AHHH- THE LITTLE WOMAN IS FEELING BETTER, MOONSHINE MUCH BETTER- IN FACT SHE JEST THROWED A CHAIR AT ME.

The University of Chicago football team will be honored tonight by the 55th Street Business Men's association, at the association's 11th annual dinner for the team, which will be held at the Shoreland hotel at 7 p. m. Mayor Edward J. Kelly will be present to greet the team. The principal address will be given by Col. Frank Knox.

SMITTY—THE MESSAGE

IT'S BEEN YEARS SINCE I WENT AWAY - I CAN'T WAIT TO SEE MARY!
SHE'S NOT HERE! MAYBE SOMETHING HAS HAPPENED—
THIS MESSAGE IS FOR YOU, SIR
DEAR ROGER, I DIDN'T THINK YOU'D EVER COME BACK. I AM MARRIED. YOU WILL UNDERSTAND. MARY.
WHAT A FOOL I WAS!

FOOTBALL DEATH TOLL 25; PREPS CHIEF VICTIMS

New York, Dec. 4.—(AP)—An auto thief serving a four to six year sentence in a Connecticut prison, a 9 year old boy, and 16 high school students were among the 26 players who lost their lives playing football this season, an Associated Press survey today reveals.

The death of John Daviduke, 24, as a result of injuries received in a game inside the walls of Hartford state prison, was the first among prison players since Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, first made football a part of prison routine several years ago. William McGettigan, 9, of Darlington, Wis., was the youngest player to die, receiving an infection in a sandlot game.

Total on Decline.

The death list, although still high in high schools, is below the totals for 1931, 1932 and 1933, the three previous years in which the Associated Press has kept records. The high point of all time was reached in 1931 when 50 died. Rule changes and closer supervision of college and high school play cut the total down to 38 in 1932 and 36 last year, 10 of those in 1933 being listed in the doubtful class.

The total of 16 among high school students is the highest in that classification for the last three years and is an increase of five over 1933. The death of only two college players, how- of Arnold college, New Haven, and Ted Williams, Furman university freshman, marks a new low for the colleges and universities. Eight were killed in 1931. Froeliger received a broken neck making a tackle in a game with Northeastern university and Williams died of injuries suffered in scrimmage.

Tackling Takes Toll.

Although no accurate figures are available on how many youngsters play each fall, it has been estimated that at least 500,000 college and university men participate, with more than twice that many on high schools and preparatory schools squads. Uncounted hundreds of thousands join in pickup games on back lots and in the streets, most of them with inadequate equipment or none at all.

A classification of the fatal injuries by the type of play in which they were suffered shows a majority incurred in making tackles. Of the 13 cases where such information was available eight were killed while tackling another player, one while blocking and the other four as a result of being tackled.

The Spencer Coals, national girls' basketball champions, scored their fifth consecutive victory of the season last night by defeating the Olivet Whippets, 30 to 5, on the latter's court.

over Iowa, 38 to 0, and Wisconsin, 13 to 7. Then followed the game at Notre Dame, which ended 7 to 7 and broke a 22 year record for the Irish, who had not been defeated or tied on Cartier field in that time. The game also gave Nagurski his greatest thrill in football.

The day was cold and blustery. As usual Rockne was expected to start his shock troops. Instead he started his varsity line and shock troop backs. Spears countered with a second eleven which outplayed the Irish for several minutes only to fumble and have Notre Dame gain possession. Then Niemic swept around end for 17 yards and a touchdown, after which he kicked goal. In came the Minnesota varsity, with the exception of Harold Barnhart, half back, who had started. It was a fight to get back that touchdown. But Notre Dame led, 7 to 0, at the half.

Three times Minnesota threatened in the second half but failed to drive across for the tying score. Then came the play which Nagurski has called his greatest thrill in football.

Bronk Goes Through.

With the ball deep in Notre Dame territory, Nagurski crashed through and smashed into Wynne before he could get rid of the ball. Wynne fumbled. Bronko dived past the Irish back to fall on the ball on Notre Dame's 15 yard line. That recovery was Bronko's greatest thrill. Shorty Almquist and Fred Hovde gained five yards. Joesting was crushed at the line, but on the next play, with Notre Dame expecting another plunge, Joesting passed to Len Walsh in the end zone for the touchdown. Pharmer kicked the tying point.

Nagurski was in the thick of that great second half attack and to this day he considers it one of the hardest games in his career.

He Studies, Works.

Nagurski did not compete in other varsity sports at Minnesota, not because he couldn't have earned a berth on the basketball quintet or because he couldn't have developed as a shot putter [without practice he tossed the 16 pound ball 43 feet in a university meet], but because he needed the time for his studies and was occupied with the various jobs by which he earned his way through school.

At various times he worked for a firm of lawyers, was night watchman at a lumber company, and was employed in a restaurant where his duties required 44 to 48 hours a week and included the job of "bouncing" any patrons who couldn't keep within bounds of decorous conduct. One look at the huge, towering Nagurski with his piercing eyes and the obstreperous decided to behave.

The season of 1928 [Nagurski's junior year] was as disappointing to Minnesota as the preceding fall, when the tie with Indiana marred an otherwise perfect conference record. In 1928 Iowa and Northwestern scored one point victories over the Gophers, but Minnesota had the satisfaction of whipping Wisconsin 6 to 0 in the last game and knocking the Badgers out of the Big Ten race.

In the summer of 1928 Nagurski labored as member of a cement crew in northern Minnesota. He came back to the campus as hard as nails, and it was well that he did, for Coach Spears had lost such men as Joesting, Hanson, Gary, Mackinnon, and Almquist. Nagurski was the mainstay of the eleven.

(Another article on the career of Nagurski will appear tomorrow.)

TROJAN END IS LOST FOR IRISH; ANKLE BROKEN

Browning Hurt in Scrimmage Pile Up.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Any hope Southern California entertained of defeating the Notre Dame football team here Saturday dwindled away today when Ward Browning, first string right end, suffered a broken leg in the Trojans' final scrimmage of the season.

The injury increased to four the list of Trojan players who will not be able to play against the Irish who are en route west for the annual intersectional classic.

Hurt in Pile-Up.

Browning was going down under a punt when the accident occurred. Bill Howard, on the second squad, came charging back with the ball. Four men piled up with the 200 pound wingman on the bottom, his right ankle doubled up under him.

IRISH ROOTERS IN MEXICO.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Several Notre Dame rooters, on a special train from Chicago, arrived here today. Thursday they will leave for Los Angeles, where Notre Dame and the University of Southern California football teams will clash Saturday.

In the Notre Dame party are Senator and Mrs. George Maypole, Tom Nash, John Nash, and Richard Nash, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. John Foy, Mr. and Mrs. William Dugan, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gould, Joseph Smith, and Richard Halpin, all of Chicago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 4.—The strength of treasury bonds became so pronounced today that it spread to all other types of high grade liens, carrying prices up fractionally and placing many within a point of their highs for the year. Volume of trading totaled $15,074,000 par value, against $10,541,000 Monday. This is the first time transfers exceeded the 15 million mark since Nov. 1.

Before they ran into profit taking the old 3⅛ per cent treasury bonds had gone to a premium of over 1½ points. All others in the treasury group were strong, with trading heaviest in two issues of 3¼s, the 3s of 1948, and the old 3⅛s.

Called 4th Liberties Buck Trend.

Called Fourth Liberty 4¼s were an exception to the trend. Not a few holders of these bonds have been selling in the last two years with the idea of making direct commitments in the new treasury bonds or some of the old issues.

Trading in high grade rails, utilities and industrials was not nearly as spirited as in the treasury list, but the tone was firm. Fractionally higher prices were paid for Santa Fe general 4s and the 4s of 1960, Central Pacific first 4s, Kansas Gas 4½s, New York Gas 5s, New England Telephone 5s, Peoples Gas 6s, some of the Pennsylvania list and Virginia 5s.

Postal Telegraph Issues Buoyant.

Postal Telegraph 5s were the outstanding feature of lower priced bonds. They were taken in large volume at rising prices on evidence introduced in the Washington hearing on the subject of a telegraph merger.

Speculative demand for railroad securities spread from stocks into bonds of lower grade and had its effect on prices. The advance, however, was not as broad as it has been on numerous occasions in the recent past.

Foreign loans showed considerable irregularity. German government 7s and 5½s were strong, moving up 2½ and 1½ points, respectively. Austrian government loans were unchanged while British and French government bonds closed easier. Most of the Scandinavian loans were firm. Latin American issues were mildly reactionary.

New England Power.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me your opinion of New England Power association 5½s?—W. E. E.

Answer: New England Power association is a holding company, controled by International Hydro-Electric system. Subsidiaries supply a population of about 2,200,000 in New England with electricity, which accounts for about four-fifths of revenue. The remainder of revenues comes from transportation units and sale of gas.

Although gross revenues in the first nine months of 1934 increased slightly over the corresponding 1933 period, net before reserves and dividends was only $6,446,000, against $7,065,000 for the corresponding 1933 period. The textile strike during September restricted power demand in some quarters to as low as 40 per cent of normal and caused such net income for the third quarter to shrink to 75 per cent of that reported in the third quarter of 1933.

In addition heavy increases in taxes, increased pay roll and other operating expenses, due to NRA, plus higher material costs present a serious problem to the management.

A somewhat smaller gross in 1933 than in 1932 was partially offset by lower interest charges which enabled the company to maintain coverage for fixed charges level at 1.58 times for the two years, compared with 1.80 times in 1931 and 2.12 times in 1930.

Current assets on June 30, 1934, totaled $16,100,000 and current liabilities were $12,874,000. The unsecured obligations of the association are in effect junior to a large amount of subsidiary obligations and senior stocks. They are somewhat speculative.

Butte and Superior.

Investors' Guide: Please advise if Butte and Superior stock has been taken off the New York Stock exchange; also send me a late report on it.—K. P.

Answer: Trading in stock of Butte and Superior Mining company on the New York Stock exchange was suspended, effective as of Oct. 11, 1934.

This followed four years' inactivity on the part of the company. In November, 1930, the company discontinued operations. In February, 1931, it abandoned its mine workings. Since then the company has been selling its equipment.

On Dec. 31, 1933, current assets were $674,000, and total liabilities amounted to $12,000. Total assets were $846,000. There are outstanding 290,196 shares of $10 par capital stock. The stock is purely speculative.

NARROW RANGE IN COTTON PRICES WITH TRADING DULL

Trade in cotton yesterday was unusually slow with prices holding within narrow limits. Markets, however, were somewhat unsettled with the close here 6 points higher to 2 points lower, while other markets were 1 point lower to 6 points higher, October leading the advance. Commission houses were on both sides of the market. Spot cotton closed unchanged to 5 points lower with New Orleans and New York, 12.65 cents, and Galveston and Houston 12.60 cents per pound. Prices follow:

COTTONSEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—COTTONSEED OIL—Bleachable turned firm today, closing 7 to 9 points net higher on sales of 90 contracts. A higher market for lard combined with a decidedly better demand from commission houses with southern and western connections, and a rally in grains were the principal factors in the upturn. Crude oil sold again at 9 cents at all southern points. Bleachable spot nominal. December closed 9.90c per lb; January, 9.96c; March, 10.06c; May, 10.17c; July, 10.27c.

RUBBER.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4.—(AP)—RUBBER—Crude futures closed barely steady, 4 points to 9 points higher. December, 12.98c per lb. bid; January, 13.08c nominal; March, 13.30 @13.32c; May, 13.49@13.50c. Smoked ribbed spot closed 12.98c nominal.

APPROVE 14 PCT. RESTITUTION BY WEST SIDE TRUST

Court Sanctions Payment —Checks Ready Soon.

Payment of 14 per cent on all claims against the closed West Side Trust and Savings bank was approved yesterday by Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis. The action had been authorized previously by State Auditor Edward J. Barrett, and checks will be sent out in the next few days.

The distribution, which treats preferred claimants and common creditors alike, is believed to be the first of its kind in Chicago. It does not prejudice the position of claims filed for preference. Receiver William L. O'Connell explained the action was taken to give depositors some repayment before the adjudication of contested claims which probably will consume months.

Hope for Bank of Commerce.

Depositors of the Chicago Bank of Commerce also may receive their first repayment in a few days if a plan can be consummated similar to that of the West Side Trust. State Auditor Barrett already has approved such a program, it was learned yesterday. The payment would be about 10 per cent, and would amount to more than $500,000.

The Sept. 30 report on the Bank of Commerce showed a balance of $4,588,801 due creditors. More than $1,000,000 in claims has been filed for preference, but the receiver expects many of them to be reduced to common claims when determination is made in court. Cash on hand Sept. 30 was $578,063, all held in trust. Additional funds are to be derived from a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan.

Claims Total $425,000.

Trust and other claims amounting to $425,000 have been filed for preference at the West Side bank. In addition to the 14 per cent which will be paid now, the receiver will keep in reserve for them the amount of cash on hand when the bank closed. This is in accord with requirements laid down in recent court decisions.

In the case of trusts, which form a large part of the $425,000 claim filed, additional protection is provided by $200,000 deposited with the state auditor as a condition of the bank's engaging in trust business. Any money left over after satisfaction of trust claims would go to pay other claims allowed for preference. Hope is held that the trust deposit and reserve cash will cover all valid preferred claims.

Total known liability of the defunct bank is $3,701,093. Depositors and common creditors are owed $3,276,093.

Many Claims Not Filed.

The 14 per cent repayment to all would amount to $518,143. Checks being prepared, however, aggregate only $251,000. The amazing discrepancy between the two figures is accounted for by the fact that claims have been filed for only 3,000 of the 21,000 accounts in the bank. It was explained a large number of the unfiled claims would be under $5 and that many were forgotten "dollar accounts."

Funds for the distribution were obtained from the $569,127 proceeds of a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of $1,200,255. Deduction of $623,030 was made to wipe out the remainder of an RFC loan made to the bank before it failed to reopen after the moratorium. Another $8,038 paid off other bills due. When the bank failed it had $1,200,369 in bills payable, including $500,000 to the First National bank. No further payments to depositors can be made until the present RFC loan is paid, since all assets are pledged as security.

Curb to Consider Full Time Salaried Head for Market

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—A resolution proposing that the president of the New York Curb exchange be made a full time, salaried executive, effective Jan. 1, 1935, will be offered at the meeting of the curb's board of governors next Wednesday. If created by the board, the new position, it was said today, will be tendered to E. Burd Grubb, present head of the exchange, at a salary of more than $25,000 a year.

MUNICIPAL BOND NOTES

LARD CLOSES AT NEW HIGH AS COMMISSION HOUSES BUY

There was no pressure of consequence on the provision market yesterday and commission house buying orders ran lard up sharply toward the close to a new high for the season, with the close at the top with net gains of 7½ to 17½ points. Bellies were more active and gained 10 to 30 points, with the December leading. The advance was in the face of a sharp decline in the hog market.

Stocks of lard at the seven western packing points decreased around 4,000,000 pounds in November and aggregate 75,700,000 pounds and compare with 91,826,000 pounds last year. Cash lard closed at 11.27 cents; loose leaf and leaf at 10¾ cents, and bellies at 14¾ cents per pound. Prices follow:

MANHATTAN BANK TO CUT DIVIDEND, FROM $2 TO $1.50

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Reduction of the Bank of the Manhattan company dividend rate at the next directors' meeting was indicated today in the recommendation of J. Stewart Baker, chairman of the board, in his report today at the annual stockholders' meeting. Reduction of the dividend from a $2 to a $1.50 annual basis will be recommended.

Surplus account also will be charged with $5,000,000, pursuant to the bank's purpose of making additional write-offs and setting up further reserves. Of this amount $1,500,000, together with $1,500,000 from undivided profits, would be used to write down certain loans and investments, and the remaining $3,500,000 would be set up in a general reserve account.

Indicated net operating earnings for 1934 are set at $4,900,000 by Mr. Baker. This compares with actual net operating earnings for 1933 of $4,972,866.

The Colonial Trust company also is moving toward reducing its capital stock to $1,000,000 from $3,000,000, according to an announcement today notifying stockholders of a special meeting to be held Dec. 14. Par value of the Colonial Trust stock would be lowered from $100 to $25 per share.

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES CONTINUE TO MOVE LOWER

Butter and egg futures dropped again on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, butter losing ⅜ to ⅝ cent per pounds and eggs ⅜ to ½ cent per dozen.

Movement of eggs out of storage continues sharply behind last year. Four cities reported 20,000 cases less out yesterday and for last week 35 cities reported 77,000 cases less out.

There was little support in the butter market. Four cities moved out 600,000 pounds more butter than last year and the weekly movement was 2,200,000 pounds greater. The market closed around the low point.

Sales: Butter, 46 cars; eggs, 129 cars. Deliveries: Butter, 1 car; eggs, 3 cars. Prices follow:

OVERSUBSCRIBE U. S. OFFERING 600 PER CENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—Offerings totaling 5 billion 400 million dollars were received yesterday by the treasury when it sought to borrow 900 million dollars, Undersecretary Thomas Jefferson Coolidge announced tonight.

T. J. COOLIDGE.

"Padding" of bids by banks and other large subscribers, however, did much to run up the high total of offers, Mr. Coolidge intimated. He disclosed that the treasury for the first time had forced all banks which had palpably padded their bids to cut them down.

In addition to announcing that the treasury's cash loan of 900 millions had been oversubscribed about six times, Mr. Coolidge disclosed that the refunding of 992 million dollars' worth of certificates which mature Dec. 15 had been virtually completed. This refunding and the cash loan were two phases of the government's regular Dec. 15 financing.

Bulk of Total Converted.

Of the 992 millions maturing certificates, about 850 million dollars' worth had been turned in for conversion up to the close of business today, Mr. Coolidge said. More than 200 million dollars' worth were turned in for conversion into the treasury's new 1⅛ per cent 18 month notes, and the other 600 millions are to be refunded into new 2⅛ per cent 4½ year notes. These conversion operations will continue through tomorrow.

In the flotation of its 900 million dollar cash loan which ended yesterday, the treasury offered 450 million dollars' worth of 1⅛ per cent eighteen month notes and 450 million dollars' worth of 3⅛ fifteen-eighteen year bonds. Mr. Coolidge said the notes had been oversubscribed about seven times and the bonds about five times.

The bidding was so spirited that many banks were reported to have asked for amounts equal to many times their capital and surplus. One bank with a capital structure of only 5 million dollars was said to have subscribed for 50 million dollars' worth of the new treasury paper.

Padding Bids Common Practice.

The treasury's action brings to a head a practice that has been prevalent for several years. Banks and corporations desiring to obtain treasury bonds or notes have fallen into the habit of bidding for far more than the amount they actually want or expect to be allotted, knowing that others are doing likewise and that their allotments will be much smaller than the amount they ask for.

This practice was winked at by the treasury, especially during the trying times of 1933, because it was convenient "window dressing." It helped the treasury give the impression that its offerings were more attractive to investors than actually was the case, and also gave the public the impression that the well of idle funds available to the treasury was bottomless.

This time, however, the banks and other subscribers apparently outbid themselves in padding their bids, making their little fiction so obvious that even the treasury seems to have had some qualms about the effects.

Fear Radicals' Expenditures.

Another possible consideration is that with radical congressmen clamoring for huge expenditures of government funds for their pet projects the treasury may not want to supply fuel for the spenders' fires by allowing the impression to get abroad that the funds available for treasury borrowings are limitless.

It was learned in highest reserve bank sources tonight that the system has no immediate intention of adding to its heavy portfolio of government obligations. The twelve reserve banks now hold $2,430,000,000 of government issues, a figure which has remained unchanged for months.

Trustees System Discount Bankrupt Hearing Delayed

Hearing scheduled yesterday on claims against Trustees System Discount company before Referee in Bankruptcy Edmund D. Adcock was continued until tomorrow. On Dec. 19 the question of jurisdiction of the court over the bankrupt firm will be taken up.

U. S. May Give 20% of Cost to Home Builder

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—A direct government gift of one-fifth of the cost of building homes for individuals was proposed today in high administration quarters as a method of opening a four billion dollar tap of private spending.

The plan called for the use of a billion dollars of federal funds in an effort to bring four times that amount of private capital into construction, totaling five billion dollars. The government, through loans insured by the housing administration, would stimulate both the desire to borrow and lend.

Official Comment Withheld.

There was no immediate official comment from either housing or relief administrations. If such a plan were adopted it would be administered by the housing administration, but officials of all emergency agencies have been endeavoring to devise means of getting more persons to work and off relief rolls.

Some have felt that present program of insured loans for housing was not enough incentive to building. Borrowers have been slow to respond. One reason ascribed has been that the cost of labor and materials for building made it cheaper to rent than to build. Advocates of the plan said the one-fifth of the cost given by the government might cause many renters to decide it was advantageous to build.

Example of Plan Cited.

A man owns a $500 lot. He wants to build a $5,000 home. The housing administration investigates. After its approval, the government advances 20 per cent of the $5,000, or $1,000. The owner borrows the remainder from a bank or other private lending agency, the loan being insured by the housing administration.

The government gift, however, would not be figured into the cost of the house for loan purposes. By adding the value of the lot and $4,000 the borrower would be able to obtain an insured loan of 80 per cent of $4,500, or $3,600. He would be required to put up the remaining $400.

ILLINOIS SALES TAX YIELDS LESS, MOTOR FUEL MORE

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Revenues from the sales tax dropped, while motor fuel tax collections increased during November, Finance Director K. L. Ames Jr. announced today.

During the day Gov. Horner signed into law the special session bill extending indefinitly the 2 per cent sales tax act. As originally passed the act expired July 1, 1935. The bill approved today merely removes the expiration date.

The sales tax brought in $3,300,663 during November, a decrease of $17,239 from the preceding month and an increase of $238,277 over November, 1933. November motor fuel revenues were $2,986,125, an increase of $224,915 over October and $385,526 over the same month last year.

For the first eleven months of the year, Ames said the gas tax has produced $28,076,125, an increase of $1,258,752 over the same period of 1933.

Engineering Construction Awards Rise in November

Engineering construction awards in November totaled $134,415,000, of which $115,283,000 represented public work and $19,132,000 private contracts, according to Engineering News-Record. The total is 19 per cent larger than awards during October but 9 per cent lower than October, 1933.

INDUSTRY FLAYS U. S. TINKERING WITH BUSINESS

Big Groups Join to Map Recovery.

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Leading manufacturers of the country meeting here today moved a step nearer their goal of mapping a new course for American business which shall steer clear of the whirlpools of government burocracy. The council of the National Association of Manufacturers affirmed a policy of vigorous oppositon to government competition with private business.

RAY E. WANTZ.

A move to mold recommendations to guide the federal administration in its recovery drive was also taken tonight by the association and the United States Chamber of Commerce. Lewis H. Brown of New York, president of the Johns-Manville corporation and chairman of a manufacturers committee, and Silas H. Strawn of Chicago, former president of the United States chamber, chairman of a chamber group, will merge their committees in drafting the new nation-wide signpost for the federal administration.

Consider Platform Tomorrow.

The basis for their work will be the "Platform for Recovery," which will be considered Thursday by the congress of American industry meeting jointly in convention here with the manufacturers' association. The manufacturers started drafting their platform several months ago, but coöperation of the chamber in the superplan was not announced until tonight, when Brown, Strawn, and other officials completed final details here.

When the platform of the manufacturers is completed Thursday, officials say it will be the expression of more than 100,000 industrials. With that as the foundation for their work, the Brown and Strawn committees will carry it to the nation's business men and industrialists in an effort to shape a final platform.

High lights in the day's speechmaking included a critical arraignment of government subsidized activities in the power industry by Paul S. Clapp, vice president of the Columbia Gas and Electric corporation. Dr. A. P. Haake, managing director of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers of Chicago, made a plea for adherence to natural economic competition rather than the policies of "sentimental tinkers."

Warns Against "Double Standard."

R. E. Wantz, president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, warned that the country cannot accept a double standard of "part socialized and part free industry."

At the same time a committee working on the question of unemployment insurance took a stand in favor of the adoption of a plan "based on sound principles."

"Industry favors," the committee reported, "a systematic plan of unemployment compensation to involuntarily unemployed persons who are able and willing to work, and is ready to give approval to the adoption of a plan based on sound principles."

Vice President Clapp of Columbia Gas in his address took the view that unless the present federal policy toward electrical utilities is checked it

President Backs Bankhead Act; Exempting Small Planter

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Warm Springs, Ga., Dec. 4.—Ten days before the AAA poll throughout the cotton belt on retention of the Bankhead cotton control act President Roosevelt tonight announced he will ask congress to lift its restrictions on 600,000 small planters. He pledged relief for those farmers, largely tenant, who have a base production of not more than two bales.

In the announcement the President threw himself solidly behind the Bankhead bill, which has been bitterly attacked in the south. He held it to be far and away the best instrument through which to continue the New Deal plan of curtailment of production until the surplus can be controled.

To impartial observers the announcement was one of considerable import. They conceded that the President, because of his popularity in the south, might swing the election for retention of the bill by a mere word.

Seeks Small Planters' Support.

In his announcement the President was seen as having gone beyond a mere verbal indorsement. In effect, according to administration officials, he called upon the 600,000 small farmers to support the bill by promising they would not be subjected to its restrictions.

The President predicted the cotton control program will achieve its object—three years—at the close of the 1937 season. To substantiate his prediction he cited AAA figures showing the crop surplus has been reduced from 13,250,000 bales in 1932 to about 10,500,000 bales in 1934. He gave the normal surplus for which the administration is aiming at about four million bales.

It was estimated that exemption to the 600,000 farmers, largely tenant farmers on small plots of land, will increase production by from 200,000 to 300,000 bales in 1935.

The President explained that his move was dictated by the conviction that persons most needing help are the small farmers, and also that the regulatory provisions of the Bankhead act are most difficult to enforce in detail on small producers.

The administration's cotton program, according to White House informants, has been to bring crop prices back as far as possible to parity. In 1932 the parity price was about 13 cents and the actual price 5½ cents. At present the parity price is 15½ cents and the actual price 12½ cents.

The President has no intention, according to administration spokesmen, of attempting to bring the price of cotton to 20 or 25 cents a pound, but to strive for parity. This is also the administration aim toward corn, hogs, and wheat, it is said.

Big Exports Not Expected.

The administration has abandoned, according to observers, any hope of recapturing the foreign trade level of predepression years, because other countries have taken to raising their own cotton and are seeking to manufacture cotton substitutes which employ a small percentage of cotton and wood pulp.

At the same time the administration is said to be convinced that cheap cotton will not recapture foreign trade. That cheap cotton means only starvation for the cotton grower is said to be the White House position.

The administration has a selfish motive in dedicating itself to strive for parity, in the opinion of critics. The government has advanced loans on 9,000,000 bales. Should the price fall the government would lose money as the previous administration did in its program of purchasing surplus cotton and wheat.

Court to Review Election of Two Celotex Directors

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Judge Reinhardt in Chancery court today ordered Roy H. Goddard and Robert R. Clark of Chicago, directors of the Celotex company, to appear Dec. 14 to show cause why a preliminary injunction should not be issued restraining them from further direction in the company until their election as directors has been reviewed.

ROPER FINDS PEOPLE WANT U. S. TO ADOPT PERMANENT PROGRAM

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Secretary Roper said today that he found the prospects for business improvement encouraging. With regard to other matters pressing for attention, he believed:

Most persons feel the time has come to get off an emergency basis and back on a permanent governmental program.

The extent of federal spending should be measured by the need, with a sharp line drawn between public and private endeavor in shaping a public works program.

"I look for a gradual rise," he said in discussing hopes for business improvement. "And most people feel that it would be better for business to improve gradually than for it to take a sudden spurt which might lead to a reverse."

Roper said he believed that if a permanent course was charted and the emergency nature of governmental activity removed, business would feel sufficient certainty to make long range plans for itself and that it would go ahead with gathering momentum.

How much more federal spending would be necessary was described as contingent upon the number of permanently unemployables upon relief rolls. These persons the secretary regarded as the proper charge of their home states and communities.

Then, Roper said, the type of work done under a work relief program should be closely considered, with a sharp distinction drawn so that work relief projects might be confined to those not properly falling within the field of private endeavor.

Stocks Steam Ahead; Pulled by Rail Group

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 4.—All was sweetness and light in the Wall street speculative community again today. Most stock groups were able to make headway at one time or another and at their best a scattering of favored issues showed price improvements amounting to as much as $2 a share.

Rails made the best showing, being invigorated by several bullish rumors, one of them to the effect that the roads are slated to get the freight rate increases they are seeking. Brokerage house commentators, moreover, were reiterating a statement to the effect that the group had pretty well discounted all the bearish elements bearing on the future and is overdue to join the industrials in a general move forward. Buying of the shares of leading carriers spurted briskly in the late afternoon, so much so that at one time it appeared as if every other sale was a railroad issue.

Rail Leaders Advance.

New York Central, Atchison, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Illinois Central, and others advanced from 1 to nearly 2 points. The high priced Norfolk and Western rose more than 3 points.

Besides the freight increase rumor, buyers of the carrier shares were intrigued by a report that the Reconstruction Finance corporation is all primed to fix minimum prices for railroad bonds and provide for their conversion into some sort of a government guaranteed obligation. Still another tale had it that a big Wall street banking house had come to the rescue of one of the leading railroad systems long in financial difficulties.

Communications Issues Rise.

Communications shares seemed to find some encouragement in the testimony of leading telegraph officials before the federal communications commission's hearing stressing the advantages of a merger of all wire systems of the country. American Telephone spurted more than 2 points and Western Union rose a point or so, as did Postal Telegraph preferred.

An individual feature was an advance of more than 2 points in J. C. Penney to the best price since 1930 on a dividend increase. McLellan Stores was again prominent, rising nearly a point to a new high on news that the receivership will be ended before the end of the year.

Aviation stocks attracted some attention and most of the tobaccos maintained a firm tone. However, Lorillard, outstanding performer of the tobacco group for the last week, ran into some profit taking.

Robust preferred issues were Beatrice Creamery, Bucyrus, Hahn, International Harvester, Mathiesen Alkali, Sterling Securities, and United Piece Dye.

Business Failures Fewer than for Week, Year Ago

There were 201 business failures in the five-day week ended Nov. 29, against 229 in the preceding week and 268 in the corresponding week last year, according to Dun & Bradstreet.

YULE DIVIDENDS VOTED BY MANY LEADING FIRMS

Highest Payment Is $100 a Share.

Christmas cheer for stockholders of nearly a score of companies was promised yesterday by the action of directors in declaring extra dividends or increasing present rates.

Honors for the largest per share distribution continued to be held by Group No. 1 Oil corporation which voted its usual quarterly disbursement of $100 a share. In August stockholders received an extra payment of the same amount. Since 1925 annual dividends have ranged from $300 to $3,400. The company has only 2,406 shares of stock outstanding.

Directors of Joseph B. Ryerson and Son, Inc., voted a special payment of 50 cents which will bring disbursements for the year to $1.25. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president, announced that total sales for 1934 will exceed last year by 35 per cent and will be 60 per cent above 1932.

Penney Votes Extra.

J. C. Penney company authorized an extra payment of $2 and a quarterly dividend of 50 cents on common. The company has been paying at the rate of 30 cents a quarter and announced the increased distribution was not to be construed as establishing a higher rate.

American Gas and Electric company declared 20 cents a share in lieu of its usual semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent in stock. Fanny Farmer Candy Shops, Inc., ordered an extra of 6¼ cents and the regular payment of the same amount. The regular payment is equal to the old rate of 25 cents quarterly before a four for one stock split.

Mead, Johnson & Co. declared an extra disbursement of 25 cents, L. A. Young Spring and Wire company ordered an additional payment of the same amount, General Printing Ink company authorized an extra of 30 cents and International Printing Ink voted a special of 25 cents.

Others Take Special Action.

Hoskins Manufacturing company declared 25 cents extra, Taylor Milling company approved a similar additional dividend and Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., ordered a cash distribution of 50 cents a share, plus a special disbursement of $1 on both class A and B stocks.

Associated Oil company, which maintains no regular dividend basis, declared 50 cents a share, bringing total distributions for the year to $1.

WATCH YOUR "COLLECTION PERIOD"

Tables have been compiled by Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., showing the average collection period in 27 important manufacturing and wholesale lines. You should see and study the figures -- compare your own average collection period with that of your industry as a whole.

Every year, millions of dollars of profit are needlessly bled away in slow collections. If your accounts are in this unhealthy state, stop the drain on your profits with

28 COUNTRIES BOOST BUYING OF U. S. GOODS

Britain and Japan Prove Best Customers.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Exports of American merchandise were larger in October to twenty-eight of our fifty principal foreign markets, reaching a total of $206,351,871, figures of the commerce department showed today. This was $14,661,702 more than the preceding month and $13,283,000 more than last year.

Imports, although larger from 28 foreign countries, declined $2,237,690 under the value of those of the preceding month to total $129,629,282. This was also $21,237,690 less than in October, 1933. Not all countries that bought more of our products during October increased their sales to us.

Trade Better Than Last Year.

A more striking improvement in both exports and imports was shown in a comparison of total 1934 trade with that of 1933. During the first ten months this year, the value of merchandise exports reached $1,767,697,122, compared with $1,296,099,026 during the corresponding period last year. The value of 1934 imports up to the end of October amounted to $1,371,870,532, as against $1,187,499,461 during the first ten months of 1933.

The largest increase in October purchases of our products abroad was shown by Great Britain and Japan, each importing about $7,000,000 more than in September. The British continued, however, as our best foreign customers, taking products valued at $47,036,316, compared with $40,119,254 in September and $39,532,378 in October, 1933.

Japan Buys More of U. S.

October exports to Japan reached $26,094,307, compared with $19,977,344 during the preceding month and $16,824,651 in October, 1933. The relatively larger increase in exports to Japan than to Canada displaced the latter country as our second best customer.

During October our sales to Canada totaled $26,875,103, against $24,850,212 during the preceding month and $21,485,958 in October, 1933. Argentina, Belgium, China, Cuba, France, Italy, Mexico, and Spain were among other countries taking more of our exports in October than in September.

The unfavorable exchange situation existing between the United States and Germany was reflected in a further slight reduction in that country's purchases from us. Imports from Germany were also slightly below the preceding month's.

GRAINS RESUME UPWARD TREND; CORN IS LEADER

Shipping Sales Out of Chicago Increase.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Grain prices were in the ascendency again yesterday after the market's faltering action of the preceding day. Trading was not heavy and was marked by some erratic movements during the fore part of the session. The closing gong, however, found futures on all grains selling above Monday's last quotations and corn the conspicuous leader.

A significant development was the comparatively heavy shipping sales of corn to go out of Chicago. Sales aggregating 260,000 bushels were reported and actual sales were said to be in excess of that figure. Only 11,000 bushels were bought for shipment into the market. Not in a month or more has shipping demand for corn been equal to that of yesterday. Chicago handlers have been unable to compete with prices prevailing in the country for cash corn and as a result comparatively little grain has been sold for shipment to the east.

Illinois Concern Buys Corn.

A portion of yesterday's sales was said to represent a purchase by the A. E. Staley Manufacturing company, Decatur, Ill. The size of the firm's purchase could not be determined. Located in the center of the Illinois corn producing area, a purchase in the Chicago market by that firm is a striking example of the present unusual situation.

Final quotations on corn futures represented gains of ½ to 1⅜ cents over Monday's last prices. What was up ¾ to 1¼ cents a bushel. Closing prices on the May futures were:

	Yesterday.	Monday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$1.00⅝	.99½	.98⅞
Corn	.91	.90⅝	.87¼
Oats	.54⅝	.53½	.50⅝
Rye	.78⅛	.76⅞	.75⅝

Deliveries Unsettle Wheat.

Unexpected deliveries of wheat against the December futures were an unsettling influence on the market early in the day. A total of 1,892,000 bushels of wheat was delivered yesterday, but only 5,000 bushels of corn. The deliveries suggested the transfer of speculative holdings into the May future.

With the December and May futures selling at almost the same price the purchaser of the later delivery has no carrying charge to pay for the period between now and delivery date. At the close of the market, however, December wheat at $1 a bushel was at a discount of ⅝ cent to the May future.

The advance here was made in the face of weakness in foreign prices. In Liverpool wheat prices fell ½ to ⅛ cent a bushel.

The strength in wheat here is based on the domestic news of small receipts at the principal markets, the premiums being paid for cash grain and the increasing diversion of wheat into feed channels.

BOARD OF TRADE CONSIDERS SOY BEAN MARKET

Directors of the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday authorized the appointment of a committee by President Peter B. Carey to inquire into the question of establishing a futures market in soy beans on the exchange.

Establishment of such a market was considered in 1931 but no definite action was taken. Soy beans have become an increasingly important crop in the last few years.

CROP EXPERTS FIND WINTER WHEAT SOWN 6% OVER LAST YEAR

The first estimates of the crop statisticians on the new winter wheat crop were made public yesterday. Nat. C. Murray placed the winter wheat acreage at 43,440,000, an increase of 6 per cent over the acreage sowed last year. He figured the condition of the crop at 79 per cent of normal, compared with 75 per cent at this time a year ago and the ten year average condition of 83 per cent. The figures, he stated, suggest a possible winter wheat crop of 520 million bushels, compared with this year's 401 million and the ten year average of 580 million bushels.

R. O. Cromwell calculated an acreage of 42,822,000, or 4.4 per cent larger than this year, and an indicated production of 460,000,000 bushels.

Murray estimated wheat feeding at 17 per cent more than last year, or about 88 million bushels, compared with 75 millions.

The movement of wheat from farms to market will be much lighter during the remainder of the season than last year, Murray figures. Marketings up to Dec. 1 were an estimated 73 per cent of the crop, compared with 65 per cent last year and the normal rate of 68 per cent for that season.

A shortage of meats for about two years after 1935 is forseen by Cromwell, who points out that live stock feeding will have to be adjusted to feed supplies.

BUSINESS HERE BETTER; RELIEF ROLLS INCREASE

Find Living Costs 3.1% Over October, 1933.

Despite the fact that business in Chicago during October was substantially better than a year ago, the month showed an increase of 15,827 families on Cook county's relief rolls and a rise of 3.1 per cent in living costs over October, 1933, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The only commercial activities that showed a drop last October, in comparison with October, 1933, were local stock exchange security sales, freight car loadings and pig iron production at local steel mills. The comparison follows:

HEAR BURLINGTON PLANS TO BUILD BIGGER ZEPHYR

As a result of the increased business it has attracted, Burlington railroad officials are reported to be considering plans either to enlarge the streamlined Zephyr or build a new and bigger train of similar type.

Large crowds have traveled on the train since it was put into service Nov. 1, and officials feel they must take some step to take care for increased business. In some sections the gain in travel has been 100 per cent.

Business on the Zephyr in the first week of its operation between Lincoln, Neb., and Kansas City showed an increase of 75 per cent over that handled by the old style trains. Over the Thanksgiving holidays it was necessary to run a steam train as a second section.

COINS MINTED IN NOVEMBER TOP 1933 TOTAL

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—(AP)—Federal mints turned out three times more coins in November than in all of 1933. November output was 77,716,000 coins with a value of $4,976,820.

Production for 1933 was 23,109,250 coins valued at $13,136,225, but 758,000 pieces were gold valued at $12,035,000 and are now no longer in circulation.

November coinage last year was only 2,948,000 pieces, worth $480,280. October's coinage this year was 58,216,079 pieces, worth $3,832,776.

Realty Board to Instal Its New Officers Today

The regular monthly meeting of the Chicago Real Estate board will be held this afternoon at which time the annual meeting of the organization will be held and new officers instaled. The retiring president, Lester W. Porter, of Hodge, Nicolson & Porter, will be succeeded by John C. Bowers. Thomas J. Fleming, of Ross & Browne, will be instaled as first vice president; Edward J. Scott as secretary and Carey E. DeButts and Victor J. Curto as directors. There will be no evening meeting of the board.

INDUSTRY FLAYS U. S. TINKERING WITH BUSINESS

will have a dominating influence on the future relationship of government and all business. Socialization of the power industry will affect the whole government pattern, he warned.

"If government enters the electric business on the ground that it is a social necessity, what about food, clothes, shoes, coal, rents, house furnishings, etc.?" the speaker asked.

Assails Sentimental Tinkers.

Defending private management, Dr. Haake said that business has made errors and shall make more. "But," he declared, "I would far rather trust the fate of our nation and future to what are called the blind forces of competition than I would to the sentimental tinkers who approach omnipotence but are far from possessing omniscience."

Dr. Haake advocated a campaign of educating the public to the true economic picture. "We are quarreling with the futility of the methods being employed," he said, "and we must show the truth to people and to congress."

President Wantz of Illinois manufacturers said that any step taken by government to replace private industry strikes at the roots of the economic system and by limiting "development funds also limits our horizon."

"Our function," he said, referring to private business, "is in providing out of our experience what helpful guidance we can in a period when people are thinking very strongly in terms of social obligations.

Based on Experience.

"Our convictions are not greedy in their inspiration nor do they rise from a self-willed, stiff necked and purely tory attitude that we know what is best for the country. They rise out of our experience, and we should be renegade to them if at this particular period of reëxamination of government premises we did not voice them and demand to be heard.

"We cannot accept a double standard of part socialized and part free industry," Wantz declared. "Our practical experience tells us it will not work. We cannot accept a view of society which places upon government burocracy the obligation of whatever progress we are to make, because government has been notoriously sluggish in progress.

"I am convinced that the true way of progress is the way of private initiative, of imaginative development, of socially responsible but not government subsidized industry."

ILLINOIS HOLC SPEEDS UP LOANS TO HOME OWNERS

All of the most meritorious cases of needy home owners who have applied for aid from the Illinois agency of the Home Owners' Loan corporation will be acted on shortly, according to a statement made yesterday by Henry G. Zander Jr., state manager. Because of the limitations on available funds, the remainder of the applications, he said, have been held in abeyance.

The HOLC paid out a record total of $21,015,824 in the Chicago district in November, Mr. Zander announced. Defaulted Chicago mortgages totaling 5,548 were refinanced by the government with this fund. The figures indicate, Mr. Zander pointed out, that although no new applications for loans are being accepted, the work of the corporation is continuing at an accelerated rate.

"The entire efforts of the organization now are being devoted to bringing to a close those applications which are in the final stages of completion," said Mr. Zander. "The daily production rate has improved sufficiently within the last month so that we are now paying out almost a million dollars every day in the Chicago district alone."

ASSAIL, DEFEND PEOPLE'S TRUST "PAYOFF" DEAL

The contract entered into between the Peoples Trust and Savings bank and the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company [now the Continental Illinois National] whereby the former borrowed enough from the latter to pay off its depositors was alternately denounced as "an unconscionable document" and lauded as an instrument for the public welfare in a hearing yesterday before Judge John Prystalski in the Circuit court.

The hearing is on a motion made by attorneys for the stockholders of the Peoples Trust to dismiss a suit brought by the Continental Illinois to collect $5,576,041, including principal and interest, of double liability. The Continental Illinois asserts that this amount is the deficiency remaining after liquidating a large amount of the assets put up as collateral for the loan.

Since the suit was filed last June the deficiency has been whittled down to around $4,000,000.

ASK ACCOUNTING, RECEIVER FOR REALTY TRUST

Suit for an accounting and appointment of a receiver for the Federal Facilities Realty trust, 29 South La Salle street, was filed in Superior court yesterday in behalf of William E. Seligman, a bondholder.

The bill charges Jacob Kulp, Myrtle Johnson, and George Peterson with breach of trust and asserts they converted more than $1,000,000 of trust funds to their own use. The bill further avers that the formation of the trust in September, 1929, was the result of "a conspiracy and agreement" between the parties named.

The three trustees were the owners of all capital stock of fourteen building corporations, the bill states, and that they formed the trust by turning over the stock and issuing $300,000 worth of bonds to themselves with $1,000,000 in beneficial interest in addition to accounts due the corporation.

HEARING BRINGS COMMUNICATION MERGER NEARER

Western Union Decides to Accept U. S. Plan.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—[Special.]—Merger of communications facilities moved a step nearer accomplishment today when Western Union officials, understood heretofore to be against any unified system, offered no opposition at today's hearing before the federal communications commission. While making it clear that they were not advocating unification, these officials indicated that they would place no obstacle in the way.

David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corporation of America, today joined Postal Telegraph officials, who testified yesterday, in advocating the proposed merger. He urged that a definite national communications policy be worked out as essential, "if the independence and security of America in world communications are to be preserved."

Western Union Attitude Told.

J. C. Willever, first vice president of the Western Union, told the commission:

"We have never opposed such a change [unification] in the past and we do not oppose it now if the commission concludes that under present conditions or those which may be expected in the near future it is or may be desirable."

He pointed out, however, that he did not believe unification necessary, for he said that the facilities of his company were capable of accommodating double the present trafic. There would be opportunity for a unified company to compete with air mail, long distance telephone and other competitors, Mr. Willever asserted.

Telephone Chief Approves.

C. P. Cooper, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, said that his company approved a merger of the telegraph companies, provided it was first approved by the commission. He denied that the Bell system's leased wires and teletypewriter service was designed solely to compete with the telegraph services.

"The development was not to take away telegraph business," he declared, "but to offer and provide the public the best service possible for us to render."

Sarnoff in his testimony attacked officials of the telegraph groups for what he viewed as failure to keep abreast of modernization and research efforts, and predicted that a unified telegraph organization would "put fear" into telephone officials.

Under the communications act, the commission must submit to congress not later than Feb. 1, a recommendation for changes in the act.

DOLLAR FIRMER AGAINST CHIEF FOREIGN MONEYS

New York, Dec. 4.—[Special.]—The dollar was stronger today against leading foreign currencies. The British pound and all European gold currencies, with the exception of the guilder, closing lower.

The pound sterling lost 1 cent to $4.94⅝, while French francs eased ⅛ point to close at 6.59 cents. The value of the dollar, based on the old par of the franc, was 59.45 cents, compared with 59.44 cents yesterday. Calculated on the new par of the franc the dollar was worth $1.0066, against $1.0064 yesterday.

The Italian lira was ½ point lower at 8.52½ cents, the belga 2 points down at 23.40 cents, and the Swiss franc 5 points lower at 32.43 cents. The guilder was unchanged at 67.60 cents and the German mark was steady at 40.19 cents. Canadian dollars rose 0.9375 cent to $1.0293¾.

Bullion brokers in London lifted the price of gold 4½ pence to 140 shillings 6½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.82, based on the opening of sterling at $4.95½. Bars valued at $678,835 were purchased.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS, EASTERN DIVISION.

In the Matter of

NOTICE

of Division of Creditors and Stockholders into classes, and of time and manner of filing certain classes of claims.

To all Creditors and Stockholders of and claimants against Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company, Debtor.

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED that on the 30th day of November, 1934, an order was entered in the above entitled cause by the Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, which ordered and directed the giving of this notice, and provided that:

I. For the purposes of any plan of reorganization that may be presented in these proceedings the creditors and stockholders of the Debtor herein, are divided into the following classes:

CLASS 1. Claims entitled to priority under the six-months' rule.

Holders of claims against the Debtor which would have been entitled to priority over existing mortgages if a receiver in equity of the property of the Debtor had been appointed by a Federal Court at the date of the filing of the Debtor's petition for reorganization hereunder, to-wit: December 30, 1933.

CLASS 2. Claims for personal injuries.

Holders of claims for personal injuries to employes of the Debtor, and claims of personal representatives of deceased employes of the Debtor, arising under State or Federal laws.

CLASS 3. Other prior claims.

Holders of all other claims which are entitled to priority in payment by virtue of the laws of any state or of the United States.

CLASS 4. Refunding Mortgage Four, Five, and Six Per Cent Gold Bonds.

Claims evidenced by Refunding Mortgage four, five, and six per cent gold bonds, due July 1, 1947, issued under and secured by the Refunding Mortgage of Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company to Central Trust Company of New York and James Murdock, Trustees, dated April 1, 1897, and the Supplement thereto dated April 1, 1910, of which Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company, is now the Trustee.

CLASS 5. First and General Mortgage Five and Six Per Cent Gold Bonds.

Claims evidenced by First and General Mortgage five and six per cent gold bonds due May 1st, 1966, issued under and secured by the First and General Mortgage of the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company to Guaranty Trust Company of New York and William L. Taylor, as Trustees, dated May 1st, 1916, and the Supplement thereto dated March 1, 1917.

CLASS 6. Indianapolis & Louisville Railway Company First Mortgage Four Per Cent Bonds.

Claims evidenced by First Mortgage four per cent gold bonds of the Indianapolis & Louisville Railway Company, due January 1, 1956, issued under and secured by the Trust Deed of the Indianapolis & Louisville Railway Company to The Standard Trust Company of New York and Edward M. F. Miller, Trustees, dated January 1st, 1906; the payment of said bonds having been assumed by the Debtor herein at the time the railroad and property of said Indianapolis & Louisville Railway Company was sold and transferred to the Debtor herein.

CLASS 7. Equipment Trust No. 22 Notes.

Claims evidenced by Equipment Trust No. 22 Notes, issued and outstanding under the Equipment Trust Agreement dated January 15, 1920, between Walker D. Hines, Director General of Railroads; Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company, and Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as Trustee.

CLASS 8. Equipment Trust Certificates, Series D.

Claims evidenced by Equipment Trust Certificates, Series D, issued and outstanding under the Lease of Equipment between New York Trust Company to Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company dated September 15, 1922, and the Agreement of H. R. Mardorf with New York Trust Company and Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company, dated September 15, 1922.

CLASS 9. Equipment Lease Warrants and Interest Notes. Pullman Car & Manufacturing Corporation Equipment Agreement.

Claims evidenced by lease warrants and interest notes issued and outstanding under the Equipment Agreement between Pullman Car & Manufacturing Corporation and Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company, dated June 1, 1925.

CLASS 10. Equipment Trust Certificates, Series E.

Claims evidenced by Equipment Trust Certificates, Series E, issued and outstanding under the Lease of Equipment by Harris Trust and Savings Bank to Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company, dated as of October 1st, 1929, and the Agreement of H. R. Mardorf with Harris Trust and Savings Bank and Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company, dated as of October 1st, 1929.

CLASS 11. Collateral Loans.

CLASS 12. Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville Railway Company Four Per Cent Preferred Stock.

CLASS 14. Other Claims.

Holders of claims, interests or securities of whatever character, other than those above enumerated in the foregoing classes, against the Debtor or its property, whether or not the same be represented or evidenced by a written instrument.

The foregoing enumeration of classes does not indicate any rank, preference or priority of any class over any other class.

II. Claims and interests of or on behalf of creditors and stockholders described in the above mentioned Classes 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, and 13, inclusive, are excluded from the scope of this order so far as the same relates to the time of filing or manner of proving such claims. Provision will be made by future order of the Court for such filing and proof.

III. All other claims and interests against the Debtor, or its property, as set forth in the foregoing classification, shall be evidenced by filing with R. G. Streit, Comptroller of the Debtor, Room 1432 Transportation Building, 608 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois, on or before the first day of April, 1935, a verified proof of claim, in duplicate, in such form as may be approved by the Debtor herein, and as may be acceptable to the Court. Unless so filed or evidenced on or prior to said date, no such claim or interest may participate in any plan of reorganization except on order of this Court for cause shown.

IV. All claims and interests of creditors or claimants, filed or evidenced as herein provided, will be referred for consideration and report to a Special Master hereinafter to be appointed by said Court for that purpose. Objections to the allowance of any such claims and interests may be made and filed within the time and in the manner as shall be hereinafter fixed by said Court, by any party in interest.

V. Any creditor, or stockholder of, or claimant against the Debtor herein may apply to the Court at any time prior to March 1, 1935, upon notice to the parties to this proceeding, for a modification of the determination this day made of the division of creditors and stockholders into classes and of the time within which and the manner in which their respective claims and interests may be filed and evidenced. The Court reserves jurisdiction to make from time to time such further orders amplifying, extending, limiting or otherwise modifying this order as to the Court may at any time seem proper.

Blank forms for filing proof of claims may be obtained from R. G. Streit, Comptroller of the Debtor, Room 1432 Transportation Building, 608 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois.

Dated the 1st day of December, 1934.

By H. R. KURRIE, President.
C. C. HINE, Counsel.

Values Rise Sharply on Brisk Buying Wave.

Brisk competition between eastern and local packers sent lamb prices to the highest levels in almost five months yesterday. Current quotations are $1.25 to $1.50 above the low spot about two weeks ago, and for the first time in several weeks they are above 1933.

Smaller interests bought closely sorted ewe and wether lambs as high as $7.75, which equals the highest mark since July 12 and compares with $6.35 only 15 days ago.

Large local interests were heavy buyers up to $7.65 in better grades, and obtained buck lambs at $6.65 and under.

Heavy Receipts Depress Hogs.

There was a rather marked change in the quality of the new crop hogs. Almost 90 per cent of the run was new crop, but there were fewer underweights below 150 pounds in yesterday's consignments. Butchers over 250 pounds were conspicuous again by their scarcity and were regarded as specialties by buyers.

A much bigger share of the run was in the 180 to 225 pound class. General quality of hogs was the best in several weeks. Prime 232 to 320 pound butchers topped the list at $8.45, including the $2.25 processing tax to the federal government, while all droves averaged $8.05.

Cattle Prices Decline.

Cattle prices were depressed by big receipts, the run of 14,000 being the largest for any Tuesday since July 10, barring one holiday period. Most prices were steady to 25 cents lower during the day, a big share of the run selling at the lowest prices of the day, with a good many loads carried over.

Occasional spots in desirable yearlings were firm at the start, but all kinds ruled downward later. Swift bought a consignment of medium weight steers at the top of $10.10, and 943 pound yearlings sold at $9, with the bulk of all weights of beef merit at $5.85 to $9.15. Some inferior grades of low dressing steers ranged down to $3 and less.

A genuine opportunity for a few neat appearing men, 25 years of age or over, to represent the largest retail Home Furnishing House in the Middle West. We are laying a foundation for future purchasing among our numerous customers and are paying our representatives advanced commission in full on a basis of average sales expectancy. Also allowing a daily drawing account privilege, if necessary while getting started. An intensely interesting and dignified program for those capable of conducting enthusiastic conversation. Can earn between $40 and $50 per week consistently. No night calls. Apply from 10:30 to 11:30 a. m. only. Can also use a few saleswomen.

Men who have had association with large organizations or experience in calling on executives may be qualified for the openings which have arisen in our company. They must be financially responsible, from about 30-50 years old. The company is a leader in a modern field of transportation and has a new plan for companies whose salesmen and executives do any traveling. The idea has already been eagerly accepted, but many prospects remain. Liberal commission, with full credit for repeat business.
ADDRESS B F 318, TRIBUNE, or phone Mr. Stern, Wab. 5900, for appointment.

You Can Build a Business that will pay you a steady income week after week, and year after year, on a new liquor product that is sold on an exclusive basis only; one stop now in operation pays the salesman $12-$15 per week. Others pay regularly at the rate of $2.50-$5 every week. Only 10 average stops will make a man $35-$50. A commission plan that works will enable you with our help to line up on a contract basis 20-40 such stops per month, if you can follow instructions. If you have a car and want to be a money maker phone Longbeach 0666 for appointment.

MEN

I'm going to make this brief. It's a job—a good paying proposition—the best money making opportunity in the country. We need good men. If you consider yourself as such answer this ad. If not, stay away. We are marketing a hygienic specialty unit with the greatest merchandising plan that has ever been given to any organization. Outstanding comm. profit and bonus, and also a live organization to connect with.

Apply promptly at 1 p. m. No other time. Mather Tower, 10th floor. Ask for Mr. Clark.

In fact, if you want the best sales training that any school can give you without any cost whatsoever to you and prepare yourself for a wonderful future so that you will never be out of a job, you owe it to yourself to answer this ad.

MEN WHO ARE INTERESTED IN EARNING FROM $125 TO $400 IN DECEMBER SHOULD APPLY FOR A POSITION WITH THIS GREAT COMPANY. THE AVERAGE EARNINGS OF OUR MEN HAVE BEEN INCREASING STEADILY DURING THE PAST FIVE YEARS. MR. GEORGE BENTLEY, THE MAN WITH WHOM YOU WILL TALK REGARDING THIS BUSINESS, EARNED OVER $100 IN COMMISSIONS THE FIRST WEEK SELLING OUR UNIT. NO INVESTMENT OR COST TO YOU OF ANY KIND. APPLY FROM 11 A. M. to 5 P. M., AT 9 S. KEDZIE-AV., SUITE 329, COR. MADISON.

WOULD YOU BE WILLING TO WORK HARD FOR AN INCOME LIKE THIS?

That old job doesn't seem to want to come back very fast, does it? Maybe it won't ever be like it once was, anyway—and perhaps somebody else will have it when it opens up! The man who hangs crepe on his memory and goes into mourning for something he once had, is deader commercially than the lost opportunity which he mourns! P. G., a civil engineer in charge of extensive steel construction, thought he was sitting on top of the world till things collapsed. But, instead of whining for what he had, he went out to find something he could really possess, and that is how we built a new buisness around him. Without knowledge of this electrical service, equipment, unit and machine business, he succeeded. Last week, 2 years after joining us, he made $184—and has been working up toward it all the while. If such commission checks interest you and you will give me an hour to talk it over with you, I will give that hour to you. Call—if living on the North Side—at Room 309, 3325 Lincoln-av., at 4 p. m. only, today, Wednesday, Dec. 5. My name is Lind. I will be looking for you!

DO YOU STILL HAVE A PUNCH LEFT?

You may be as skeptical as you wish to be, but if you have a punch left, and prefer to get into business for yourself, I shall be interested to talk to you. A good many men are not in the business or trades in which they were trained. Joe Page is a good example. He labored for years in a locomotive works, but demands for locomotives slackened, and for the kind he built probably will never be so good again. Joe got into this business about 3 years ago and in the last 2 months he made $1,000. He was able to do far better with his big commission checks than he had been with his old pay envelope. He knew nothing about electrical units, but he learned—and any man with ambition can also learn.

We want men living in the Northwest suburbs, and I will talk to you if you have power and health, politeness and determination, if you will call from 3 to 4 Wednesday afternoon, Dec. 5, in Room 6, State Bank Bldg., Park Ridge. My name is M. T. Jones.
